(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Import" means to transport in any manner into the continental United States from areas outside the continental United States, including territories and possessions. It includes shipments into foreign-trade zones, customs bonded warehouses, and customs custody, except when such shipments are merely in transit through the continental United States, to destinations outside the continental United States, as shown by the bills of lading or other shipping documents. However, if any such material in transit is halted or diverted to a destination in the continental United States or subjected to processing or manufacture in the continental United States, it becomes an "import" for the purposes of this order.

SEC. 3. Antimony forms and materials to which this order applies. This order applies to the following antimony forms and materials: Antimony ores and concentrates, antimony metal, antimony oxide, antimony sulfide, and antimony scrap. For the purpose of this order, these items are defined as follows:

(a) "Antimony ores and concentrates" means ores and concentrates containing antimony commercially recognized.

(b) "Antimony metal" means the element antimony in commercially pure form, otherwise known as regulus.

(c) "Antimony oxide" means any oxide of antimony in commercially pure form.

(d) "Antimony sulfide" means liquated antimony, otherwise known as needle antimony, crude antimony or crudum, and ground antimony sulfide.

(e) "Antimony scrap" means all materials or objects which are the waste or by-product of industrial fabrications or processes, or which have been discarded for obsolescence, failure, or other reason, and which contain antimony commercially recoverable, including but not limited to, items such as battery plates, type metal, and drosses and residues.

SEC. 4. Inventories. (a) No person shall receive or accept delivery of a quantity of antimony in the forms or materials to which this order applies if his inventory of such material is, or by such receipt would become, more than the smallest quantity of such material which he reasonably requires to meet his deliveries or maintain his currently scheduled rate of operations during the next succeeding 60-day period, or in excess of a "practicable minimum working inventory" as defined in NPA Reg. 1, whichever is less: Provided, That this provision shall not apply to antimony ores and concentrates, or scrap.

(b) No dealer shall receive or accept delivery of any quantity of antimony scrap unless, during the 60 days immediately preceding the date of such acceptance, he shall have made delivery or otherwise disposed of antimony scrap to an amount at least equal in weight to his inventory of antimony scrap on the date of such acceptance, exclusive of the delivery to be accepted.

(c) A person may import any materials to which paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section apply acquired prior to landing without regard to the inventory restrictions of this section. However, if his inventory of such material thereby becomes in excess of the amount permitted, he may not receive further deliveries of it from domestic sources until his inventory is reduced to permitted levels. The inventory restrictions of this section do apply to any deliveries of the imported materials he makes, and to the amount of it that any person accepting delivery from him is permitted to receive.

SEC. 5. Records and reports. (a) Any person who produces, consumes, imports, ships, or accepts delivery of 2,000 pounds or more of antimony contained in antimony ores and concentrates, antimony metal, antimony oxide, or antimony sulfide in any calendar month, or who on the last day of any calendar month has in his possession or under his control 2,000 pounds or more of antimony contained in these forms and materials, shall complete and file Bureau of Mines report form 6–1016–M on or before the 20th day of February, 1951 with respect to January, 1951, and on or before the 20th day of each month thereafter with respect to such transactions or possession during the preceding month. This report shall be addressed to the Bureau of Mines, Washington 25, D. C., in such number of copies as may be specified on the form.

(b) Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least 2 years, records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, production, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction whether the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

(c) All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

SEC. 6. Application for adjustments. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that such provision works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of national defense or in the public interest. Each request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought and shall state the justification therefor.

SEC. 7. Communications. All communications concerning this order other than reports shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M–39.

In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act (P. L. 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

PROPOSED RULE MAKING

CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD

RADIO EQUIPMENT FOR LARGE AIRCRAFT

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Pursuant to authority delegated by the Civil Aeronautics Board to the Bureau of Safety Regulation, notice is hereby given that the Bureau will propose to the Board an amendment of Part 42 of the Civil Air Regulations in substance as hereinafter set forth.

Interested persons may participate in the making of the proposed rules by submitting such written data, views, or arguments as they may desire. Communications should be submitted, in duplicate, to the Civil Aeronautics Board, attention Bureau of Safety Regulation, Washington 25, D. C. All communications received by March 31, 1951, will be considered by the Board before taking further action on the proposed rules. Copies of such communications will be available after April 4, 1951, for examination by interested persons at the Docket Section of the Board, Room 5412, Commerce Building, Washington, D. C.

Part 42 currently makes specific provision for the character of radio equipment which shall be carried by large aircraft under various operating conditions, but does not now specify its quality. Experience in the past several months has indicated that a higher level of safety is necessary and could be obtained if quality requirements were established comparable to those established for scheduled carriers. It is, therefore, proposed to amend Part 42 to prescribe approved type equipment in order to authorize the Civil Aeronautics Administration to require type-certificated radio equipment for both communications and navigational purposes on all large aircraft.

It is expected that, if adopted, an effective date of December 31, 1953, will be allowed for conversion to type-certificated equipment. This date coincides with that for compliance with the T-Category requirements for operation of large passenger-carrying airplanes under Part 42.

Experience indicates that some non-certificated radio equipment currently used in large irregular aircraft may be shown to comply with Part 16 of the Civil Air Regulations governing the type certification of radio equipment. Air carriers using such non-certificated radio equipment should make application to CAA for approval.

It is therefore proposed to amend Part 42 of the Civil Air Regulations as follows:

1. By inserting the words "approved type" before the words "radio equipment" in § 42.23 (a).

2. By inserting the words "aproved type" before the words "marker beacon receiver" and "radio equipment" in the first sentence of § 42.23 (b) and before the words "independent means" in the second sentence of § 42.23 (b).

This amendment is proposed under the authority of Title VI of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended. The proposed amendment may be changed in view of comments received in response to this notice of proposed rule making.

Dated: February 14, 1951, at Washington, D. C.

NEW ENGLAND ELECTRIC SYSTEM

ORDER PERMITTING DECLARATION TO BECOME EFFECTIVE

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C. on the 13th day of February A. D. 1951.

New England Electric System ("NEES"), a registered holding company, having filed a declaration pursuant to sections 9 (a) (1) and 10 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 with respect to the following proposed transaction:

NEES proposes to acquire a $3,540,000 collateral promissory note of What Cheer Associates, Inc., as part of the consideration for the sale of its security holdings of United Electric Railways Company ("UER"), a transportation company incorporated and doing business in Rhode Island. Such securities to be sold consist of 81,800 shares (99 percent) of the UER capital stock ($100 par value per share) and all of its outstanding funded debt, namely, $939,800 principal amount of General and Refunding Mortgage Bonds, 5 percent Series A, due January 1, 1951, and $1,475,300 principal amount of General and Refunding Mortgage Bonds, 4 percent Series B, due January 1, 1951.

The total consideration for the securities to be sold by NEES is $4,700,000, of which $1,160,000 is to be paid in cash upon transfer of title and the balance of $3,540,000 is to be represented by the note to be acquired. Said promissory note is payable $500,000 on December 1, 1951, and $500,000 annually thereafter (the last such payment being $540,000), with interest on the unpaid balance at the rate of 4 percent per annum and with privilege of prior payment in whole or in part. Said promissory note is to be secured by the deposit with NEES of $661,300 principal amount of said 5 percent Series A Bonds, $1,038,700 principal amount of said 4 percent Series B Bonds and 74,300 shares of capital stock of UER.

The declaration states that NEES made available to the representatives of six interested groups the minimum acceptable conditions for the sale of the securities it owns and that three bids were received. The declaration further states that the successful bidder, What Cheer Associates, Inc., is not a registered holding company or a subsidiary thereof and is not now, and by virtue of the proposed transactions will not become, an affiliate of a holding company or a public utility.

Services to NEES in connection with the proposed transactions performed at the actual cost thereof by New England Power Service Company, an affiliated service company, are estimated not to exceed $5,000. In addition thereto, NEES will pay the necessary transfer taxes estimated at $6,115.

NEES requests that the Commission issue an order permitting the declaration to become effective forthwith upon the issuance thereof.

Said declaration having been filed on January 18, 1951, and notice of said filing having been duly given in the form and manner prescribed by Rule U-23 promulgated pursuant to said act, and the Commission not having received a request for hearing with respect to said declaration within the period specified in said notice, or otherwise, and not having ordered a hearing thereon; and

The Commission finding, with respect to said declaration, that the requirements of the applicable provisions of the act and rules thereunder are satisfied, and deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that said declaration be permitted to become effective forthwith:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of said act, that said declaration be, and the same hereby is, permitted to become effective forthwith subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24.

By the Commission.

(Sec. 6, 38 Stat. 722; 15 U. S. C. 46. Interpret or apply sec. 5, 38 Stat. 719, as amended; 15 U. S. C., 45) [Cease and desist order, Interstate Training Service Corporation et al., Docket 5764, Dec. 5, 1950]

In the Matter of Interstate Training Service Corporation, a Corporation, and Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch, Individually, as Officers of Said Corporation, and Also Trading as Copartners Under the Firm Name of Interstate Training Service; and Conard E. Green, Leon A. Crouch and Jacob W. Spatz, Trading Under the Firm Name of American Academy of Applied Science

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act, the Federal Trade Commission on April 17, 1950, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondents, Interstate Training Service Corporation, a corporation, Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch, as officers of said corporation, and Conard E. Green, Leon A. Crouch and Jacob W. Spatz, individually and trading as copartners, charging said respondents with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the filing of the respondents' answers to the complaint a trial examiner of the Commission was designated by it to take testimony and receive evidence in support of and in opposition to the allegations of said complaint, and at the initial and second hearings held for such purpose stipulations of all of the facts in the case were entered on the record. Proposed findings as to the facts having been submitted on behalf of the respondents, Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch, the trial examiner on August 22, 1950, filed his initial decision.

The Commission, having reason to believe that the initial decision was deficient in certain material respects, on October 9, 1950, issued and thereafter served upon the parties its order placing this case on the Commission's own docket for review and affording the respondents an opportunity to show cause why said initial decision should not be altered in the manner and to the extent shown by the tentative decision attached to said order. The respondents not having appeared in response to the leave to show cause, this proceeding regularly came on for final consideration by the Commission on review; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that said proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes the following findings as to the facts, conclusion drawn therefrom, and order, the same to be in lieu of the initial decision of the trial examiner:

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Interstate Training Service, improperly named in the complaint as Interstate Training Service Corporation, is a corporation organized, existing and doing business under the laws of the State of Oregon. Respondents Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch are president and secretary-treasurer, respectively, of said corporation, and, as such officers, determine and control all of its policies and business practices. However, said Interstate Training Service, and Oregon corporation, has no ownership, control or other connection with the business and things referred to in the complaint herein, and since the organization of said corporation it has at no time owned any property or conducted any business of any name or nature whatsoever. Respondents Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch operate as a co-partnership under the trade name and style of Interstate Training Service. The principal office and place of business of said individual respondents is at 4035 N. E. Sandy Boulevard, in the City of Portland, State of Oregon. Respondents Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch, doing business under the assumed name of Interstate Training Service, are now and for more than two years last past they have been engaged in the sale and distribution in commerce of courses of study and instruction in Diesel training and training in heavy equipment and heavy gasoline engines.

On or about July 1, 1946, respondents Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch formed a co-partnership with respondent Jacob W. Spatz and thereafter traded under the firm name of American Academy of Applied Science, selling and distributing in commerce a course of instruction in fingerprinting science from the Weatherly Building in the City of Portland, State of Oregon. On or about January 1, 1948, said partnership was dissolved, and respondents Crouch and Green continued to operate said American Academy of Applied Science as part of Interstate Training Service, with respondent Spatz serving as director of said academy until approximately July 1, 1948. On or about that date, respondent Spatz purchased all interests in the business from respondents Green and Crouch, but the latter continued to carry out the contracts of all students who had enrolled for their course in fingerprinting science prior to July 1, 1948, under a qualified instructor employed by respondents Green and Crouch. The latter respondents have not, since July 1, 1948, solicited students or advertised the course of study given by the American Academy of Applied Science, which since that date has been operated and is now being operated by respondent Spatz from his principal office and place of business at 1707 North Alexandria Street, Los Angeles, California.

PAR. 2. Respondents, engaged and affiliated as hereinabove set out and during the periods described, caused and do cause their courses of instruction and study, when sold, to be shipped from their respective places of business in Portland, Oregon, and Los Angeles, California, to purchasers thereof, located in states other than the States of Oregon and California. Respondents maintain, and have maintained, while affiliated as above set out, at all times mentioned herein, a course of trade in said courses of study and in instruction in commerce among and between the various States of the United States and such course of trade has been and is substantial.

PAR. 3. With respect to the courses of study in the operation of Diesel engines, respondents Conrad E. Green and Leon A. Crouch, in soliciting the purchase of and selling said courses of study, made numerous statements and representations by means of advertisements in newspapers and magazines having a national circulation, through pamphlets, circulars and direct mail advertising and through their representatives and sales agents. Illustrative of the representations so made is the following advertisement used prior to and not subsequent to July 1, 1946:

Diesel Tractor and Heavy Equipment Training Thousands of Job Opportunities! Experts say thousands of new men will be needed to service, repair and operate this equipment. I. T. S. home training prepares you for these important jobs.

Further illustrative is the following quotation from a form letter sent by said respondents to the students of said respondents after their enrollment in the course of study:

I was happy to have had a part in making an affirmative decision with regard to your recent application for enrollment submitted to our school. A personal recommendation forwarded to the school by our representative, together with the information given with the application were the chief factors which led to your acceptance.

You are evidently mechanically inclined and have a sincere desire to get ahead in this interesting and essential field of work. This training can be completed in one year by the average man who devotes one or two hours a day to it. Your application has been carefully checked by our investigating committee and duly accepted.

Further illustrative are the following quotations:

Interstate Training Service works closely with manufacturers, contractors and others in the Diesel and heavy equipment field. On completion of the course you should be qualified to operate, service or repair any machine in use whether it be a small two-cylinder job or the largest marine Diesel.

It will qualify you to handle any piece of equipment from a two bottom plow to a combine logging arch or earth mover. You will learn how to figure costs and time service. Your training is prepared and supervised by practical instructors who have years of experience in the Diesel tractor and heavy equipment field. They are men of demonstrated ability and are in constant contact with the major technical industries.

I. T. S. Free Placement Service • • • This service is free. There is no charge. Even before you have finished the course we consider you eligible for many of the openings that are brought to our attention by leading employers.

Free consultation service • • • Free Revision Service • • • Plastic Binder Free.

PAR. 4. By means of the foregoing representations and others similar thereto but not specifically set out herein, respondents represent and imply to the American Academy of Applied Science, or any other trade or partnership name, and on the part of their agents, etc., and among other things, as in order set forth, representing, directly or by implication, (1) that the opportunities for employment and advancement in the field of fingerprinting and crime detection are unusual and unlimited for those who take respondents' course; (2) that the demand for men trained merely in courses such as respondents' is great and the supply inadequate; (3) that many fingerprint bureaus are being enlarged and many more planned; (4) that there is a position to suit every preference in the fingerprinting field or something which will appeal to every aptitude; (5) that salaries in the fingerprinting field are considerably above the average; (6) that fingerprinting work is filled with excitement and intrigue or packed with thrills, color, or romance; (7) that students are selected by respondents on the basis of aptitude and personality, or that the training is limited to those appli-purchasing public that students are selected and accepted on the basis of their mechanical aptitude and upon the recommendation of the school's representatives; that the training in Diesel engine equipment may be completed in one year with one or two hours a day devoted to the study of said course; that the school works closely with manufacturers, contractors, and others in the Diesel engine field; that students upon having completed said course are qualified to operate, service and repair any Diesel equipment, regardless of size or kind, and are able to compile cost estimates; that many students are placed in jobs even before they have completed said course; that there is a competent faculty with years of experience in the Diesel field which is constantly keeping in touch with developments in that industry; that the placement service operated by respondents, as well as consultation and revision services and students' supplies are free.

PAR. 5. Through statements made by sales representatives of the respondents Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch, said respondents have further represented and implied that the opportunities for employment, improvement and advancement in the field of Diesel equipment operating are unusual and unlimited; that thousands of jobs are available and that students are assured or guaranteed employment upon completion of said course in well-paying positions; that students receive resident shop or on-the-job training; that students are especially selected after taking written or oral tests given by said salesmen, designated "vocational advisors" and "field engineers."

PAR. 6. Some of the representations made as hereinabove described were and are false, others are exaggerated, and all but one are actually or potentially deceptive or misleading. Students are not especially selected by the school because of mechanical aptitude but are enrolled by the salesmen and accepted by the school regardless of any specific aptitude; said salesmen are not vocational advisors or field engineers qualified to give aptitude tests, but are simply salesmen whose purpose it is to enroll as many students as possible. Theoretical training in Diesel engines given to students without previous practical training or experience, or practical training and experience obtained while taking respondents' course of study, cannot be completed within one year during one or two hours per day of the student's spare time to the extent of qualifying the student to operate, service and repair Diesel equipment and to make cost estimates. The operation, repair and maintenance of Diesel equipment requires substantial practical training under the supervision of competent teachers or mechanics in addition to theoretical study. Students are not assured or guaranteed employment. Generally speaking, the demand for respondents' graduates and students is largely limited to men with practical experience, and while there is a need for competent experienced men in the Diesel field, respondents' graduates without practical experience are not qualified for such positions and will not be employed therein, but may find employment as mechanics' helpers or apprentices. Respondents do not work closely with manufacturers, contractors and others, but endeavor to obtain information of new developments and changes in Diesel engines, and members of the industry do not, generally speaking, participate or take an active interest in the operation of said respondents' school. Such new developments are of comparatively small importance in connection with the teaching of the fundamental principles of Diesel engines. The school has during the past four years employed a staff of two to four qualified instructors. Said placement, revision and consultation services, as well as the supplies furnished to students, are not free, but the price thereof is included in the cost of the course. Students do not receive resident shop or on-the-job training, but the course is confined to lessons by correspondence. The respondents' average gross business during the past three years has been approximately $300,000.00 per year, and the average number of students enrolled per month during said period was approximately 275.

PAR. 7. Prior to July 1, 1948, respondents Conard E. Green, Leon A. Crouch and Jacob W. Spatz in partnership, under the trade name of American Academy of Applied Science, as described in paragraph 1 hereof, in connection with the solicitation and sale of contracts for courses of study in fingerprinting, by means of advertisements, circular letters, pamphlets, postal cards and other advertising material, and through sales agents, have made numerous statements and representations of which the following are typical:

Identification and Scientific Crime Detection Fields offer unlimited opportunities for Trained Men and Women • • • Investigate our Free "1001" Job Placement Plan.

A Scientific Vocational and Aptitude test is yours Free.

At the present time a large number of established fingerprint bureaus are being enlarged • • • and hundreds of new agencies are in process of formation, but even more are needed.

Salaries are considerably above average • • • and it is among the very few uncrowded vocations.

The training program of the American Academy of Applied Science is selective. Not everyone is eligible • • • Training will be limited to those men and women who by nature, intelligence and disposition show a marked aptitude for this particular profession.

Training will be under direct supervision of Mr. Jacob William Spatz • • • assisted by a corps of experienced and able field representatives and division chiefs.

Thousands will find unusual opportunities in this field that is fascinating, pleasant and filled with possibilities of advancement.

Work is filled with excitement and intrigue. A profession packed with thrills, color, romance.

In addition, the first quotation above was used in one mailing subsequent to January 1, 1948, but has since been discontinued.

PAR. 8. By means of the foregoing representations and others of similar tenor and effect, including statements made by salesmen, respondents represent and imply that the opportunities for employment and advancement in the field of fingerprinting and crime detection are unusual and unlimited; that the demand for trained men is very great and the supply greatly inadequate; that many fingerprint bureaus are being enlarged, many more planned and still more needed; that there is a great variety of positions in said field, suitable for any personality; that salaries are considerably above the average; that the work is pleasant and filled with thrills, excitement and intrigue; that students are selected by respondents on the basis of their aptitude and personality and the training limited to those applicants who can qualify by nature or disposition for said work; that the training is given by a staff of experts and former government employees and identification experts; that the job placement service and aptitude tests are free; that the United States Government is in need of trained fingerprint experts and that respondents' field representatives and division chiefs assist the staff of experts in charge of the training; that fingerprint and photographic dark room equipment is furnished free to the students, and that they will receive resident and laboratory training at the school in addition to the lessons by correspondence.

PAR. 9. The statements and representations hereinabove set out in paragraph 7 and the reasonable implications therein contained are, with two exceptions, either false or exaggerated, and are deceptive or misleading or both. There are few opportunities for employment of respondents' graduates in the field of fingerprinting and crime detection. As a rule, positions for fingerprint experts in law enforcement agencies are filled through promotion of men already in the service of said agencies and who have had some practical training; and while some law enforcement agencies may establish new departments for fingerprinting, such additional or new bureaus are not established to the extent represented by respondents; in fact, many police and sheriff departments prefer to use the facilities of the Federal Bureau of Investigation for the identification of fingerprints. Neither respondents nor their sales agents select students on the basis of their aptitude or personality, nor are any scientific or vocational aptitude tests given to prospective purchasers of said course; in fact, respondents furnish leads to their salesmen and accept all persons who enroll. Remuneration in the field of fingerprinting and crime detection is not considerably above the average for comparable work in other vocations and trades. Not all persons are qualified to engage in the work of fingerprinting which requires patience, concentration and a capacity for detail; and in order to become a qualified fingerprint expert, a substantial amount of practical training and experience is necessary. The large majority of persons engaged in the work of fingerprint identification do not come in contact with the dramatic phases of crime detection as described in respondents' advertising literature, but perform their work in a routine and uneventful manner and surroundings. The United States Government does not hire respondents' graduates because of the training received in said course; after having met Civil Service requirements they are trained in the government's own training school. Neither the placement service nor the fingerprinting and photographic equipment are free, but the price thereof is included in the cost of said course. Respondents' salesmen are not division chiefs and field representatives and the use of said terms in connection with the sale of a course in fingerprinting and crime detection tends to create the misleading impression that said salesmen hold some official position or have some professional standing or that respondents' school is a more substantial organization than it is in fact. Respondents do not maintain a large staff or corps of former government experts to teach said subjects; the teaching staff has never exceeded three persons, including the director. All three have held positions as qualified identification experts with the United States Government. The work of the school is done mainly, but not entirely, by correspondence. Students have been privileged at all times to receive personal instruction at school headquarters and frequently have taken advantage of that privilege. Said personal instruction, when given, has been at no extra cost to the student.

PAR. 10. Prior to July 1, 1948, and from July 1, 1948, until September 1948, respondents Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch, for the purpose of collecting their delinquent accounts, have sent out collection letters in the name of Western Adjustment Bureau, thereby representing and implying that said Western Adjustment Bureau was an independent organization engaged in the business of collecting delinquent accounts generally, whereas in fact such Bureau was operated by respondents during the times specified solely for the purpose of collecting their own delinquent accounts, which fact was not disclosed by respondents. Since July 1, 1948, respondent Spatz has not used the name of the Western Adjustment Bureau in connection with his operation as American Academy of Applied Science, and since September 1948 respondents Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch have fully disclosed the fact that Western Adjustment Bureau is operated as a division of Interstate Training Service.

Conclusion. The acts and practices of the respondents, as hereinabove found, are all to the prejudice and injury of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

The complaint in this proceeding also charged (in paragraph 8) that the use by the respondents of the trade name, American Academy of Applied Science, tends to mislead members of the public into the belief that respondents' business is a national, non-profit organization devoted to the investigation and consideration of scientific problems and the advancement of science generally. The stipulations of fact on the basis of which the case is being disposed of do not substantiate this charge. It does appear, however, that respondent Jacob W. Spatz, in support of a motion for dismissal of this allegation and in order to avoid any possible misunderstanding that may otherwise result from the use of the trade name, American Academy of Applied Science, has expressly agreed that henceforth he will not use said name on advertising material, correspondence or courses of instruction, unless there is printed or typed in bold type and in juxtaposition therewith the words "A Correspondence Course", or a substantial equivalent thereof, clearly and fully indicating that the instruction given by respondent Spatz under said name is correspondence instruction. In view of this agreement, paragraph 8 of the complaint is being dismissed.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch, individually and as co-partners trading under the name of Interstate Training Service, or trading under any other trade or partnership name, and their agents, representatives and employees, directly or indirectly, through any corporate or other device, in connection with the sale, offering for sale or distribution of courses of study and instruction in Diesel training and training in heavy equipment and gasoline engines, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from representing, directly or by implication:

1. That students are selected and accepted on the basis of their mechanical aptitude or upon the recommendation of respondents' representatives;

2. That the training in Diesel engine equipment may be completed in one year with one or two hours a day devoted to the study of the course;

3. That respondents work closely with manufacturers, contractors or others in the Diesel engine field;

4. That students, after completion of respondents' course, are qualified to operate, service and repair any Diesel equipment, regardless of size or kind, and are able to compile cost estimates;

5. That students are assured or guaranteed employment after completion of respondents' course;

6. That the placement, consultation and revision services and students' supplies furnished by respondents are free;

7. That the opportunities for employment, improvement and advancement in the field of Diesel equipment operation are unusual and unlimited, for those who take respondents' course without many years of previous practical experience in that field;

8. That students receive resident shop or on-the-job training;

9. That respondents' salesmen are vocational advisors or field engineers, or that they are otherwise qualified to give prospective students aptitude tests;

10. That the Western Adjustment Bureau, or any other name used by respondents, or any of them, for the purpose of collecting money due them, is a separate or independent organization.

It is further ordered, That Conard E. Green, Leon A. Crouch and Jacob W. Spatz, individually or as partners, doing business under the name of the American Academy of Applied Science, or any other trade or partnership name, and their agents, representatives and employees, directly or indirectly, through any corporate or other device, in connection with the sale, offering for sale, or distribution of courses of study and instruction in fingerprinting or fingerprinting science, in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, do forthwith cease and desist from representing, directly or by implication:

1. That the opportunities for employment and advancement in the field of fingerprinting and crime detection are unusual and unlimited for those who take respondents' course;

2. That the demand for men trained merely in courses such as respondents is great and the supply inadequate;

3. That many fingerprint bureaus are being enlarged and many more planned;

4. That there is a position to suit every preference in the fingerprinting field or something which will appeal to every aptitude;

5. That salaries in the fingerprinting field are considerably above the average;

6. That fingerprinting work is filled with excitement and intrigue or packed with thrills, color, or romance;

7. That students are selected by respondents on the basis of aptitude and personality, or that the training is limited to those applicants who can qualify by nature or disposition for the work;

8. That the placement service or the equipment furnished by respondents is free to those taking the course;

9. That the United States Government is in need of those who take respondents' course;

10. That respondents employ "field representatives" or "division chiefs" other than salesmen.

It is further ordered, That the complaint herein be, and it hereby is, dismissed as to respondent Interstate Training Service, an Oregon corporation, and as to respondents Conard E. Green and Leon A. Crouch solely in their capacities as officers of said corporation.

It is further ordered, That paragraph 8 of said complaint be, and it hereby is, dismissed as to all of the respondents.

It is further ordered, That Conard E. Green, Leon A. Crouch and Jacob Spatz shall, within sixty (60) days after service upon them of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing setting forth in detail the manner and form in which they have complied with this order.

Issued: December 5, 1950.

PART 3—DIGEST OF CEASE AND DESIST ORDERS

LEO F. STEADLE

Subpart—Advertising falsely or misleadingly: § 3.170 Qualities or properties of product or service. In connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution in commerce, of respondent's automotive device designated as "Kingpin Air Valve", or any other substantially similar device, whether sold under the same name or any other name, representing, directly or by implication, that the use of said device, (a) will cause gasoline engines to start quicker or easier; (b) will save gasoline, increase gasoline mileage, or decrease oil consumption; (c) will increase engine power or result in smoother engine performance; (d) will reduce the formation of carbon in engines, or produce higher motor efficiency; (e) will improve the fuel-air ratio, vacuum pressure, or vaporization of gasoline; or, (f) will eliminate or lessen the rocking or rolling of an engine; prohibited.

(Sec. 6, 38 Stat. 722; 15 U. S. C. 46. Interprets or applies sec. 5, 38 Stat. 719, as amended; 15 U. S. C. 45) [Cease and desist order, Leo F. Steadle, Docket 5789, Dec. 5, 1950]

Pursuant to the provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act the Federal Trade Commission, on June 27, 1950, issued and subsequently served its complaint in this proceeding upon the respondent, Leo F. Steadle, an individual, charging him with the use of unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce in violation of the provisions of said act. After the issuance of said complaint and the filing of respondent's answer thereto, the trial examiner granted a motion of the respondent for permission to withdraw his answer and to substitute therefor an answer admitting all the material allegations of fact set forth in said complaint and waiving all intervening procedure and further hearing as to said facts, which substitute answer was duly received and filed in the office of the Commission. On September 20, 1950, the trial examiner filed his initial decision, which was served on the respondent on September 30, 1950.

The Commission, having reason to believe that the initial decision was deficient in certain material respects, subsequently placed this case on its own docket for review, and on October 24, 1950, it issued, and thereafter served upon the parties, its order affording the respondent an opportunity to show cause why said initial decision should not be altered in the manner and to the extent shown in a tentative decision of the Commission attached to said order. Respondents not having appeared in response to the leave to show cause, this proceeding regularly came on for final consideration by the Commission upon the record herein on review; and the Commission, having duly considered the matter and being now fully advised in the premises, finds that this proceeding is in the interest of the public and makes the following findings as to the facts, conclusion drawn therefrom, and order, the same to be in lieu of the initial decision of the trial examiner.

FINDINGS AS TO THE FACTS

PARAGRAPH 1. Respondent Leo F. Steadle is an individual, with his principal place of business at 247 Butler Street, Kingston, Pennsylvania.

PAR. 2. Respondent is now and for more than one year last past has been engaged in the sale and distribution of a device designated as "Kingpin Air Valve" to be used as a replacement for the standard or conventional type of idling pin in the carburetors of gasoline motors.

In the course and conduct of his business the respondent caused said device, when sold, to be transported from his place of business in the State of Pennsylvania to the purchasers thereof located in various other States of the United States. Respondent maintains, and at all times mentioned herein has maintained, a course of trade in said device in commerce among and between the various States of the United States. His volume of business in said device has been substantial.

PAR. 3. In the course and conduct of his business and for the purpose of inducing the purchase of his said device in commerce, respondent has made and has authorized the making of certain statements and representations regarding said device by means of circulars and advertisements inserted in newspapers and periodicals circulated generally among the purchasing public. Typical representations are as follows:

Quicker starts in coldest weather.
Gas Saving Invention.
Oil goes a longer way.
Easier Starting.
More Power.
Smoother Running.
Greater Gasoline Mileage.
Less Carbon Formation • • •

Dynamometer Tests prove that, at all motor speeds, the Kingpin increases horse power and motor efficiency. Reason—a finer ratio of gasoline and air means sharper explosion, therefore, more power.

Gas Analyzer Tests prove that the increased Fuel-Air ratio steps up motor efficiency. Reason, the improved ratio afforded by Kingpin reduces waste occasioned by imperfectly mixed gasoline.

Vacuum Gauge Tests prove that Kingpin increases vacuum pressure.

Rocking and Rolling is eliminated by the Kingpin, thus providing a more smoothly idling motor.

PAR. 4. Through the use of the foregoing statements and representations, and others of the same import but not specifically set out herein, respondent represented that the use of his said device causes gasoline engines to start easier and quicker; that it increases gasoline mileage, saves gasoline, decreases oil consumption, increases engine power, results in smoother engine performance, reduces formation of carbon in an engine, results in higher motor efficiency, improves the air-gas ratio, results in increased vacuum pressure, better vaporization of gasoline, and eliminates rocking and rolling of engines.

PAR. 5. The foregoing representations are false, misleading, and deceptive. In truth and in fact, the use of respondent's said device will not cause gasoline engines to start quicker or easier. Its use will not increase gasoline mileage, save gasoline or decrease oil consumption. Engine power will not be increased by the use of the device, nor will smoother engine performance result therefrom. It will not reduce the formation of carbon in the engine or produce higher motor efficiency. No improvement in the air-gas ratio, vacuum pressure, or vaporization of gasoline will result from its use. It will not eliminate or lessen the rocking and rolling of an engine.

PAR. 6. The use by the respondent of the foregoing false, deception, and misleading statements and representations disseminated as aforesaid in connection with the offering for sale and sale of his device in commerce has had and now has the capacity and tendency to and does mislead and deceive a substantial portion of the purchasing public into the erroneous and mistaken belief that such statements and representations are true and into the purchase of substantial quantities of such device in commerce, because of such erroneous and mistaken belief.

Conclusion. The acts and practices of the respondent as hereinabove set out are all to the prejudice of the public and constitute unfair and deceptive acts and practices in commerce within the intent and meaning of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

ORDER TO CEASE AND DESIST

It is ordered, That the respondent, Leo F. Steadle, an individual, and his agents, representatives, and employees directly or through any corporate or other device, in connection with the offering for sale, sale, and distribution in commerce, as "commerce" is defined in the Federal Trade Commission Act, of his automotive device designated as "Kingpin Air Valve", or any other substantially similar device, whether sold under the same name or any other name, do forthwith cease and desist from representing, directly or by implication, that the use of said device:

(a) Will cause gasoline engines to start quicker or easier.

(b) Will save gasoline, increase gasoline mileage, or decrease oil consumption.

(c) Will increase engine power or result in smoother engine performance.

(d) Will reduce the formation of carbon in engines, or produce higher motor efficiency.

(e) Will improve the fuel-air ratio, vacuum pressure, or vaporization of gasoline.

(f) Will eliminate or lessen the rocking or rolling of an engine.

It is further ordered, That the respondent shall, within sixty (60) days after service upon him of this order, file with the Commission a report in writing, setting forth in detail the manner and form in which he has complied with this order.

Issued: December 5, 1950.

By the Commission.

TITLE 21—FOOD AND DRUGS

Chapter I—Food and Drug Administration, Federal Security Agency

PART 3—STATEMENTS OF GENERAL POLICY OR INTERPRETATION

SALT SUBSTITUTES

Pursuant to section 3 of the Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237, 238), the following statement of policy is issued:

§ 3.20 Status of salt substitutes under the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act. Under date of March 8, 1949, the Federal Security Agency announced (14 F. R. 1033) that it would regard each salt substitute as a new drug within the meaning of section 201 (p) of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act, and that interstate distribution of each salt substitute should be discontinued until a new-drug application had been filed and become effective. Substantial information concerning the safety of many of the ingredients used in salt substitutes has been developed and published since the announcement was made. It is now possible to evaluate the safety of many individual salt substitutes and to determine whether they are new drugs requiring effective applications prior to distribution in interstate commerce.

The Federal Security Agency therefore no longer regards all salt substitutes as new drugs. Upon request, the Agency will express its opinion as to whether a new-drug application is necessary for any particular product if complete information concerning its composition and proposed labeling is submitted.

TITLE 24—HOUSING AND HOUSING CREDIT

Chapter VIII—Office of Housing Expediter

[Controlled Housing Rent Reg., Amdt. 351]

[Controlled Housing Rent Reg., Atlantic County Defense-Rental Area, Amdt. 31]

PART 825—RENT REGULATIONS UNDER THE HOUSING AND RENT ACT OF 1947, AS AMENDED

MAXIMUM RENTS; MAXIMUM RENTS IN ATLANTIC COUNTY

Amendment 351 to the Controlled Housing Rent Regulation (§§ 825.1 to 825.12) and Amendment 31 to the Controlled Housing Rent Regulation for the Atlantic County Defense-Rental Area (§§ 825.61 to 825.72). Said rent regulations are hereby amended in the following respects:

1. Paragraph (e) of § 825.4 is hereby changed to read as follows:

§ 825.4 Maximum rents. • • •

(e) Increase or decrease in space on or after April 1, 1948. Where housing accommodations are changed on or after April 1, 1948, by a substantial increase or decrease in dwelling space, the maximum rent for the housing accommodations resulting from such change shall be the first rent charged after such change. The landlord shall, within 30 days after renting said accommodations, file a proper registration statement in the area office in accordance with the provisions of § 825.7. The Expediter may order a decrease in the maximum rent as provided in §825.5 (c) (1) and (6).

If the landlord fails to file a proper registration statement within the time specified, the rent received for any rental period commencing on or after the date of the first renting shall be received, subject to refund to the tenant of any amount in excess of the maximum rent which may later be fixed by an order under § 825.5 (c) (1) or (6). Such amount shall be refunded to the tenant within 30 days after the date of the issuance of the order unless the refund is stayed in accordance with the provisions of Revised Rent Procedural Regulation 1 or Rent Procedural Regulation 2 (Part 840 of this chapter). If the Expediter finds that the landlord was not at fault in failing to file a proper registration statement within the time specified, the order under § 825.5 (c) may relieve the landlord of the duty to refund. The landlord shall have the duty to refund only if the order under § 825.5 (c) is issued in a proceeding commenced by the Expediter within 3 months after the date of filing of such registration statement.

2. Paragraph (e) of § 825.64 is changed in the same manner except that wherever reference is made to §§ 825.1 to 825.12 or any designated portion thereof the reference shall be to §§ 825.61 to 825.72 or the similarly designated portions thereof.

This amendment shall become effective February 16, 1951.

Issued this 16th day of February 1951.

M-29—HORSEHIDE FRONTS AND DEERSKINS

This order is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the authority granted by section 101 of the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations. In the formulation of this amendment, however, consultation with industry representatives has been rendered impracticable due to the necessity for immediate action.

This amendment redesignates §§ 76.1 to 76.10 to be sections 1 to 10 respectively, amends section 6, and changes the word "part" to "order" wherever it appears.

M-29 as amended reads as follows:

Sec.
1. What this order does.
2. Definitions.
3. Restrictions on tanning of horsehide fronts.
4. Restrictions on tanning or dressing of deerskins.
5. Restrictions on sale and use of horsehide front leather and deerskin leather.
6. Exception.
7. Adjustments and exceptions.
8. Records, audit, inspection and reports.
9. Communications.
10. Violations.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 10 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order applies to tanners of horsehide fronts, to tanners and dressers of deerskins, and to persons who sell and commercially use leather made from these hides and skins. In view of the fact that horsehide fronts and deerskins are in extremely short supply, it is essential that the leather produced therefrom be limited in so far as possible to DO rated orders. This order prohibits the tanning of horsehide fronts and the dressing or tanning of deerskins except for the purpose of producing military leather if such skins are suitable for the production of military leather. It also forbids any person to sell, deliver, accept delivery of, or use commercially leather made from horsehide fronts or deerskins for other than DO rated orders if such leather is capable of being used to fill such orders.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Tanner" or "dresser" means a person engaged in the business of tanning, dressing, or similarly processing hides or skins.

(c) "Converter" means a person engaged in the business of causing hides or skins to be tanned or dressed for his account in any tannery not owned or controlled by him.

(d) "Horsehide front" means the forepart of the hide or skin of a horse, colt, mule, ass, donkey, or pony, commercially known in the trade as a "front", whether or not still attached to other parts of the hide or skin.

(e) "Deerskin" means the skin of any domestic or foreign deer, and includes the skin of the elk, moose, and caribou.

(f) "Military leather" means leather meeting any military specifications in force at the time.

(g) "DO rated order" means an order for leather bearing a DO rating issued pursuant to NPA Reg. 2.

(h) "NPA" means National Production Authority in the Department of Commerce.

SEC. 3. Restrictions on tanning of horsehide fronts. Unless specifically directed by NPA, no tanner shall put into process or continue to process, and no converter shall cause to be put into process, any horsehide front except for the purpose of processing it into military leather: Provided, however, That this restriction shall not apply to any horsehide front which is not capable of being processed into military leather.

SEC. 4. Restrictions on tanning or dressing of deerskins. Unless specifically directed by NPA, no tanner or dresser shall put into process, or continue to process, and no converter shall cause to be put into process, any deerskin except for the purpose of processing it into military leather: Provided, however, That this restriction shall not apply to any deerskin which is not capable of being processed into military leather.

SEC. 5. Restrictions on sale and use of horsehide front leather and deerskin leather. Unless specifically directed by NPA, no person shall sell, deliver, accept delivery of or incorporate into any product for commercial purpose, except for DO rated orders, any horsehide front leather or deerskin leather suitable for military leather.

SEC. 6. Exceptions. This order shall not prohibit the completion of the production and delivery of materials or products containing horsehide front leather or deerskin leather in any form previously ordered and accepted, which by reason of the condition or nature of the materials or products cannot without excessive loss of yield be used in connection with DO rated orders. The restrictions of sections 4 and 5 shall not apply to any deerskin the owner of which causes it to be processed or incorporated into any product for use by him personally or as a gift.

SEC. 7. Adjustments and exceptions. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file with NPA a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that such provision works an exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry or that its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment which claim that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each such request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts, the nature of the relief sought, and the justification therefor.

SEC. 8. Records, audit, inspection and reports. (a) Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least two years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

(b) All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of NPA.

(c) Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such reports to NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act (Pub. Law 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

SEC. 9. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref. M–29.

SEC. 10. Violations. Any person who willfully violates any provision of this order or any other order or regulation of NPA or willfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against such person to suspend his privileges of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This order as amended shall take effect on February 19, 1951.

Administrator.

M–4—CONSTRUCTION

This order as amended is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense, and is issued pursuant to authority granted by section 101 of the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations. However, in the issuance of this amendment, consultation with industry representatives has been rendered impracticable due to the necessity of immediate action.

This amendment amends section 5 (b) of this order.

As amended, this order reads as follows:

15. List A—Prohibited construction.
16. List B—Construction where NPA authorization is required.

AUTHORITY: Section 1 to 16 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interprets or applies sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong., sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105. Sec. 2, E. O. 10200, Jan. 3, 1951, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. In order to further the purposes of the Defense Production Act of 1950 by conserving critical materials and services needed for the defense program, this order prohibits the commencement of construction of certain types of buildings, structures and projects unless specific exception is made, or authorization issued, by the National Production Authority. The construction prohibited generally does not further the defense effort, either directly or indirectly, and does not increase the Nation's production capacity for defense. The order allows, within specified limits, small construction jobs, and necessary maintenance and repair of buildings, structures or projects, and also permits, under specified circumstances, the restoration of buildings, structures, or projects in the event of a disaster, act of God, or an act of war.

SEC. 2. Policy of the National Production Authority. In the event that increasing shortages clearly indicate the necessity for such action, in the national interest, the National Production Authority may further limit the commencement of construction of additional types of buildings, structures or projects which do not support the defense effort, or increase the Nation's production capacity for defense.

SEC. 3. Definitions. For the purpose of this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons, and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Construction" means the erection of any building, structure, or project, or addition or extension thereto, or alteration thereof, through the incorporation-in-place on the site of materials which are to be an integral and permanent part of the building, structure or project.

(c) (1) "Commence construction" means to incorporate into a building, structure or project, a substantial quantity of materials which are to be an integral and permanent part of such building, structure, or project (for example, the pouring or placing of footings or other foundations).

(2) The following activities do not constitute commencing construction: Demolition of buildings; tearing out partitions; site preparation; erecting temporary fences or construction barricades, work sheds, and shanties; bringing utilities to the site; fabrication or processing of building materials, building equipment, or personal property to be installed.

(d) "Construction cost" means the total expense for building materials, building equipment, labor and services used in the construction of the particular building, structure or project, by whomever spent; but does not include the installed cost of personal property.

(e) "Consumer goods" means articles or commodities that directly satisfy human wants or desires, and which are capable of use without further processing (for example, clothing, food, furniture, floor covering, household appliances, motor vehicles, etc.). They are distinguished from capital goods (for example, dynamos, industrial ovens, generators, etc.). They are distinguished also from production goods that satisfy wants only indirectly as factors in the production of other articles or commodities (for example, machine tools, heavy duty presses, etc.).

(f) "Damage restoration" means restoring to substantially the same size and condition on the same site, any building, structure or project which has been damaged by storm, fire, flood, or other disaster, or by act of God, or act of war.

(g) "Maintenance and repair" means such work as is necessary to keep a building, structure, or project in sound working condition or to rehabilitate a building, structure, or project or any portion thereof, when the same has been rendered unsafe or unfit for service by wear and tear, or other similar causes. The term does not include any building operation or job where substantial structural alterations or changes in design are made.

(h) "Personal property" means property used in connection with, but which does not become a part of, the building, structure, or project in the sense of its becoming a permanent part of the real property upon which it is located or in which it is installed.

(i) "Office building" means any building the principal use of which is to provide office space or office facilities, regardless of whether it is designed for the exclusive or partial use of its owner or is to be used commercially and rented to prospective tenants, including buildings for use by government agencies. The size of the building is not a determinative factor in deciding whether a building is an office building as the term includes both one-story and multi-storied structures; but the term does not include a private residence with incidental office space located therein for the use of the occupant.

SEC. 4. Prohibited construction. (a) (1) Except as permitted in section 5, or pursuant to an adjustment or exception granted under section 11, after midnight October 26, 1950, no person shall commence construction of any building, structure, or project to be used for, or in connection with, any of the purposes specified, as set forth in section 15.

(2) Since October 26, 1950, the National Production Authority has issued exceptions to permit the commencement of construction of specific buildings, structures, or projects of the type prohibited by section 15. All such exceptions granted prior to January 13, 1951, will cease to be effective 120 days after the date of issuance, unless construction has been commenced within that time; and construction of any such building, structure, or project may not be commenced thereafter without a further authorization from the National Production Authority.

(b) (1) After midnight, January 13, 1951, no person shall commence construction of any building, structure, or project to be used for, or in connection with, any of the purposes specified, as set forth in section 16, until a specific authorization therefor has been issued by the National Production Authority. As a general rule, no authorization will be issued prior to February 15, 1951. However, in emergency situations, an authorization may be issued by the National Production Authority prior to that date. (The conditions which must exist before an authorization will be issued are set forth in section 6.)

(2) Further, in matters involving unreasonable hardship, or when required in the interest of the national defense, the National Production Authority may grant an exception from this order at any time, pursuant to section 11, with respect to types of construction specified in section 16.

SEC. 5. Exemptions. The following construction in connection with the buildings, structures, or projects to be used in connection with any of the purposes specified in sections 15 and 16 is exempted from this order:

(a) Maintenance and repair on any building, structure, or project.

(b) Small jobs of new construction or in connection with any such building, structure, or project including, but not limited to, alterations, additions, improvement, and modernization, provided the work does not require the use of partitions made in whole or part of metal, where the cost of all such work shall not exceed:

(1) In the case of alterations, additions, improvement, or modernization of hotels, office buildings, and loft buildings, 25 cents per square foot of occupied space for any consecutive twelve-month period. (In computing this cost, both construction cost and all other expenses or charges incident to the work shall be taken into consideration.)

(2) In the case of any type of construction of all other buildings, structures, or projects specified in section 15 (List A) and section 16 (List B), $5,000 for any consecutive twelve-month period. (In computing this cost, only construction cost shall be considered.)

(c) Reconstruction of any such building, structure, or project following a fire, flood, storm, disaster, act of God, or act of war, which occurred on or after July 29, 1950.

(d) Construction by, or for the account of, the Department of Defense or the Atomic Energy Commission.

(e) Buildings, structures or projects for radio broadcasting and television broadcasting.

(f) Printing establishments where the primary use of the building is the publication of a newspaper; or printing establishments which are operated by a publishing company primarily for the publication of books and periodicals.

SEC. 6. Authorization for certain construction. (a) Any person desiring to erect a building, structure, or project to be used for, or in connection with, any of the purposes specified, as set forth in section 16, may apply for a National Production Authority authorization to commence such construction. The application shall be in such form as may be prescribed by the National Production Authority.

(b) Authorization under this section will be granted if the National Production Authority is satisfied that the desired construction conforms to the following requirements:

(1) It furthers the defense effort by providing facilities of the type specified in section 16 in areas adjacent to military establishments or defense plants and projects, which construction the National Production Authority considers necessary to furnish or to supplement facilities in connection with the activities of the Defense Production Administration, the Department of Defense or the Atomic Energy Commission, including their programs for increasing production capacity; or

(2) It is essential to maintenance of public health, safety or welfare.

(c) Further, with respect to an application for authorization to construct a facility not directly related to the defense effort, the NPA will consider the type and quantity of materials on hand, and needed, for the facility; and the effect on the community at large if the authorization were denied.

SEC. 7. Multiple use buildings, structures, or projects. Where a building, structure, or project to be constructed is designed for a number of different uses and occupants, no portion thereof shall be constructed for use or occupancy in connection with any of the purposes specified in sections 15 or 16 where the construction cost apportionable to such use or occupancy will exceed the small job exemption provided for in section 5 (b).

SEC. 8. Scope of this order. This order shall apply to construction in the 48 States, the District of Columbia, and in the territories and insular possessions of the United States.

SEC. 9. Prohibited deliveries. No person shall accept an order for, sell, deliver, or cause to be delivered, material, equipment, or supplies which he knows, or has reason to believe, will be used in violation of the provisions of this order.

SEC. 10. Defense against claims for damages. No person shall be held liable for damages or penalties for any default under contract or order which shall result directly or indirectly from compliance with any regulation or order of the National Production Authority (including any direction, directive or other instruction), notwithstanding that any such regulation or order shall thereafter be declared by a judicial or other competent authority to be invalid.

SEC. 11. Applications for adjustment or exception. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that:

(a) Such provision works an unreasonable hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade, industry, or other relative position; or that enforcement of such provision against him would not be in the interest of the national defense. [NPA Order M-12 as Amended Feb. 19, 1951]

M-12—USE OF COPPER AND COPPER-BASE ALLOYS

This amendment to NPA Order M-12 is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order, there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations. However, consultation with representatives of all trades and industries affected in advance of the issuance of this order has been rendered impracticable due to the necessity for immediate action and because the order affects a large number of different trades and industries.

This amendment affects NPA Order M-12, as previously amended as follows: It redesignates §§ 29.21 through 29.30 as sections 1 through 10, respectively; it adds new sections 11 and 17; and redesignates §§ 29.31 through 29.35 as sections 12 through 16, respectively. It revises sections 4, 5, 6, and 7 to read as shown herewith. As so amended, NPA Order M-12 reads as follows:

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 17 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105.

SECTION 1. What this order does. The purpose of this order is to describe how the copper remaining after allowing for the requirements of national defense may be distributed and used in the civilian economy. It is the policy of the National Production Authority that copper and articles made of copper, not required to fill rated orders, shall be distributed equitably through normal channels of distribution, and that due regard shall be given by suppliers to the needs of new and small business. It is the intent of this order that other materials which are not in short supply shall be substituted for copper and copper-base alloy wherever possible.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association or any other organized group of persons and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

(b) "Base period" means the six-months period ending June 30, 1950.

(c) "Manufacture" means to put into process, machine, incorporate into products, fabricate or otherwise alter the forms and products of copper defined in section 3 by physical or chemical means, and includes the use of copper in plating.

(d) "Maintenance" means the minimum upkeep necessary to continue a building, machine, piece of equipment or facility in sound working condition, and "repair" means the restoration of a building, machine, piece of equipment or facility to sound working condition when the same has been rendered unsafe or unfit for service by wear and tear, damage, failure of parts or the like: Provided, however, Neither maintenance nor repair includes the improvement of any such item with materials of a better kind, quality or design.

(e) "Operating supplies" means any copper or copper-base alloy forms or products listed in section 3 which are normally carried by a person as operating supplies according to established accounting practice and are not included in his finished product, except that materials included in such product which are normally chargeable to operating expense may be treated as operating supplies.

SEC. 3. Copper forms and products to which this order applies. This order applies to the following forms and products of copper: Copper, copper-base alloy, brass mill products, copper wire mill products, and foundry copper products and copper-base alloy products. For the purpose of this order, these items are defined as follows:

(a) "Copper" means unalloyed copper. (It includes electrolytic copper, fire refined copper and all unalloyed copper in any form including scrap.)

(b) "Copper-base alloy" means any alloy in the composition of which the percentage of copper metal by weight equals or exceeds 40 percent of the total weight of the alloy. (It shall include fired and demilitarized cartridge and artillery cases, and all copper-base alloy, as specified above, in any form including scrap.) It does not include alloyed gold produced in accordance with U. S. Commercial standard CS67-38.

(c) "Brass mill product" means sheet, including strip and plate; rod, including bars, forgings (rough as forged), and extruded shapes; wire; or tube, including pipe; made from copper or copper-base alloy. This does not include copper wire mill products.

(d) "Copper wire mill product" means bare wire, insulated wire and cable whatever the outer protective coverings may be, and uninsulated wire and cables, where the conductors are made from copper, copper-base alloy, or copper clad steel containing over 20 percent copper by weight. All copper wire mill products should be measured in terms of pounds of copper content.

(e) "Foundry products" means cast copper and copper-base alloy shapes or forms suitable for ultimate use without remelting, rolling, drawing, extruding or forging. (Includes the removal of gates, risers and sprues, and sandblasting, tumbling, or dipping, but excludes any further machining or processing.)

SEC. 4. Application of order. Subject to the exemptions stated in section 9, this order applies to all persons who produce brass mill products, copper wire mill products or foundry products as listed in section 3, or who use any of the forms and products of copper defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) of section 3 for the purpose of manufacture, use in installation or construction, or for maintenance, repair or operating supplies. This order also contains limitations on the use of such copper forms and products in the manufacture or assembly of certain items. This order does not apply to persons who use copper or copper-base alloy in the production of other metals or metal alloys.

SEC. 5. Production of brass mill products, copper wire mill products and foundry products. Subject to the exemptions stated in section 9 or unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority:

	Percent

February, 1951	85
March, 1951	80

The production of brass mill products and copper wire mill products, pursuant to a valid toll or conversion agreement or other arrangement whereby title to the material to be processed remains vested in the person who delivers it, is permitted in addition to the production permitted by this paragraph. In determining average monthly production during the base period, the brass mill products and copper wire mill products so produced shall not be included in the base period production of the brass mill or wire mill. Nothing contained in this paragraph shall affect the restrictions on toll and other similar agreements contained in NPA Order M-16.

(b) During the calendar quarter commencing on January 1, 1951, no person shall produce a total quantity by weight of foundry products in excess of 100 percent of this average quarterly production of foundry products during the base period.

SEC. 6. Use of copper forms and products. Subject to the exemptions stated in section 9, or unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority, no person shall use in manufacture, installation or construction:

(a) During December 1950, a total quantity by weight of the forms and products of copper defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) of section 3 in excess of 100 percent of his average monthly use of such material in October and November 1950.

(c) During the calendar quarter commencing on January 1, 1951, a total quantity by weight of foundry products in excess of 100 percent of his average quarterly use of such products during the base period: Provided, however, That in cases where a foundry product in the form of a casting is owned by one person and machined pursuant to a contractual agreement by another person, it shall be considered that the owner used the casting in manufacture.

SEC. 7. Prohibited uses of copper. (a) Commencing on March 1, 1951, no person shall use copper in the forms and products defined in section 3, or any component part made therefrom, in the manufacture or assembly of any item included in attached List A, except as permitted therein; and no person shall use in the manufacture or assembly of any item, whether or not included in List A, a greater quantity or better grade of such materials than is necessary for functional or operational purposes, or use such materials solely for decorative or ornamental purposes. However, these prohibitions shall not apply to such use of: (1) Any such copper forms and products, or component parts made therefrom, on or after March 1, 1951, if such materials were contained in such person's inventory on said date and are wholly unsuitable for use in the manufacture or assembly by such person of any item not included in List A; or (2) any such materials covered by an order placed with a producer and included in the producer's schedule for February 1951, which are delivered to such person at his plant prior to April 1, 1951, to the extent that such materials are wholly unsuitable for use in manufacture or assembly by such person of any item not included in List A. Every person who relies on the provisions of the next preceding sentence shall prepare a detailed record showing: (A) The quantities of such copper forms and products, and component parts made therefrom, which were contained in his inventory on the first days of December 1950, and of January, February and March 1951, and which were wholly unsuitable for use in his manufacture or assembly of any item not included in List A; and (B) the quantities of such materials wholly unsuitable for such use which were delivered to him on or after March 1, 1951, the names and addresses of the suppliers thereof, and the dates of the orders and acceptances covering such materials together with the applicable mill schedule. Such record shall be retained for at least two years and shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(b) Commencing on April 1, 1951, no person shall use copper in the forms and products defined in section 3, or any component part made therefrom, in the manufacture or assembly of any item included in attached List B, except as permitted therein. However, this prohibition shall not apply to such use of: (1) Any such copper forms and products, or component parts made therefrom, on or after April 1, 1951, if such materials were contained in such person's inventory on said date and are wholly unsuitable for use in the manufacture or assembly by such person of any item not included in List A or List B; or (2) any such materials that have been covered by any order placed with a producer which were included in the producer's schedule for March 1951, and are delivered to such person at his plant prior to May 1, 1951, to the extent that such materials are wholly unsuitable for use in manufacture or assembly by such person of any item not included in List A or List B. Every person who relies on the provisions of the next preceding sentence shall prepare a detailed record showing: (A) The quantities of such copper forms and products, and component parts made therefrom, which were contained in his inventory on the first days of January, February, March and April 1951, and which were wholly unsuitable for use in his manufacture or assembly of any item not included in List B; and (B) the quantities of such materials wholly unsuitable for such use which were delivered to him on or after April 1, 1951, the names and addresses of the suppliers thereof, and the dates of the orders and acceptances covering such materials, together with the applicable mill schedule. Such record shall be retained for at least two years and shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(c) Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, copper or copper-base alloy may be used: (1) For plating any item included in List A or List B, or any component part thereof, where such plating is an undercoat for chromium, nickel, gold or silver; or (2) for brazing any item, or component part thereof, included in List A or List B.

(d) During February 1951, no person shall use in the manufacture or assembly of the items included in attached List A a total quantity by weight of the copper forms or products defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c) and (d) of section 3, or any component part made therefrom, in excess of 85 percent, or of the foundry products defined in paragraph (e) of said section, or any component part made therefrom, in excess of 100 percent, of his average monthly use of such materials for such purposes during the base period. During March 1951, the same limitations shall apply to the manufacture or assembly of the items included in attached List B, except that the percentage limitation as to the copper forms and products defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c) and (d) of section 3 shall be 80 percent instead of 85 percent. To the extent that manufacture or assembly of the items on attached List A or List B is permitted under paragraphs (a) or (b) of this section, the limitations of section 6 shall also apply during March 1951 and each succeeding month.

(e) Commencing on April 1, 1951, no person shall use in construction any brass mill product as such for any item included in List A or List B except as permitted therein.

(f) The following items included in List A or List B shall be exempt from the application of this section if they are used on vessels other than pleasure craft: (1) Furnishings, fittings, and fixtures when located within the sphere of the magnetic compasses; and (2) builders' hardware, building materials and snap hooks where the properties supplied by copper are essential and satisfactory substitutes not available.

(g) The prohibitions of this section apply notwithstanding the provisions of NPA Reg. 2 with respect to the filling of rated orders and are not affected by any of the exemptions stated in section 9: Provided, however, That such provisions of NPA Reg. 2 and paragraphs (a) and (b) of section 9 apply to such items included in attached List A or List B as are specifically designated as being permitted for the use of the Armed Forces of the United States, including the United States Coast Guard.

SEC. 8. Maintenance, repair and operating supplies. Unless specifically directed by the National Production Authority, during the calendar quarter commencing on January 1, 1951, and each calendar quarter thereafter, no person shall use for maintenance, repair and operating supplies a quantity by weight of the forms and products of copper defined in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), (d) and (e) of section 3 in excess of 100 percent of his average quarterly use for such purposes during the base period.

SEC. 9. Exemptions. (a) The production of brass mill, wire mill and foundry products is permitted to fill rated orders, or to meet any mandatory order of the National Production Authority, in addition to the production permitted by the provisions of section 5.

(c) The provisions of sections 5, 6, and 8 do not apply to persons who use less than 1,000 lbs. of the copper forms and products defined in section 3 during any calendar quarter: Provided, however, That persons who by reason of the provisions of section 6 would be permitted to use less than 1,000 lbs. during any calendar quarter, may use during such period a quantity of up 1,000 lbs.

SEC. 10. Inventories. In addition to the provisions of NPA Reg. 1 relating to Inventory Controls, it is considered that a more exact requirement applying to producers of brass mill products, copper wire mill products and foundry products, and to users of the copper forms and products defined in section 3 is necessary.

(a) No person producing brass mill products, copper wire mill products or foundry products may receive or accept delivery of copper or copper-base alloy if his inventory is, or by such receipt would become, in excess of that necessary to meet his deliveries or supply his services on the basis of his scheduled method and rate of operation pursuant to this order during the succeeding 45-day period, or in excess of a "practicable minimum working inventory" (as defined in NPA Reg 1, whichever is less.

(b) No person obtaining copper forms or products defined in section 3 for use in manufacture, installation or construction, or for maintenance, repair or operating supplies, may receive or accept delivery of a quantity of such forms and products if his inventory is, or by such receipt would become, in excess of that necessary to meet his deliveries or supply his services on the basis of his scheduled method and rate of operation pursuant to this order during the succeeding 60-day period, or in excess of a "practicable minimum working inventory" (as defined in NPA Reg. 1), whichever is less.

(c) For the purpose of this section, any copper forms and products defined in section 3, in which minor changes or alterations have been effected, shall be included in inventory. NPA Reg. 1 will apply to all such forms and products except as modified by this section.

> The undersigned, subject to statutory penalties, certifies that acceptance of delivery and use by the undersigned of the copper forms or products herein ordered will not be in violation of NPA Order M–12.

This certification constitutes a representation by the purchaser to the seller and to the National Production Authority that delivery of such copper forms or products may be accepted by the purchaser under this order, and that such materials will not be used by the purchaser in violation of this order.

SEC. 12. Applications for adjustment. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment claiming that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of the public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Producers shall make such application on Form NPAF–11, "Copper and Copper-Base Alloys: Producer's application for Adjustment or Exception." Users shall make application on Form NPAF–12, "Copper Forms and Products: User's Application for Adjustment or Exception." Copies of these forms may be obtained from the nearest Department of Commerce Field Office.

In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

SEC. 16. List A. (See section 7.) The use of the forms and products of copper defined in section 3 and of any component parts made therefrom in the items listed below (excluding repair parts) is prohibited except to the extent permitted in the order or the list: Provided, however, That such material may be used in such items included in the list as are marked with an asterisk in cases where such items are to be used by the Armed Forces of the United States, including the United States Coast Guard.

PROPOSED RULE MAKING

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Production and Marketing Administration

REVISION OF OFFICIAL U. S. STANDARDS FOR GRADES OF LAMB AND MUTTON CARCASSES AND ESTABLISHMENT OF OFFICIAL U. S. STANDARDS FOR GRADES OF SLAUGHTER LAMBS, YEARLINGS, AND SHEEP

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Notice is hereby given in accordance with section 4 (a) of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003 (a)) that the Department of Agriculture is considering a proposed revision of the official United States standards for grades of lamb and mutton carcasses (7 CFR 53.114 et seq.), and the proposed establishment of official United States standards for grades of slaughter lambs, yearlings, and sheep, under the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (60 Stat. 1087, 7 U. S. C. 1621 et seq.) and the item for Market Inspection of Farm Products recurring in the annual appropriation acts for the Department of Agriculture and currently found in the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1951 (Chap. VI, Pub. Law 759—81st Cong.; 7 U. S. C. Sup. 414).

The principal changes proposed in the standards for grades of lamb and mutton carcasses would be as follows:

(1) The existing Prime and Choice grades would be combined and designated as Prime; the existing Good grade would be renamed Choice, which would become the highest grade for which mutton carcasses beyond the yearling stage are eligible; the top two-thirds of the existing Commercial grade would be designated as Good; the bottom one-third of the existing Commercial grade, plus the top two-thirds of the existing Utility grade would be designated as Utility; and the bottom one-third of the existing Utility grade, combined with the present Cull grade, would be designated as Cull. The existing Commercial grade would be discontinued.

(2) Relevant changes in the specifications would be made to reflect the minimum requirements for the respective grade designations, to clarify the differentiation between lamb, yearling, and mutton carcasses, and to reflect the different grade requirements for varying degrees of maturity.

Other changes of a minor nature would be made for the purpose of facilitating interpretation of the standards.

The proposed standards for slaughter lambs, yearlings, and sheep reflect the same nomenclature and grade ranges as proposed for the respective carcass standards.

To accomplish these changes, the standards for lamb and mutton carcasses and slaughter lambs, yearlings, and sheep would be established to read as follows:

LAMB, YEARLING MUTTON, AND MUTTON CARCASSES

§ 53.114 Differentiation between lamb, yearling mutton, and mutton carcasses. (a) Ovine carcasses are classified as lamb, yearling mutton, or mutton on the basis of characteristics of the bones, general conformation, and characteristics of the flesh.

(b) Lamb carcasses always have break joints on their front shanks and generally have narrow rib bones, a rather regular contour, and a light red color and fine texture of lean. They also have a considerable amount of red in the ribs and a somewhat smaller amount in the shanks.

(c) Yearling mutton carcasses may have either break joints or "spool" joints on their front shanks and generally have moderately wide rib bones, a slightly irregular contour, and a slightly dark red color and slightly coarse texture of lean. They have only traces of red in the ribs and shanks.

(d) Mutton carcasses always have "spool" joints on their front shanks and generally have wide rib bones, a rather irregular contour, and a dark red color and coarse texture of lean. Ribs and shanks are devoid of red color.

§ 53.115 Application of standards. (a) Lamb, yearling mutton, and mutton carcasses are graded on a composite evaluation of three general grade factors—conformation, finish, and quality. These factors are concerned with the proportions of the various wholesale cuts in the carcass, the proportions of fat, lean and bone, and the quality of the flesh. Carcasses qualifying for any particular grade may vary with respect to their relative development of the three grade factors, and there will be carcasses which qualify for a particular grade, some of whose characteristics may be more nearly typical of another grade. Because it is impractical to describe the nearly limitless numbers of such recognizable combinations of characteristics, the standards for each grade describe only carcasses that have a relatively similar development of conformation, finish, and quality and that are also representative of the lower limits of each grade. Examples of the extent to which superiority in quality and finish may compensate for deficiencies in conformation, and vice versa, are indicated for each grade.

(b) The standards are intended to apply to all ovine carcasses without regard to the apparent sex condition of the animal at time of slaughter. However, carcasses which have thick, heavy necks and shoulders typical of uncastrated males are discounted in grade in accord with the extent to which these characteristics are developed. Such discounts may vary from less than a half-grade in carcasses from young lambs in which such characteristics are barely noticeable to as much as two full grades in carcasses from mature rams in which such characteristics are very pronounced.

(c) The standards provide for grading lamb, yearling mutton, and mutton carcasses on separate standards. Although these appear to be rather narrow age groups, each of them actually represents a rather wide range in degree of maturity because of the rapidity with which ovines mature. Recognition of this variation is made in the standards for grades of lamb carcasses by specifying two different requirements for quality and finish, depending upon the degree of maturity. Although only one requirement for quality and finish is specified in the standards for yearling mutton and mutton carcasses, it should be understood that in these groups, as well as lambs, carcasses which have indications of approaching the minimum or maximum maturity limits for their group will have somewhat less or greater evidences of quality and finish, respectively, than that specified.

§ 53.116 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of lamb carcasses—(a) Prime. (1) Carcasses possessing the minimum qualifications for the Prime grade tend to be compact and blocky and tend to have plump, full legs; wide, thick backs; thick, full, smooth shoulders; and short, thick necks.

(2) Evidences of quality and finish vary markedly with changes in maturity. Carcasses from young lambs that have red, narrow rib bones and red, moist, porous break joints have only moderately abundant kidney and crotch fat but kidneys are completely covered. They have a moderate amount of feathering between the ribs, a small amount of overflow fat over the inside of the ribs adjacent to the backbone, a few fat streakings in the inside flank muscles and a light pink color of lean. The exterior finish is firm and completely obscures the muscles of the back, however, muscles over the tops of the shoulders and outside of the legs may be visible through a thin covering of fat. Flanks are full and firm.

(3) Carcasses from more mature lambs that have slightly wide, moderately red rib bones, moderately red, rather dry and hard break joints, have abundant kidney and crotch fat, extensive and abundant feathering, moderately abundant overflow fat over inside of ribs adjacent to the backbone, numerous streakings of fat in the inside flank muscles, and a dark pink color of lean. The exterior finish is very firm, extends over the entire exterior surface except the lower parts of the legs, obscuring the muscles of the back, tops of the shoulders, and outside of legs. The flanks are very full and firm.

(4) To qualify for the Prime grade a carcass must possess the minimum requirements for quality and finish regardless of the extent that its conformation may exceed the minimum requirements for Prime. However, if a carcass has quality and finish equivalent to at least the average of the Prime grade, its conformation may be equivalent to average Choice and remain elegible for Prime.

(b) Choice. (1) Carcasses possessing the minimum qualifications for the Choice grade are slightly compact with slightly plump, full legs; slightly wide, thick backs; slightly wide, full shoulders; and slightly short, thick necks.

(2) Evidences of quality and finish vary considerably with changes in maturity. Carcasses from young lambs that have red, narrow rib bones and red, moist, porous break joints have slightly abundant kidney and crotch fat but kidneys are slightly exposed, there is a small amount of feathering between the ribs, a few streakings of fat in the inside flank muscles, and only very small quantities of overflow fat over the inside of the ribs adjacent to the backbone. The color of lean is slightly dark pink. The exterior finish is moderately firm. However, the muscles of the back are very slightly visible through a slightly thin fat covering and those over the tops of the shoulders and outside of the legs have only a very thin covering of fat. Flanks are slightly full and firm.

(3) Carcasses from more mature lambs that have slightly wide, moderately red rib bones with moderately red, rather dry and hard break joints, have moderately abundant kidney and crotch fat, slightly abundant feathering, a small amount of overflow fat over the inside of the ribs adjacent to the backbone, a small quantity of fat streakings in the inside flank muscles, and light red color of lean. The external finish is firm and completely obscures the muscles of the back. However, muscles over the top of the shoulders and the outside of the legs are visible through the fat. The flanks are moderately full and firm.

(4) To qualify for the Choice grade a carcass must have the minimum requirements for quality and finish regardless of the extent that conformation may exceed the minimum requirements for Choice. However, if a carcass has quality and finish equivalent to at least the average of the Choice grade, its conformation may be equivalent to average Good and remain eligible for Choice.

(c) Good. (1) Carcasses possessing the minimum qualifications for the Good grade are moderately rangy and slightly angular with slightly thin, tapering legs; slightly narrow, thin backs and shoulders; and moderately long, thin necks.

(2) Evidences of quality and finish vary moderately with changes in maturity. Carcasses from young lambs that have red, narrow rib bones and red, porous break joints have a small amount of kidney and crotch fat and kidneys are only partially covered. There is no feathering between the ribs, no overflow fat over the inside of the ribs and no fat streakings in the inside flank muscles; however, the lean is dark pink in color. The exterior finish is slightly soft and the muscles of the back are plainly visible through a very thin fat covering, and those over the tops of the shoulders and outside of the legs are practically devoid of fat. Flanks are moderately thin and soft.

(3) Carcasses from more mature lambs that have slightly wide, moderately red rib bones and moderately red, rather dry and hard break joints, have slightly abundant kidney and crotch fat with kidneys slightly exposed. There is a slight amount of feathering between the ribs, but no overflow fat over the inside of the ribs adjacent to the backbone, practically no streakings of fat in the inside flank muscles, and a slightly dark red color of lean. The exterior finish is moderately firm. However, the muscles of the back are visible through a thin fat covering, and those over the tops of the shoulders and outside of the legs have only a very thin fat covering. Flanks are slightly thin and soft.

(4) A carcass that has conformation equivalent to at least the average of the Good grade may have quality and finish equivalent to high Utility and remain eligible for the Good grade. Also, a carcass that has quality and finish equivalent to at least the average of the Good grade may have conformation equivalent to high Utility and remain eligible for the Good grade.

(d) Utility. (1) Carcasses possessing the minimum qualifications for the Utility grade are very rangy and angular with thin, slightly concave legs; very narrow, sunken backs; narrow, sharp shoulders; and long, thin necks. Hips and shoulder joints are plainly visible.

(2) Although evidences of quality and finish vary slightly with changes in maturity, the differences are so small as to make their separate descriptions impractical. Carcasses have only a small amount of kidney and crotch fat, and the kidneys are nearly entirely exposed. There is practically no other interior fat, and the lean in the inside flank muscles and between the ribs is dark red in color. External finish is soft and is limited to small deposits over the rump and outside of the shoulders and to thin patches over the back. Flanks are soft and slightly watery.

(3) A carcass that has conformation equivalent to at least the average of the Utility grade may have quality and finish equivalent to high Cull and remain eligible for the Utility grade. Also, a carcass that has quality and finish equivalent to the average of the Utility grade may have conformation equivalent to high Cull and remain eligible for the Utility grade.

(e) Cull. (1) Typical Cull grade carcasses are extremly rangy and angular and extremely thin fleshed throughout. Legs are extremely thin and concave, backs are extremely sunken and thin, shoulders are very thin and sharp, and necks are extremely thin. Hip and shoulder joints, as well as ribs and bones of the spinal column, are clearly outlined. There are practically no interior or exterior fats, and the flesh is soft and watery and very dark red in color.

§ 53.117 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of yearling mutton—(a) Prime. (1) Carcasses possessing the minimum qualifications for the Prime grade are compact and blocky, have plump, full legs; wide, thick backs; wide, full, smooth shoulders; and short, thick necks. They have abundant but not excessive kidney and crotch fat; extensive and abundant feathering; and moderately abundant overflow fat over inside of ribs adjacent to the backbone, numerous streakings of fat in the inside flank muscles, and a light red color of lean. The exterior finish is very firm and uniform and extends over the entire exterior surface except the lower parts of the legs obscuring the muscles of the back, tops of the shoulders, and outside of the legs. The flanks are very full and firm.

(2) To qualify for the Prime grade a carcass must possess the minimum qualifications for quality and finish regardless of the extent that conformation may exceed the minimum requirements for Prime. However, if a carcass has quality and finish equivalent to at least the average of the Prime grade, its conformation may be equivalent to average Choice and remain eligible for the Prime grade.

(b) Choice. (1) Carcasses possessing the minimum requirements for the Choice grade are moderately compact with rather short, plump, full legs; moderately wide, thick backs; moderately wide, full shoulders; and rather short, thick necks. They have moderately abundant kidney and crotch fat, slightly abundant feathering, slightly abundant overflow fat over the inside of the ribs adjacent to the backbone, a small quantity of fat streakings in the inside flank muscles, and a slightly dark red color of lean. The exterior finish is firm and completely obscures the muscles of the back; however, muscles on the top of the shoulders and the outside of the legs are visible through the fat. The flanks are moderately full and firm.

(2) Carcasses which are not eligible for the Prime grade because they have bunchy or irregular distribution of exterior finish or excessive quantities of interior fat are also included in the Choice grade.

(3) To qualify for the Choice grade a carcass must have the minimum requirements for quality and finish regardless of the extent that conformation may exceed the minimum requirements for Choice. However, if a carcass has quality and finish equivalent to at least the average of the Choice grade, its conformation may be equivalent to average Good and remain eligible for Choice.

(c) Good. (1) Carcasses possessing the minimum qualifications for the Good grade are slightly rangy and angular, with slightly thin, tapering legs; slightly narrow, thin backs and shoulders; and slightly long, thin necks. They have slightly abundant kidney and crotch fat, with kidneys slightly exposed. There is a slight amount of feathering between the ribs, only very small quantities of overflow fat over the inside of the ribs adjacent to the backbone, a few streakings of fat in the inside muscles of the flank, and a rather dark red color of lean. The exterior finish is moderately firm; however, the muscles of the back are visible through a thin covering of fat and the tops of the shoulders and outside of the legs have only a very thin fat covering. Flanks are slightly thin and soft.

(2) A carcass which has conformation equivalent to at least the average of the Good grade may have quality and finish equivalent to high Utility and remain eligible for the Good grade. Also, a carcass which has quality and finish equivalent to at least the average of the Good grade may have conformation equivalent to high Utility and remain eligible for the Good grade.

(d) Utility. (1) Carcasses possessing the minimum qualifications for the Utility grade are very rangy and angular with thin, slightly concave legs; very narrow, sunken backs; narrow, sharp shoulders; and long, thin necks. Hips and shoulder joints are plainly visible. They have only a small amount of kidney and crotch fat, and the kidneys are nearly entirely exposed. There is practically no other interior fat and the lean in the flanks and between the ribs is dark red in color. External finish is soft and is limited to small deposits over the rump and outside of the shoulders and to thin patches over the back. Flanks are soft and slightly watery.

(2) A carcass which has conformation equivalent to at least the average of the Utility grade may have quality and finish equivalent to high Cull and remain eligible for the Utility grade. Also, a carcass which has quality and finish equivalent to the average of the Utility grade may have conformation equivalent to high Cull and remain eligible for the Utility grade.

(e) Cull. (1) Typical Cull grade carcasses are extremely rangy and angular and extremely thin fleshed throughout. Legs are extremely thin and concave, backs are extremely sunken and thin, shoulders are very thin and sharp, and necks are extremely thin. Hip and shoulder joints, as well as ribs and bones of the spinal column, are clearly outlined. There are practically no interior or exterior fats and the flesh is soft and watery and very dark red in color.

§ 53.118 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of mutton — (a) Choice. (1) Carcasses possessing the minimum qualifications for the Choice grade are moderately compact, with slightly plump, full legs; wide, thick backs; wide, full shoulders; and slightly short, thick necks. They have abundant kidney and crotch fat, moderately abundant feathering between the ribs, moderately abundant overflow fat over the inside of the ribs adjacent to the backbone, numerous fat streakings in the inside flank muscles, and a dark red color of lean. The external finish is firm and moderately uniform and completely obscures the muscles of back and tops of the shoulders; however, the outsides of the legs are visible through a thin covering of fat. Flanks are moderately full and firm.

(2) To qualify for the Choice grade a carcass must have the minimum requirements for quality and finish regardless of the extent that conformation may exceed the minimum requirements for Choice. However, if a carcass has quality and finish equivalent to at least the average of the Choice grade, its conformation may be equivalent to average Good and remain eligible for Choice.

(b) Good. (1) Carcasses possessing the minimum qualifications for the Good grade are slightly rangy and angular, with slightly thin, tapering legs; have slightly wide but slightly thin-fleshed backs and shoulders; and slightly long, thin necks. Hip and shoulder joints are visible. They have a moderate amount of kidney and crotch fat but kidneys are completely covered. There is a small amount of feathering between the ribs and a slight amount of overflow fat over the inside of the ribs adjacent to the backbone, a few streakings of fat in the inside flank muscles, and a dark red color of lean. The external finish is moderately firm, however, the muscles of the back are slightly visible through a thin fat covering and the tops of the shoulders and outside of the legs have a very thin fat covering. Flanks are slightly thin and soft.

(2) Carcasses which are not eligible for the Choice grade because they have bunchy or irregular distribution of exterior fat or excessive quantities of interior fat are also included in the Good grade.

(3) A carcass which has conformation equivalent to at least the average of the Good grade may have quality and finish equivalent to high Utility and remain eligible for the Good grade. Also, a carcass which has quality and finish equivalent to at least the average of the Good grade may have conformation equivalent to high Utility and remain eligible for the Good grade.

(c) Utility. (1) Carcasses possessing the minimum qualifications for the Utility grade are very rangy and angular, with thin, slightly concave legs; very narrow, sunken backs; narrow, sharp shoulders; and very long, thin necks. Hips and shoulder joints are prominent. They have only a small amount of kidney and crotch fat and kidneys are nearly entirely exposed. There are practically no other interior fats, and the lean in the inside flank muscles and between the ribs is very dark red in color. External finish is soft and is limited to small deposits over the rump and outside of the shoulders and to thin patches over the back. Flanks are soft and slightly watery.

(2) A carcass which has conformation equivalent to at least the average of the Utility grade may have quality and finish equivalent to high Cull and remain eligible for the Utility grade. Also, a carcass which has quality equivalent to the average of the Utility grade may have conformation equivalent to high Cull and remain eligible for the Utility grade.

(d) Cull. (1) Typical Cull grade carcasses are extremely rangy and angular and extremely thin fleshed throughout. Legs are extremely thin and concave, backs are extremely sunken and thin, shoulders are very thin and sharp, and necks are extremely thin. Hip and shoulder joints, as well as ribs and bones of the spinal column, are clearly outlined. There are practically no interior or exterior fats, and the flesh is soft and watery and very dark red in color.

SLAUGHTER LAMBS, YEARLINGS, AND SHEEP

§ 53.130 Market sheep. The official standards for market sheep, developed by the United States Department of Agriculture, provide for segregation according to (a) use as slaughter animals or feeders, (b) class or sex condition, (c) age group, and (d) grade, which is determined by the apparent relative excellence and desirability of the individual for a particular use.

§ 53.131 Slaughter classes and market groups. The classes of slaughter sheep are ram, ewe, and wether; the age groups are lambs, yearling, and sheep. Definitions of the respective classes and age groups are as follows:

(a) Ram. A ram is an uncastrated male ovine.

(b) Ewe. A ewe is a female ovine.

(c) Wether. A male ovine castrated when young and prior to developing the secondary physical characteristics of a ram.

(d) Lamb. A lamb is an immature ovine, usually under 14 months of age, and has not cut its first pair of permanent teeth.

(e) Yearling. A yearling is an ovine between 1 and 2 years of age that has cut its first pair of permanent teeth but has not cut the second pair.

(f) Sheep. The term sheep refers to ovines over 24 months of age that have cut their second pair of permanent teeth.

§ 53.132 Slaughter lamb and sheep grades—(a) Grade factors. The specific grade of slaughter lambs and sheep is determined by an evaluation in terms of factors which influence carcass excellence—conformation, finish, and quality.

(1) Conformation refers to the general body proportions of the animal and to the ratio of meat to bone. While primarily determined by the inherent muscular and skeletal system, it is also influenced by degree of fatness. Excellent conformation in slaughter lambs and sheep is denoted by a compact, wide topped, straight lined, thickly fleshed individual that is deep and full in the twist. Fullness and thickness should be especially evident in the portions of the body producing the more desirable cuts of meat—loin, rack, and legs.

(2) Finish refers to the fatness of the animal. The type, quantity, and distribution of finish of the slaughter animal are very closely associated with the palatability and quality of the meat which it will produce. Thus finish becomes the most important single factor affecting the grade of slaughter lambs and sheep. External finish is evidenced by fullness and the apparent thickness of the fat covering over the back, loin, rump, ribs, and legs. A high degree of desirable finish is evidenced by a thick, firm, smooth layer of fat which is uniformly distributed over the body.

(3) Quality in slaughter lambs and sheep refers largely to the refinement of bone and to the smoothness and symmetry of the body. Quality is also closely associated with carcass yield and the proportion of meat to bone. A high degree of quality in slaughter lambs and sheep is denoted by relatively small bones, meat joints, neatly laid in shoulders and hips, smoothness of fleshing, refined, clean cut features about the head, and fine hair on face and legs.

(b) General principles. (1) The determination of the carcass grade that the slaughter animal will produce requires the exercising of well regulated judgment. Each animal presents a different combination of the grade determining factors. Animals frequently have characteristics associated with two or more grades. Therefore, a composite evaluation of all the inherent physical characteristics is essential for accuracy in determining grade.

(2) The accurate determination of the grade of a slaughter lamb or sheep requires handling in addition to the visual observations. While the length and density of the fleece varies greatly with individuals, the thickness and firmness of the flesh covering of wooled lamb and sheep can only be roughly estimated without handling. The technique used in handling usually varies with the degree of precision in mind as well as the experience of the grader. Experienced graders may find one quick handling satisfactory. This usually consists of placing one open hand over the back and ribs in a simultaneous motion. The thumb extends just over the backbone while the fingers, which are held close together, cover the rib section and pressure is applied very lightly with a slight lateral and forward and backward motion. The generally accepted technique of handling sheep where time permits and especially when noting slight differences between individuals, is to handle forward from the dock to the neck with the open hand, fingers together, laid flat and with a slight lateral motion. Both hands may then be used on each side in a similar manner to determine the fleshing over the shoulders, ribs, and hips. Regardless of the method, considerable experience is necessary in handling lambs or sheep to accurately determine the grade.

(3) The market designation of slaughter lambs and sheep is usually made by classes. However, the standards are intended to apply to all classes. The grade descriptions are considered typical of ewes and wethers while it is recognized that rams, which numerically constitute a minor market class, will have somewhat thicker necks, shoulders, and legs than specified for a given grade.

(4) The descriptions of the physical characteristics of the grades of slaughter lambs and sheep represent the lower limit of each grade. No attempt is made to describe the numerous combinations of grade factors which may meet the minimum requirements for a particular grade. Descriptions are limited largely to animals considered as typical of the lower limits of the grade.

§ 53.133 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of slaughter lambs—(a) Prime. Lambs possessing the minimum requirements for Prime grade tend to be lowset, compact, thickly fleshed, and short of neck. They tend to be wide over the back, loin, and rump. Shoulders and hips are moderately neat and smoothly laid in. The twist is deep and full, and the legs are large and plump. There is a slight fullness or plumpness evident over the crops, loin, and rump which contributes to a well rounded appearance. Relatively young lambs, under 7 months of age tend to have a slightly thick fat covering over the back, ribs, loin, and rump. In handling, the backbone and ribs are slightly discernible. Older, more mature lambs have a moderately thick fat covering over the back, loin, and rump. In handling, the backbone and ribs are not readily discernible. Prime lambs exhibit evidences of high quality. The bones tend to be proportionately small, joints smooth, the finish evenly distributed, and the body trim, smooth, and symmetrical.

(b) Choice. Lambs possessing the minimum requirements for Choice grade are slightly compact, thick fleshed, and slightly short of neck. They are slightly wide over the back, loin, and rump. The shoulders and hips are usually moderately neat and smoothly laid in but may exhibit a slight tendency toward prominence. The twist is slightly deep and full, and the legs slightly thick and plump. Relatively young lambs, under 7 months of age, have a moderately thin fat covering over the back, ribs, loin, and rump. In handling, the backbone and ribs are slightly prominent. Older, more mature lambs tend to have a slightly thick fat covering over the back, ribs, loin, and rump. In handling, the backbone and ribs are slightly discernible. Choice lambs usually present a moderately refined appearance.

(c) Good. Lambs possessing the minimum requirements for Good grade are moderately rangy, upstanding, long and thin of neck, and moderately thin fleshed. They are slightly narrow over the back, loin, and rump. Hips and shoulders are moderately prominent. The twist is slightly shallow and the legs slightly small and thin. Relatively young lambs, under 7 months of age, have a very thin, uneven fat covering over the back, loin, and upper ribs. In handling, the shoulders, backbone, hips, and ribs are prominent. Older, more mature lambs have a thin fat covering over the back, ribs, and loin. In handling, the bones of the shoulders, backbone, hips, and ribs are rather prominent. Lambs of this grade may present evidences of slightly low quality. The bones and joints are usually moderately large, and the body somewhat lacking in symmetry and smoothness.

(d) Utility. Lambs meeting the minimum requirements for Utility grade are very rangy, angular, and long and thin of neck. They are very thinly fleshed, narrow over the back, loin, and rump and shallow in the twist. The hips are very prominent and the shoulders are usually open, rough, and prominent. The legs are very small, thin, and present a slightly concave appearance. Regardless of age, Utility lambs show no visible evidence of fat covering. In handling, bones of the shoulders, backbone, hips, and ribs are very prominent. Utility grade lambs are of rather low quality. The bones and joints are proportionately large and the body is very rough and unsymmetrical.

(e) Cull. Typical Cull grade lambs are extremely rangy, angular, long and thin of neck, thin fleshed, and extremely narrow and shallow bodied. Shoulders and hips are very prominent. The legs are extremely small, thin, and present a very concave appearance. In handling, the bones of the shoulders, backbone, hips, and ribs are extremely prominent and the entire bony framework is very evident. The general appearance is that of low quality. The relative proportion of meat to bone is quite low, joints appear large, and the body is very unsymmetrical.

§ 53.134 Specifications for official United States standards for grades of slaughter yearlings and sheep—(a) Prime. (1) Slaughter sheep beyond the yearling stage are not eligible for the Prime grade.

(2) Yearling sheep possessing the minimum requirements for Prime grade are lowset, compact, thickly fleshed, and short of neck. They are wide over the back, loin, and rump. Shoulders and hips are moderately neat and smoothly laid in. The twist is deep and full, and the legs are large and plump. There is a distinct fullness or plumpness evident over the crops, loins, and rump which contributes to a well rounded appearance. There is a thick but very smooth fat covering over the back, ribs, loin, and rump, and in handling the backbone and ribs are not discernible. Prime slaughter sheep exhibit evidences of high quality. The bones tend to be proportionately small, joints smooth, the finish evenly distributed, and the body trim, smooth, and symmetrical.

(b) Choice. Slaughter sheep possessing the minimum requirements for Choice grade are moderately compact, thickly fleshed, and short of neck. They are moderately wide over the back, loin, and rump. The shoulders and hips are usually moderately neat and smoothly laid in but may show a slight tendency toward prominence. The twist is moderately deep and full, and the legs rather thick and plump. Yearling sheep have a slightly thick fat covering over the back, ribs, loin, and rump and in handling, the backbone and ribs are only slightly discernible. Mature sheep have a moderately thick but very smooth fat covering over the back, ribs, bones, and rump and in handling, the backbone and ribs are hardly discernible. Choice slaughter sheep usually present a moderately refined appearance.

(c) Good. Slaughter sheep possessing the minimum requirements for Good grade are slightly rangy, upstanding, long and thin of neck, and slightly thin fleshed. They are slightly narrow over the back, loin, and rump. Hips and shoulders are moderately prominent. The twist is slightly shallow and the legs slightly small and thin. Yearling sheep tend to have a thin fat covering over the back, loin, and upper ribs. In handling, the shoulder, backbone, hips, and ribs are rather prominent. Mature sheep have a moderately thin fat covering over the back, ribs, and loin. In handling, the bones of the shoulders, backbone, hips, and ribs are slightly prominent. Sheep of this grade may present evidences of slightly low quality. The bones and joints are usually moderately large, and the body somewhat lacking in symmetry and smoothness.

(d) Utility. Slaughter sheep meeting the minimum requirements for Utility grade are very rangy, angular, and long and thin of neck. They are very thinly fleshed, narrow over the back, loin, and rump and shallow in the twist. The hips are very prominent and the shoulders are usually open, rough, and prominent. The legs are very small, thin, and present a slightly concave appearance. Regardless of age, Utility grade slaughter sheep show no visible evidences of fat covering. In handling, the bones of the shoulders, backbone, hips, and ribs are so thinly covered that they are very prominent. Utility grade slaughter sheep are of rather low quality. The bones and joints are proportionately large and the body is very rough and unsymmetrical.

(e) Cull. Typical Cull grade sheep are extremely rangy, angular, long and thin of neck, thin fleshed, and extremely narrow and shallow bodied. Shoulders and hips are very prominent. The legs are extremely small, thin, and present a very concave appearance. In handling, the bones of the shoulders, backbone, hips, and ribs are extremely prominent and the entire bony framework is very evident. The general appearance is that of low quality. The relative proportion of meat to bone is quite low, joints appear large, and the body is very unsymmetrical.

HANDLING OF MILK IN QUAD CITIES AND CLINTON, IOWA, MARKETING AREAS

NOTICE OF RECOMMENDED DECISION AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS THERETO WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENTS AND TO ORDERS, AS AMENDED, REGULATING HANDLING

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of the recommended decision of the Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreements and to the orders, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Quad Cities and Clinton, Iowa, marketing areas. Interested parties may file written exceptions to this decision with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than the close of business the 10th day after publication of this decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. A hearing to consider proposed amendments to the Quad Cities and Clinton, Iowa, marketing orders was conducted at Rock Island, Illinois, on January 3 and 4, 1951, pursuant to notice thereof which was issued on December 26, 1950 (15 F. R. 9529).

The only issue of record was whether the Class I and Class II differentials provided in the Quad Cities order and the Class I differential provided in the Clinton, Iowa, order should be increased 25 cents per hundredweight as an emergency basis for all delivery periods to and including June 1951.

Findings and conclusions. On the basis of the evidence adduced at the hearing it is hereby found and concluded that no change should be made in the differentials in either order.

When the emergency hearing was requested by the cooperative associations in the two markets in the forepart of December milk prices had shown little response to the upward trend in the market prices of competing agricultural commodities and in the prices of items used in the production of milk. The associations feared a serious disruption in the relationship between milk prices and the prices of other agricultural commodities and a resulting falling off in the production of milk. During the latter part of December, however, dairy product prices increased substantially with a resulting increase in the formula used to establish milk prices in the Quad Cities and Clinton, Iowa, markets. Accordingly, a much more satisfactory relationship between milk prices and the prices of other commodities now exists. It appears that dairy product prices will continue at relatively high levels in the immediate future and that fluid milk prices will be maintained at levels as high or higher than those sought by the associations when they requested the hearing. Accordingly, it appears that the emergency, if one existed, has now largely abated.

The record indicates that the request for an increase in differentials through June 1951 is part of a plan to revise differentials on a permanent basis. It was testified that consideration was being given by producers to a request for a hearing on a complete revision of the orders including the classification and pricing provisions. Consideration is also being given to the possibility of merging the two orders. Any change in the differentials should be considered on a long time basis in relation to the seasonal pattern of prices in the markets as well as in relation to the annual level of prices. If, as producers testified, the present differentials have been insufficient to induce an adequate supply of Grade A milk on the market, a thorough review of the market and an investigation of the effect that changing the level or seasonal pattern of differentials would have on supply and demand for milk should be made before making any adjustment in differentials. The evidence in the record is confined to a short term basis and is founded on marketing conditions which were changing rapidly at the time of the hearing. It is concluded, therefore, that the proposed changes in price differentials should not be made and that no action to amend the orders should be taken as a result of the hearing.

Every point covered in the briefs filed by interested parties was carefully considered along with the record evidence in making the findings and reaching the conclusions hereinbefore set forth. To the extent that the findings and conclusions proposed in the brief are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein, the request to make such findings or to reach such conclusions is denied on the basis of the facts found and stated in connection with the conclusions in this decision.

Filed at Washington, D. C., this 16th day of February 1951.

Assistant Administrator.

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

Wage and Hour Division

[29 CFR, Part 536]

DEFINITION OF TERM "AREA OF PRODUCTION"

NOTICE OF HEARING

Section 13 (a) (10) of the Fair Labor Standards Act provides a year-round exemption from both the minimum wage and overtime pay provisions for employees engaged in certain enumerated operations on agricultural or horticultural commodities and in making dairy products. One part of section 7 (c) of the act provides a 14 workweek exemption, from the overtime pay provisions alone, for employees in a place of employment where their employer is engaged in the first processing of agricultural or horticultural commodities during seasonal operations. Exemption under these provisions is dependent upon whether the employer is employed (sec. 13 (a) (10)) or whether the employer is engaged in such activities (sec. 7 (c)) within the "area of production" as that phrase is defined in regulations adopted by the Administrator.

"Area of production" as used in section 7 (c) of the act is defined in 29 CFR 536.1. "Area of production" as used in section 13 (a) (10) of the act is defined in 29 CFR 536.2. These definitions have been in effect since December 1946 (except for an amendment to make the definitions uniform with respect to leaf tobacco in Puerto Rico and elsewhere in the United States, published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on December 2, 1948 (13 F. R. 7347)). These definitions followed the guides laid down by the Supreme Court in the case of Addison v. Holly Hill (322 U. S. 607).

In recent months a number of persons petitioned the Administrator to modify the present definitions. Such petitions represented that changes have taken place in regard to the economic conditions and other related factors which provided the basis for the existing regulations, and that substantial economic discrimination exists between establishments which meet the requirements of the present definitions and those which do not.

On September 7, 1950, there was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER (15 F. R. 6025) a notice that the Administrator would receive and give consideration to proposals for changes in the definitions. Upon consideration of the many responses received, most of which asked for a public hearing, I have determined that a public hearing is necessary in order to permit a full exploration as to whether under conditions now existing the present definitions are adequate and if not, what changes may be required.

Accordingly, notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held before an authorized representative of the Administrator beginning on Monday, April 2, 1951, at 10 a. m., in Conference Room B of the Interdepartmental Auditorium, Constitution Avenue between 12th and 14th Streets, NW., Washington, D. C., at which interested persons will be heard with respect to 29 CFR Part 536 defining "area of production" as used in section 7 (c) and 13 (a) (10) of the act on the questions:

1. Whether any changes or modifications are now required.

2. What changes or modifications should be made if any are required.

All persons desiring to be heard at this public hearing should notify the Administrator, Wage and Hour Division, United States Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C., in writing not later than March 23, 1951. The notification should contain the following information:

1. Name and address of the person who will appear.

2. If such person will appear in a representative capacity, the name and address of the persons or organizations he will represent.

3. The particular industry or industries concerning which he intends to make a presentation at the hearing.

4. The approximate length of time requested for his presentation.

In the event that a large number of persons indicate a desire to be heard and it appears that the hearing will extend over a considerable period of time, persons scheduled to testify will be notified of the approximate date and time set aside for their appearance. To the extent possible, appearances of persons interested in the same industry or group of industries will be scheduled for the same day.

Written statements may be filed with the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions in lieu of personal appearances at any time before the date of the hearing.

The proposals submitted in response to the notice of September 7, 1950, may be examined by interested parties in Room 5422, United States Department of Labor, 14th and Constitution Avenue NW., Washington 25, D. C. A brief summary of these proposals will also be made available to interested parties upon request to the Administrator. The proposals are being made so available solely for the information of interested parties, and without implication as to the legality or practicability of such proposals.

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 16th day of February, 1951.

WM. R. MCCOMB,
Administrator,
Wage and Hour Division.

[No. 30748]

ALABAMA INTRASTATE EXPRESS RATES AND CHARGES

At a session of the Interstate Commerce Commission, Division 1, held at its office in Washington, D. C., on the 5th day of February A. D. 1951.

It appearing, that a petition, dated December 29, 1950, has been filed on behalf of Railway Express Agency, Incorporated, a common carrier of express, principally by railroad, operating to, from, and between points in the State of Alabama, averring that in Ex Parte No. 169, Increases in Express Rates and Charges, 1949, 277 I. C. C. 249, this Commission authorized certain increases in interstate express rates and charges throughout the United States, which were established April 18, 1950; and that the Alabama Public Service Commission, by order dated October 20, 1950, has refused to authorize or permit said petitioner to apply to the transportation of express, moving intrastate by railroad in Alabama, increases in rates and charges corresponding to those approved for interstate application in the proceeding above cited; such refusal being in the manner and to the extent as alleged in the said petition dated December 29, 1950, which petition so filed is referred to for greater certainty;

It further appearing, that the said petition brings in issue express rates and charges made or imposed by authority of the State of Alabama;

It further appearing, that said petitioner alleges that the intrastate express rates and charges which it is required to maintain for the transportation of property as aforesaid, moving intrastate by railroad in Alabama as a result of such refusal by the Alabama Public Service Commission, cause undue and unreasonable advantage, preference, and prejudice as between persons and localities in intrastate commerce, on the one hand, and interstate commerce, on the other hand, and undue, unreasonable, and unjust discrimination against interstate and foreign commerce;

And it further appearing, that dismissal of the petition is sought by the Alabama Public Service Commission on the ground that institution of an investigation is premature until certain further evidence is introduced by petitioner before that commission; and it appearing, under the facts here present, that such step on the part of petitioner is unnecessary before this Commission may act pursuant to the requirements of section 13 of the Interstate Commerce Act:

It is ordered, That in response to the said petition, an investigation be, and it is hereby, instituted, and that a hearing be held therein for the purpose of receiving evidence from the respondent hereinafter designated and any other persons interested, to determine whether the express rates and charges of the Railway Express Agency, Incorporated, between points in Alabama made or imposed by authority of the State of Alabama cause undue or unreasonable advantage, preference, or prejudice between persons or localities in intrastate commerce, on the one hand, and interstate or foreign commerce, on the other hand, or any undue, unreasonable, or unjust discrimination against interstate or foreign commerce, and to determine what express rates and charges, if any, or what maximum or minimum or maximum and minimum express rates and charges shall be prescribed to remove the unlawful advantage, preference, or discrimination, if any, that may be found to exist;

It is further ordered, That the Railway Express Agency, Incorporated, be, and it is hereby, made respondent to this proceeding; that a copy of this order be served upon said respondent; and that the State of Alabama be notified of this proceeding by sending copies of this order and of said petition by registered mail to the Governor of the said State and to the Alabama Public Service Commission at Montgomery, Ala.;

It is further ordered, That notice of this proceeding be given to the public by depositing a copy of this order in the office of the Secretary of the Commission, at Washington, D. C., and by filing a copy with the Director, Division of the Federal Register, Washington, D. C.;

And it is further ordered, That this proceeding be assigned for hearing at a time and place hereafter to be fixed.

By the Commission, Division 1.

ELECTRIC BOND AND SHARE CO. ET AL.

NOTICE OF FILING OF APPLICATION FOR EXTENSION OF TIME

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 14th day of February A. D. 1951.

In the matter of Electric Bond and Share Company and American Power & Light Company, File No. 54-168; Electric Bond and Share Company and American Power & Light Company, et al.; file No. 59-12.

Notice is hereby given that Electric Bond and Share Company ("Bond and Share"), a registered holding company, has filed with this Commission pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 an application to extend the time within which it must dispose of its holdings of securities received pursuant to the Plan of Reorganization of American Power & Light Company ("American").

Under the reorganization plan of American, which became effective on February 15, 1950, Bond and Share received 7.8 percent of the new common stock of American, 7.8 percent each of the common stocks of Florida Power & Light Company ("Florida"), The Montana Power Company ("Montana"), and Texas Utilities Company ("Texas"), and 6.6 percent of the common stock of Minnesota Power & Light Company ("Minnesota"). The acquisition of such stocks was subject to a commitment by Bond and Share to dispose of such securities by February 15, 1951. Since the effective date of the American plan Bond and Share has disposed of all of its holdings of the common stocks of Texas and Minnesota and a part of its holdings of the common stocks of Florida and Montana. As a result Bond and Share now owns 5.61 percent of the common stock of Florida, 5.59 percent of the common stock of Montana, and 7.81 percent of the new common stock of American. Bond and Share now requests an extension of time with respect to its commitment to dispose of these securities and in this connection requests permission to retain its present holdings of Florida until June 30, 1951, and of Montana until December 31, 1951, so that it may distribute such common stocks as dividends. No specific program is set forth with respect to the American new common stock, but it is requested that the Commission extend until December 31, 1951, the time within which Bond and Share is required to dispose of such stock.

Any interested person may not later than February 28, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., request the Commission that a hearing be held on such matter stating the nature of his interest, the reason for such request and the issues, if any, of fact or law raised by such application proposed to be controverted, or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after 5:30 p. m. on February 28, 1951, the Commission may take such action as it deems appropriate with respect to such application.

By the Commission.

NEW ENGLAND ELECTRIC SYSTEM AND SALEM GAS LIGHT CO.

ORDER GRANTING AND PERMITTING APPLICATION-DECLARATION TO BECOME EFFECTIVE

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 14th day of February A. D. 1951.

New England Electric System ("NEES"), a registered holding company, and its subsidiary company, Salem Gas Light Company ("Salem"), having filed a joint application-declaration pursuant to sections 6, 7, 9 and 10 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 and Rules U-23, U-24, and U-42 (b) (2) promulgated thereunder with respect to the following transactions:

Salem proposes to reduce the par value of its 45,353 shares of capital stock, aggregate par value $1,133,825, from $25 to $10 per share, and to transfer $680,295 representing such reduction from capital stock account to premium on capital stock account. Salem also proposes to issue and sell, for cash, 30,236 shares of additional capital stock, par value $10 per share, and to issue to its stockholders warrants to subscribe to such shares on the basis of two-thirds of a new share for each share held. Salem also proposes to issue and sell $1,000,000 principal amount of 20-year First Mortgage Bonds, 3½ percent series, due 1970.

The proposed additional shares of capital stock will be offered to Salem's stockholders at a subscription price of $15 per share as determined by Salem's board of directors. Each warrant will expire on the 21st day following the date of mailing of the notices and warrants to stockholders and each warrant will indicate the number of new shares or the fraction of a new share to which the holder thereof is entitled to subscribe. No fractional shares will be issued, but fractional warrants may be combined.

NEES owns 42,138 shares (92.9 percent) of the present capital stock of Salem and will receive warrants to subscribe for 28,092 additional shares, the total subscription price therefor being $421,380. The minority public shareholders own 3,215 shares (7.1 percent) of such capital stock and will receive warrants to subscribe for an aggregate of 2,143⅓ shares, the total subscription price therefor being $32,145. Salem proposes to sell any shares unsubscribed for by its shareholders to NEES at the price of $15 per share, provided the same is authorized by the Department of Public Utilities of Massachusetts.

NEES proposes to exercise its right to subscribe to said 28,092 shares of capital stock of Salem and will offer to purchase from the minority stockholders at $15 per share their present holdings and any shares which they may acquire through the exercise of rights, such offer to remain open for a period of 60 days following the date of offering of Salem's additional capital stock. The total cost of minority shares to NEES, if all such shares are acquired, is expected to be not more than $80,370.

Salem proposes to sell the bonds to John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company under a First Mortgage Indenture and Deed of Trust which provides, among other things, that such bonds are secured by a direct first mortgage lien on substantially all of Salem's gas properties.

The proceeds of $450,540 from the sale of the proposed additional capital stock and the proceeds of $1,000,000 from the sale of the proposed First Mortgage Bonds are to be applied by Salem to the payment of (a) $350,000 face amount of 3 percent notes payable to NEES, (b) $100,000 noninterest bearing advances from NEES, (c) $800,000 face amount of 3½ percent notes payable to banks and (d) the balance estimated at $203,540 is to be applied to the cost of properly capitalizable extensions, enlargements and additions to plant and property.

Total expenses to be borne by Salem in connection with the reduction in par value of its capital stock the issue of 30,236 additional shares of capital stock and warrants representing rights to subscribe therefor and the issuance of said $1,000,000 principal amount of First Mortgage Bonds are estimated at $14,500. Such estimate includes $5,000 for services rendered at the actual cost thereof by New England Power Service Company, an affiliated service company, and $1,200 for counsel for the purchasers of the Bonds. The cost to NEES for services to be rendered by said Service Company is estimated not to exceed $500.

The application-declaration indicates that the Department of Public Utilities of Massachusetts has approved the transactions proposed by Salem, and that no State commission or Federal commission, other than this Commission, has jurisdiction over the transactions proposed by NEES.

The applicants-declarants request that the order of this Commission be made effective forthwith upon issuance.

Said application-declaration having been duly filed and notice of said filing having been duly given in the form and manner prescribed by Rule U-23 promulgated pursuant to said act and the Commisison not having received a request for hearing with respect to said application-declaration within the period specified in said notice, or otherwise, and not having ordered a hearing thereon; and

The Commission finding that the requirements of the applicable provisions of the act are satisfied and deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that said application-declaration be granted and permitted to become effective, and deeming it appropriate to grant the request of applicants-declarants that the order of this Commission become effective forthwith upon issuance:

It is hereby ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the act, and subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24 that the application-declaration be, and the same hereby is, granted and permitted to become effective forthwith.

By the Commission.

UNITED GAS CORP.

NOTICE OF FILING OF APPLICATION-DECLARATION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 15th day of February A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that United Gas Corporation ("United"), a gas utility subsidiary of Electric Bond and Share Company, a registered holding company, has filed an application-declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, and has designated sections 6 (a), 7, and 12 (c) of the act and Rules U-62 and U-65 as applicable to the transactions proposed in said application-declaration which may be summarized as follows:

United proposes to solicit the affirmative vote of the holders of its outstanding bonds and if such solicitation is successful, proposes to modify in the respects hereinafter described its Mortgage and Deed of Trust dated as of October 1, 1944, made by United in favor of Guaranty Trust Company of New York and Henry A. Theis (Herbert Twyeffort, Successor) as Trustees, as supplemented by a First Supplemental Indenture dated as of July 1, 1947, and a Second Supplemental Indenture dated as of January 1, 1950 (hereinafter collectively referred to as "the Mortgage").

United owns all of the outstanding securities of United Gas Pipe Line Company ("Pipe Line") and Union Producing Company ("Union"). The securities of these subsidiaries are pledged with the Trustees under the Mortgage securing United's outstanding $106,345,000 principal amount of 2¾ percent bonds series due 1967, and $24,649,000 principal amount of 2¾ percent bonds series due 1970. The securities of Pipe Line presently pledged with the Trustee of United's Mortgage consist of the following: $51,003,000 principal amount First Mortgage 4 percent bonds series due 1962, 100,000 shares of no par value Common Stock and 3 percent notes of an aggregate principal amount of $5,000,000 payable to United; and the securities of Union so pledged consist of $34,000,000 principal amount of 6 percent debentures due March 1, 1952, and 50,000 shares of no par value Common Stock.

The proposed modification is concerned with sub-section (I) of section 56 of the Mortgage. This sub-section now requires the pledge of all stock at any time owned by United of all Subsidiary Companies as defined in the Mortgage, and all debt at any time owned by it of any "Class 'A' Subsidiary", as defined in the Mortgage (presently Pipe Line) or Union (or any successor) except certain indebtedness not in excess of $3,000,000 at any one time outstanding with respect to any one "Class 'A' Subsidiary" or Union and not in excess of $5,000,000 at any one time outstanding with respect to all "Class 'A' Subsidiaries" and Union acquired after the date of the initial issue of bonds under the Mortgage and not made the basis of a credit under the Mortgage. Bonds were initially issued under the Mortgage in 1944.

It is stated that because of the more rapid growth and development of the properties of Pipe Line as compared with those of United, the practical application of the provisions of sub-section (I) of section 56 of the Mortgage impedes the free flow of cash between United and Pipe Line. As an illustration, the application-declaration recites, United through the media of downstream loans to Pipe Line, evidenced by promissory notes, has made available to Pipe Line temporary funds with which to meet its construction needs. In this connection, with the approval of this Commission, United recently loaned to Pipe Line an aggregate of $8,000,000 evidenced by the latter's 3 percent promissory notes made to United or order. Of these notes, $3,000,000 principal amount was retained in the portfolio of United and $5,000,000 principal amount was pledged with the Corporate Trustee in accordance with the provisions of sub-section (I) of section 56 of the Mortgage. The notes so pledged with the Corporate Trustee remain unfunded indebtedness and any cash substituted therefor or in payment of such notes remains unfunded cash. Thereafter, Pipe Line paid the promissory notes ($3,000,000) held by United in its portfolio as referred to above and despite the fact that there was no unpledged indebtedness between United and Pipe Line, United was unable to draw down up to $3,000,000 of the $5,000,000 of notes held by the Corporate Trustee because the Mortgage in its present form provides no express provisions whereby pledged debt will be automatically released to the extent of the retirement of free debt. Nor could United draw down any cash substituted for or in payment of such notes without certifying property additions on a dollar for dollar basis, although such property additions of United would remain fundable additions.

Because of the much more substantial construction program of Pipe Line and its corresponding need for larger sums of money and since United can use only its own property additions to draw down cash proceeds of debt pledged with the Trustee under sub-section (I) of section 56 of the Mortgage, such cash, although remaining unfunded cash, is sterilized in the hands of the Trustee until United is able to certify its own property additions (which remain fundable) as the basis for the release of funds. Since under the Mortgage, Pipe Line can only finance its construction needs through the sale of securities to United or temporary downstream loans from United to Pipe Line, later to be converted into long-term indebtedness through the issue and sale of securities by Pipe Line to United (which long-term securities must be pledged with the Corporate Trustee), the operation of sub-section (I) of section 56 impairs the flow of cash and in the opinion of the management will continue to sterilize substantial amounts of cash in the hands of the Corporate Trustee.

It is proposed to modify sub-section (I) of section 56 so that it will be unnecessary for United (except in the case of bonds of Pipe Line or any other Class "A" Subsidiary secured by a Subsidiary Mortgage) to pledge with the Corporate Trustee, debentures, notes or other unsecured indebtedness of Pipe Line or any other Class "A" Subsidiary owned by United and United will be permitted to retain such debentures, notes or other unsecured indebtedness in its securities' portfolio, but any such retained debentures, notes or other unsecured indebtedness will not be transferable except to the Corporate Trustee and by their terms will not be enforceable against or payable out of Mortgaged and Pledged Property of Pipe Line or any other Class "A" Subsidiary or out of proceeds of Mortgaged and Pledged Property. In addition restrictions are imposed with respect to the aggregate principal amount of such retained indebtedness to the effect that (a) the aggregate principal amount of such retained indebtedness shall not be in excess of two-thirds of the aggregate principal amount of all bonds of Pipe Line or any other Class "A" Subsidiary previously issued under the Pipe Line Mortgage or corresponding provisions of another Subsidiary Mortgage, and (b) the aggregate principal amount of all indebtedness of a Class "A" Subsidiary (except certain Permitted Indebtedness) shall not exceed seventy percent of the capitalization of the Class "A" Subsidiary as shown on its books. The proposed modification, it is represented, will not affect the limitations provided in sub-section (I) of section 56 with respect to Union Producing Company. Union's debt securities pledged with the Corporate Trustee are not secured by a mortgage on its properties. Furthermore, Union's construction and development program has not been comparable in size or scope with that of Pipe Line, and its indebtedness to United in excess of the permitted maximum pledged with the Corporate Trustee could be unblocked by use of United's property additions.

The Mortgage provides for its modification by the affirmative vote of the holders of 70 percent in principal amount of bonds outstanding, by a resolution of bondholders adopted at a meeting called for such purpose and upon approval of such resolution of the bondholders by a resolution of the Board of Directors of United.

In the event that it shall appear to United desirable at a later date to employ an agent or agents to assist it in obtaining the affirmative vote of the holders of 70 percent in principal amount of bonds outstanding for adoption of the proposed modification, United will file an amendment to this application setting forth the necessary information to meet the applicable standards of the act and rules thereunder. A copy of the proposed solicitation material to be used in connection with obtaining proxies of bondholders in support of the proposed program is annexed to the application-declaration.

United has requested that any order of the Commission granting the application and permitting the declaration to become effective issue as promptly as may be practicable and become effective upon issuance.

Notice is further given that any interested person may not later than February 28, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the nature of his interest, the reason for such request, and the issues, if any, of fact or law proposed to be controverted; or he may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after February 28, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., said application-declaration, as filed or as amended, may be granted and permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may exempt such transactions as provided in Rules U-20 and U-100 thereof.

All interested persons are referred to said application which is on file in the office of the Commission for a full statement of the transactions therein proposed.

By the Commission.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 15th day of February A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that Baldwin Securities Corporation (Applicant), Paschall Post Office, Philadelphia 42, Pennsylvania, has filed an application pursuant to section 6 (c) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 and Rule N-30D-1 (a) of the general rules and regulations under the act, to extend to May 1, 1951, the time within which Applicant may mail to stockholders its annual report for the fiscal year ended December 31, 1950, pursuant to section 30 (d) of the act.

Applicant was organized under the laws of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania on November 8, 1950, as a preliminary step in the consummation of an Agreement and Plan of Reorganization dated August 21, 1950, between The Baldwin Locomotive Works (Baldwin) and Lima-Hamilton Corporation. On November 28, 1950, pursuant to such plan, certain securities and cash were transferred by Baldwin to Applicant, including the majority of the outstanding shares of The Midvale Company which thereupon became a majority owned subsidiary of Applicant.

All of the capital stock of Applicant, which was received by Baldwin for such assets, was distributed by Baldwin as a dividend to its common stockholders on December 20, 1950. In connection with such dividend, Baldwin transmitted to its stockholders of record on November 29, 1950, a balance sheet of the Applicant showing the amounts and values of securities owned by it on November 30, 1950. During the fiscal year ended December 31, 1950, Applicant had no income and made no purchases and sales of investment securities other than Government securities.

Also on December 20, 1950, Applicant filed a Notification of Registration on Form N-8A of the act whereupon it became registered as a non-diversified, closed-end, management investment company. Within three months after December 31, 1950, Applicant is required to file a registration statement on Form N-8B-1 which will include information with respect to Applicant's policy, including its capital structure policy, investment policy and other fundamental policies. The proxy statement to be submitted to stockholders for the annual meeting to be held on May 3, 1951, will be accompanied or preceded by an annual report meeting the requirements of Rule X-14A-3 (b) of the general rules and regulations under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, and setting forth Applicant's policy.

Applicant is required by Rule N-30D-1 (a) to mail to stockholders its report for the fiscal year ended December 31, 1950, pursuant to section 30 (d) of the act, within 60 days after the date as of which it is made, or within such longer period of time as the Commission may permit by order upon application. Section 6 (c) of the act provides in pertinent part that the Commission by order upon application may conditionally or unconditionally exempt any person from any provision or provisions of the act or any rule or regulation thereunder if and to the extent that such exemption is necessary or appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the protection of investors and the purposes fairly intended by the policy and provisions of the act.

For a more detailed statement of the matters of fact and law asserted, all interested persons are referred to said application which is on file in the offices of the Commission in Washington, D. C.

Notice is further given that an order granting the application, in whole or in part and upon such conditions as the Commission may deem necessary or appropriate, may be issued by the Commission at any time on or after February 28, 1951, unless prior thereto a hearing upon the application is ordered by the Commission, as provided in Rule N-5 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act. Any interested person may, not later than February 26, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., submit to the Commission in writing his views or any additional facts bearing upon this application or the desirability of a hearing thereon, or request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held thereon. Any such communication or request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C., and should state briefly the nature of the interest of the person submitting such information or requesting a hearing, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law raised by the application which he desires to controvert.

SUBPART A—GENERAL PROVISIONS

INTRODUCTION

§ 5.1 Purpose and scope of part. This part is issued under the Atomic Energy Act of 1946, as amended (McMahon Act), in the interest of the common defense and security, to establish minimum standards for the procurement of supplies and services for the Commission. This subpart sets forth introductory information, definitions, and a statement of basic policies. Subpart B relates to procurement by the Commission by formal advertising. Subpart C relates to procurement by the Commission where formal advertising is not required. Subpart D consists of administrative provisions referring to procurement responsibilities and authority within the Commission and prescribing standards for justifications in support of awards by the Commission. Subpart E sets forth basic policies for the procurement of supplies and services by cost-type contractors.

§ 5.2 Matters not covered. This part is intended to set forth broad policies with respect to procurement and does not prescribe detailed procedures or instructions, except to the extent deemed necessary to establish basic policies. Among the matters not included are detailed contract clauses, cost principles, methods of payment, insurance, labor, patents, termination, and administration of contracts as distinguished from methods of procurement. The General Manager, and Division Directors and Managers of Operations within the limits of authority delegated to them, may prescribe procedures and instructions not inconsistent with this part which implement the provisions of this part or relate to matters not included in this part.

§ 5.3 Saving provisions relating to effective date. Subparts B and C and §§ 5.301 to 5.304 shall not apply to a contract which:

(a) Is awarded pursuant to competitive bidding on an invitation to bid issued prior to the effective date of this part; or

(b) Is executed as of a date prior to the effective date of this part; or

(c) Formalizes a preliminary contractual agreement, such as a letter contract or a letter of intent, which itself was made prior to the effective date of this part; or

(d) Amends, modifies, or supplements a contract executed as of a date prior to the effective date of this part, unless such amendment, modification, or supplement, provides for substantially additional quantities of supplies or services beyond the scope of the original contract.

§ 5.4 Saving provisions relating to subject matter. This part does not apply to the purchase, rental, or other acquisition of real property or rights or interests in real property, nor to the procurement of the services of employees or consultants. Sections 5.21 to 5.25 and Subparts B, C, and D do not apply to the procurement of supplies or services by contractors or subcontractors but may be used by them as a guide.

§ 5.5 Effect on authority of representatives of the Commission, and on subcontracts and purchase orders. Nothing contained in this part shall be construed to limit authority otherwise delegated to representatives of the Commission, nor to affect the validity of any subcontract or purchase order entered into by a cost-type contractor.

§ 5.6 Deviations. Deviations from the requirements of this part shall be made only by authority of the General Manager or in accordance with procedures which may be prescribed by him, and then only in cases where special circumstances justify the deviation.

DEFINITIONS OF TERMS

§ 5.11 Definitions. As used in this part, the following terms shall have the meaning set forth below:

(a) Government, etc. The term "Government" means the United States of America. The term "General Manager" refers to the General Manager of the Commission. "Division Director" refers to any Director of a Division of the Commission who is authorized to enter into contracts. The term "Manager of Operations" refers to any representative of the Commission designated by that title, and "Office of Operations" means any office under the supervision of a Manager of Operations. The term "GM bulletin" means any instructions issued in the GM series and any other instructions of general application issued by the General Manager.

(b) Contract. The term "contract" means any prime contract to which the Government, acting through the Commission, is a party, including, by way of description and without limitation, letter contracts and purchase orders, and any amendment or modification thereof or supplement thereto; and, except to the extent otherwise defined in § 5.402 for the purposes of Subpart E, a "contractor" is any person, firm, or corporation entering into such a contract with the Government.

(c) Contracting officer. The term "contracting officer" means the representative of the Commission who executes, or who will execute, a contract, and includes his authorized representative.

BASIC POLICIES

§ 5.21 General policy. It is the policy of the Commission that supplies and services be procured by the methods most advantageous to the Government—price, quality, and other factors considered, and that in procurement from outside sources methods be employed which are calculated to assure such full and free competition as is consistent with the Commission's requirements. However, in view of the declaration of a National Emergency by the President (Proclamation 2914, Dec. 16, 1950; 15 F. R. 9029), it is essential that further efforts be made to accelerate defense procurement actions. In doing so, it is recognized that there may be a need for considerable use of methods of procurement without formal advertising. In promoting the primary objective of strengthening the common defense and security, rapidly and effectively, there is a great responsibility to protect and preserve competitive enterprise. All practicable steps must be taken to provide for the equitable distribution of contracts among the maximum number of competent suppliers and to avoid the concentration of contracts among a relatively few suppliers. Such broadening of the industrial base of the program is essential to the acceleration of procurement.

§ 5.22 Procurement from Government sources. Procurement of certain supplies and services may be effected by orders against Federal schedule supply or service contracts or stocks of the General Services Administration. Also, certain supplies may be obtained by resort to excess Government stocks, and stocks of Federal prison-made and blind-made products. It is the policy of the Commission that such methods of procurement be utilized to the fullest extent practicable, in accordance with applicable laws and regulations. Procurement by the Commission under the Economy Act of June 30, 1932, as amended (31 U. S. C. 686), from Federal agencies shall conform to the requirements of the act and applicable regulations of the General Accounting Office.

§ 5.23 Procurement by the Commission by contract from outside sources. Procurement by the Commission by contract shall generally be effected by formal advertising for bids and award to the lowest responsible bidder, in accordance with Subpart B, but may be effected without formal advertising if the circumstances, and the method adopted, meet the requirements of Subpart C. Where procurement without formal advertising is authorized, steps shall nevertheless be taken to assure such full and free competition as is consistent with the procurement of the supplies and services needed to meet the Commission's requirements, as provided in Subpart C.

§ 5.24 Small business concerns. It is the policy of the Commission to place with small business concerns a fair proportion of the total of supplies and services procured by contract for the Commission. For this purpose a small business concern is any concern which, including its affiliates, employs in the aggregate fewer than 500 persons.

§ 5.25 Ineligible contractors and disqualified bidders. Each office of the Commission, in accordance with procedures described by the General Manager, shall maintain current lists of ineligible contractors and disqualified bidders, indicating the reasons for such listing and the extent to which procurement from such persons or firms is restricted, as follows:

(a) Persons and firms listed by the Comptroller General in accordance with the provisions of section 3 of the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act (act of June 30, 1936; 41 U. S. C. 35) which have been found by the Secretary of Labor to have violated any of the agreements or representations required by that act;

(b) Persons and firms listed by the Department of Labor which have been held ineligible to be awarded contracts subject to the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act for the reason that they do not qualify as "manufacturers" or "regular dealers" within the meaning of section 1 (a) of said act;

(c) Persons and firms listed by the Comptroller General in accordance with the provisions of section 3 of the Davis-Bacon Act (act of March 3, 1931; 40 U. S. C. 276a), found by the Comptroller General to have violated said act;

(d) Persons and firms otherwise disqualified or declared ineligible in accordance with procedures prescribed by the General Manager.

SUBPART B—PROCUREMENT BY FORMAL ADVERTISING

USE OF FORMAL ADVERTISING

§ 5.31 General requirements. In accordance with the basic policies set forth in §§ 5.21 to 5.25, procurement of supplies and services by contract shall generally be effected by formal advertising. No contract shall be entered into as a result of formal advertising unless the requirements of this subpart have been satisfied. Minimum requirements relating to justifications in support of action under this subpart are set forth in §§ 5.301 to 5.303.

§ 5.32 Meaning of formal advertising. As used in this part, formal advertising means the method prescribed by this subpart of procuring supplies or services by contract as a result of advertising and competitive bidding.

§ 5.33 Applicability of subpart to amendments. This subpart does not apply to an amendment or modification of or supplement to a contract originally entered into pursuant to formal advertising if the amendment, modification, or supplement does not substantially increase, beyond the scope of the original contract, the quantity of supplies or services to be furnished.

SOLICITATION OF BIDS

§ 5.41 General requirements. Bids shall be solicited by the methods prescribed in §§ 5.41 to 5.43 from all qualified sources of supplies or services deemed necessary by the contracting officer to assure such full and free competition as is consistent with the procurement of the required supplies or services. Current lists of prospective bidders shall be maintained by each office of the Commission concerned with the procurement of supplies or services. These lists shall afford as broad a coverage of sources of supplies and services as is reasonably possible, and every effort shall be made to include small business concerns.

§ 5.42 Information and forms to be supplied to bidders. Information as to the Government's requirements and necessary blank forms, including the form of contract to be used, shall be made available to prospective bidders in such form and detail, and with such instructions, that a binding acceptance of the successful bid may be made in advance of the execution of further contractual documents by the successful bidder.

§ 5.43 Methods of soliciting bids. Bids shall be solicited sufficiently in advance of the opening of bids to allow bidders adequate opportunity to prepare and submit bids. Bids shall be obtained by mailing or delivery to prospective bidders and posting at some appropriate public place the invitation to bid and accompanying forms. To the extent deemed necessary by the contracting officer in order to assure full and free competition, announcements of the essential details of a proposed procurement may also be made available for free publication to newspapers, and to trade journals and magazines circulating in the appropriate trades or industries. Announcements may be inserted as paid advertisements in newspapers only when deemed necessary in order to secure effective competition, and in conformity with the requirements of applicable statutes, regulations of the General Accounting Office and GM bulletins. Invitations to bid and announcements shall clearly indicate the source of and means of obtaining additional information and papers essential to the preparation of a bid.

SUBMISSION OF BIDS

§ 5.51 Method of submission. In order to receive consideration bids must be submitted by a method authorized in the invitation to bid or instructions furnished to bidders in sufficient time to reach the designated office prior to the time fixed for the opening of bids. Bids received after the time fixed for opening shall be considered if received before award is made and if the failure to arrive on time was due solely to a delay in the mails or other mode of transmission authorized in the invitation for bids for which the bidder was not responsible.

§ 5.52 Modification or withdrawal of bids. Bids may be modified or withdrawn by written or telegraphic notice received prior to the time fixed for the opening of bids. After the bids have been opened none may be modified (except as provided in §§ 5.64 and 5.65) or withdrawn unless such modification or withdrawal is received before award is made, and either (a) failure of the modification or withdrawal to arrive prior to the time fixed for opening was due solely to a delay in the mails or other authorized mode of transmission for which the bidder was not responsible, or (b) modification is in the interest of the Government and not prejudicial to the other bidders.

OPENING OF BIDS AND AWARD OF CONTRACT

§ 5.61 Opening of bids. At the time fixed for opening, all bids which have been received shall be publicly opened and read aloud by the official designated to open the bids. Although the correct preparation of a bid is primarily the responsibility of the bidder, it is nevertheless the duty of the contracting officer, after the opening of the bids and prior to award, to examine all bids for minor informalities or irregularities and for obvious and apparent mistakes.

§ 5.62 Rejection of bids. Any bid which does not conform to the essential requirements of the invitation for bids shall be rejected, except that any such bid may be considered if consideration is in the interest of the Government and is not prejudicial to the other bidders. All bids may be rejected when rejection is in the interest of the Government.

§ 5.63 Unreasonable or collusive prices. Among the grounds for the rejection of all bids is a determination by the contracting officer that bid prices after formal advertising therefor are not reasonable (either as to all or some part of the requirements) or have not been independently arrived at in open competition. If negotiation is to be used after rejection of all bids on either of such grounds the requirements of § 5.83 (h) must be satisfied. Evidence that bids have not been independently arrived at shall be transmitted to the General Counsel, Washington, D. C.

§ 5.64 Minor informalities or irregularities in bids. A bidder shall be given an opportunity to cure any deficiency resulting from a minor informality or irregularity in a bid or, in the alternative, when it is not to the disadvantage of the Government, such deficiency may be waived if time does not permit the curing thereof.

§ 5.65 Mistakes in bids—(a) Obvious clerical errors. Any clerical mistake obvious or apparent on the face of a bid may be corrected prior to award if the bidder, in response to a request for verification of the bid, furnishes a statement as to such mistake.

(b) Other mistakes. In the case of a suspected or alleged mistake in a bid other than a clerical mistake obvious or apparent on the face of the bid, the bidder shall be requested, prior to award, to furnish either a verification of the bid or evidence in support of a mistake. If the bidder fails or refuses to furnish evidence in support of a mistake, the bid shall be considered in the form submitted. If evidence in support of a mistake is furnished, the case shall be referred to the Division of Finance, Washington, D. C., for processing. If limitations of time require that an award be made prior to a decision as to the relief, if any, to be given to the bidder alleging the mistake, and if there is no room for doubt as to the price or other terms intended in the bid in which a mistake occurs, then, pending processing of the case by the Division of Finance:

(1) In the case of a mistake in the lowest bid which as clearly intended would not be the lowest bid, such bid may be disregarded;

(2) In the case of a mistake in the lowest bid which as clearly intended would still be the lowest bid, award shall be made on the basis of such low bid as originally submitted but subject to correction if subsequently authorized by the General Accounting Office;

(3) In the case of a mistake in any bid other than the lowest bid, such bid shall be considered on the basis of its price or other terms as clearly intended.

§ 5.66 Acceptance of bids. Award shall be made with reasonable promptness by written notice of acceptance to that responsible bidder whose bid, conforming to the invitation for bids, will be most advantageous to the Government, price and other factors considered.

§ 5.67 Responsible bidder. A responsible bidder is a bidder who possesses the financial, technical, and management abilities necessary to perform the contract and is otherwise eligible by law and under this part.

§ 5.68 Factors in award other than price. Among other factors besides price that may be considered in making an award are:

(a) Judgment, skill, and integrity of a bidder;

(b) Reputation and experience of a bidder, and prior work of a similar nature done by him;

(c) Foreseeable costs or delays to the Government resulting from differences in inspection, shipping, location of supplies, etc.;

(d) Time of performance, if the solicitation makes time a material factor;

(e) Changes made or requested in any of the provisions of the solicitation, to the extent that any such change does not constitute ground for rejection of the bid under § 5.62;

(f) Restrictions or conditions imposed in the bid;

(g) Advantages or disadvantages to the Government that might result from making multiple awards.

§ 5.69 Equal low bids. (a) When two or more low bids are equal in all respects (taking into consideration cost of transportation, cash discounts, and all other factors properly to be considered), award shall be made by a drawing by lot which shall be witnessed by at least three persons and which may be attended by the bidders or their representatives: Provided:

(1) Subject to subparagraphs (2), (3), and (4) of this paragraph,

(i) In the base of equal low bids, one of which is submitted by a small business concern, as defined in § 5.24, award shall be made to the small business concern, and

(ii) In the case of equal low bids, two or more of which are submitted by small business concerns, award shall be made by a drawing by lot limited to the small business concerns.

(2) Where two or more equal bids are received from small business concerns, one of which is submitted by a bidder who will perform the contract in a distressed employment area, designated as such by or on behalf of the President, award shall be made to the small business concern who will perform the contract in the distressed employment area.

(3) In the case of equal low bids, two or more of which are submitted by small business concerns who will perform the contract in a distressed employment area, award shall be made by a drawing by lot limited to the small business concerns in the distressed employment area.

(4) Where two or more equal low bids are received, one bid being from a business concern (whether small or not) not in a distressed employment area and the other being from a bidder who, although not a small business concern, will perform the contract in a distressed employment area, award shall be made to the latter.

(b) When award is to be made by lot and the information available shows that the product of a particular manufacturer is offered by more than one bidder, a preliminary drawing by lot shall be made to ascertain which of the bidders offering the product of a particular manufacturer will be included in the final drawing to determine the award.

SUBPART C—PROCUREMENT WITHOUT FORMAL ADVERTISING

USE OF PROCUREMENT WITHOUT FORMAL ADVERTISING

§ 5.71 General requirements. Procurement without formal advertising shall be in conformity with this subpart. Minimum requirements relating to justifications in support of action under this subpart are set forth in §§ 5.301 and 5.304.

§ 5.72 Meaning of procurement without formal advertising. As used in this part, procurement without formal advertising means any method of procuring supplies or services by contract for which formal advertising is not required.

§ 5.73 Methods. Among the methods of procurement without formal advertising are the inviting of bids from qualified and responsible bidders without formal advertising, and negotiation. Under some circumstances the inviting of bids without formal advertising may nevertheless meet the advertising requirements of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes, as amended.

CIRCUMSTANCES PERMITTING PROCUREMENT WITHOUT FORMAL ADVERTISING

§ 5.81 Atomic Energy Act. The Atomic Energy Act of 1946 contains various exemptions from section 3709 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, where action without regard to the provisions of section 3709 of the Revised Statutes, as amended, is certified by the Commission to be necessary in the interest of the common defense and security, or upon a showing that advertising is not reasonably practicable. The act also provides, in section 12 (b), that the President may, in advance, exempt any specific action of the Commission in a particular matter from the provisions of law relating to contracts whenever he determines that such action is essential in the interest of the common defense and security.

§ 5.82 Section 3709 of the Revised Statutes. Section 3709 of the Revised Statutes, as amended by section 9 (a) of the act of August 2, 1946, 60 Stat. 809, and as further amended by section 502 (c) of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, approved June 30, 1949, Public Law 152, 81st Congress, requires advertising for proposals to furnish supplies or services, but incorporates exceptions to the general rule. Section 3709, as amended, with the material exceptions, reads as follows:

> Unless otherwise provided in the appropriation concerned or other law, purchases and contracts for supplies or services for the Government may be made or entered into only after advertising a sufficient time previously for proposals, except (1) when the amount involved in any one case does not exceed $500, (2) when the public exigencies require the immediate delivery of the articles or performance of the services, (3) when only one source of supply is available and the Government purchasing or contracting officer shall so certify, or (4) when the services are required to be performed by the contractor in person and are (a) of a technical and professional nature or (b) under Government supervision and paid for on a time basis. • • •

§ 5.83 Examples of circumstances where formal advertising is not required. Without limitation on the generality of the statutes cited or of this part, the following circumstances shall be deemed to be examples of cases where formal advertising is not required:

(a) The information necessary to be furnished bidders includes information classified "Confidential" or higher;

(b) Performance of the work called for under the contract will involve access to information classified "Confidential" or higher, and the contracting officer determines that it would not be practicable to obtain necessary security clearances of personnel of the successful bidder within a reasonable time after submission of the bid;

(c) It is determined by the contracting officer that work must be commenced prior to the development of adequate definitive data upon which bids might be solicited by formal advertising, in order to complete technical or production facilities within the time established by program requirements;

(d) It is determined by the contracting officer that it is impossible to draft, for a solicitation of bids, adequate specifications or plans or any other adequately detailed description of the required supplies or services;

(e) The services to be procured are architect-engineer services;

(f) The services to be procured are research or development services;

(g) The conditions prevail which are described in exceptions 1 to 4 in section 3709 of the Revised Statutes, as amended;

(h) It is determined by the contracting officer that bid prices after formal advertising are not reasonable or have not been independently arrived at in open competition and

(1) Notice of intention to negotiate and a reasonable opportunity to negotiate are given by the contracting officer to each responsible bidder whose bid has been rejected;

(2) The negotiated price is lower than the lowest rejected bid price of a responsible bidder, as determined by the contracting officer;

(3) The negotiated price is the lowest negotiated price offered by any responsible supplier.

§ 5.84 Determinations. Contracting officers shall seek the advice of counsel where there is any doubt as to the application of the foregoing examples or as to whether or not other circumstances in a particular case permit procurement without formal advertising. Records of determinations shall be prepared in conformity with §§ 5.301 and 5.304.

STANDARDS APPLICABLE WHERE PROCUREMENT WITHOUT FORMAL ADVERTISING IS PERMITTED

§ 5.91 General requirements. Where procurement without formal advertising is permitted the method of procurement selected and any negotiations thereunder shall nevertheless conform to the minimum standards set forth in §§ 5.91 to 5.93 and §§ 5.101 to 5.106.

§ 5.92 Assurance of competition. The method of procurement selected shall include the solicitation of proposals or bids, supported by cost or other information found necessary by the contracting officer, from all such qualified sources of supplies or services as he deems necessary in order to assure such full and free competition as is consistent with the procurement of the required supplies or services, in accordance with the basic policies set forth in §§ 5.21 to 5.25.

§ 5.93 Factors to be considered in contracting. In negotiating or entering into a contract under this subpart, due attention shall be given to the following, and to any other appropriate factors:

(a) Comparison of prices quoted, and consideration of other prices for the same or similar supplies or services, with due regard to cost of transportation, cash discounts, and any other factors relating to price;

(b) Comparison of the business reputations and responsibilities of the respective persons or firms who submit quotations;

(c) Consideration of the quality of the supplies or services offered, or of the same or similar supplies or services previously furnished, with due regard to the satisfaction of technical requirements;

(d) Consideration of delivery requirements;

(e) Discriminating use of price and cost analyses;

(f) Investigation of price aspects of any important subcontract;

(g) Individual bargaining;

(h) Consideration of cost sharing;

(i) Effective utilization of the most desirable type of contract.

TYPES OF CONTRACTS

§ 5.101 Authorized types of contracts. Subject to the limitations prescribed by this subpart, and to any additional limitations prescribed under GM bulletins, contracts under this subpart may be of any type which will promote the best interest of the Government.

§ 5.102 Examples. Examples of types of contracts authorized under this subpart are:

(a) Fixed-price, lump-sum, or unit-price type;

(b) Incentive type;

(c) Cost-type, such as cost, cost-plus-a-fixed-fee, and time and material contracts.

§ 5.103 Prohibition. The cost-plus-a-percentage-of-cost system of contracting shall not be used.

§ 5.104 Limitations on types other than fixed-price, lump-sum, or unit-price. Prior to negotiating or entering into any contract of a type other than a fixed-price, lump-sum, or unit-price type, which otherwise conforms to this subpart, the contracting officer shall determine that procurement of the required supplies or services is impracticable without the use of the type of contract selected. A time and material type of contract shall not be used if any other type of contract is equally advantageous to the Government.

§ 5.105 Limitations on fixed fees. Fees negotiated on cost-plus-a-fixed-fee contracts shall be based upon the scope and extent of the services to be performed by the contractor, shall be fair and reasonable, and shall not exceed amounts prescribed by law or directions of the General Manager.

§ 5.106 Letter agreements. A letter agreement, where intended to be incorporated eventually in a formal contract, shall be superseded as promptly as possible by the formal contract.

SUBPART D—ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

§ 5.200 Scope. This subpart sets forth references to the procurement responsibility and authority of the General Manager, Directors of Divisions, and Managers of Operations, and prescribes minimum standards for justifications in support of awards by the Commission.

PROCUREMENT RESPONSIBILITY AND AUTHORITY WITHIN THE COMMISSION

§ 5.201 General Manager. The General Manager has been authorized and directed by the Commission to discharge the executive and administrative functions of the Commission, and to exercise the statutory authorities of the Commission in the discharge of those functions. The Deputy General Manager acts as alternate to the General Manager, and as General Manager in the absence of the General Manager.

§ 5.202 Division Directors. The procurement responsibility and authority of Division Directors is set forth in GM bulletins issued by the General Manager.

§ 5.203 Managers of Operations. The procurement responsibility and authority of each Manager of Operations is set forth in a GM bulletin issued by the Division Director having responsibility for the coordination and supervision of the Operations Office involved.

JUSTIFICATIONS IN SUPPORT OF THE AWARD OF CONTRACTS

§ 5.301 General requirements. Contracts to which either Subpart B or Subpart C applies shall be supported by justifications meeting the minimum basic requirements specified in this subpart. For every such contract U. S. Standard Form 1036 (Statement and Certificate of Award) shall be duly executed by the contracting officer, for the files of the General Accounting Office and for the files of the A. E. C. (except where special instructions on the reverse of Standard Form 1034 apply). The advice of counsel should be sought in connection with the preparation of Form 1036 for a contract exceeding $500 in amount entered into without formal advertising, and in any other case where doubt exists as to the proper certification.

§ 5.302 Requirements relating to contracts entered into pursuant to formal advertising under Subpart B. A record of the date and distribution of all invitations to bid shall be maintained by the office of the Commission concerned. Upon the opening of bids the names of the bidders and the amounts bid shall be entered in an abstract or record, certified by the contracting officer, which shall be available for public inspection; and the hour and date of transmission of bids received after the time fixed for opening, if evident from the papers, shall also be recorded. An award to other than the lowest bidder as to price shall be supported by a complete statement of the reasons therefor. In each case where an award is made pursuant to subparagraphs (1), (2), (3), or (4) of § 5.69 (a), U. S. Standard Form 1036 (or the reverse of U. S. Standard Form 1034, as the case may be) shall briefly recite the circumstances under which award was made and shall contain a statement that it has been administratively determined that the award will further the Congressional policy with respect to small business or will further the President's policy with respect to distressed employment areas, or both, as the case may be.

§ 5.303 Records concerning mistakes in bids. Whenever a case of a mistake in a bid is referred to the Division of Finance in Washington, the following papers should accompany a copy of the bid which contains the suspected or alleged mistake:

(a) A copy of the invitation for bids;

(b) An abstract or record of bids received;

(c) A statement from the bidder, and any additional supporting evidence such as work sheets or other data used in preparing the bid, setting forth the complete facts on which the allegation of mistake is based and requesting such definite relief as withdrawal of the bid, change in bid, etc.; and

(d) A statement from the contracting officer showing the date when notice of the alleged mistake was received, and any additional information he may have as to the alleged mistake, together with his recommendations.

§ 5.304 Requirements relating to contracts entered into without formal advertising under Subpart C. Every contract exceeding $500 in amount entered into without formal advertising shall be supported by justifications in narrative form for the files of the A. E. C., covering matters such as the following where applicable:

(a) A reference to the program basis for the contract;

(b) The circumstances upon the basis of which it is concluded that procurement without formal advertising is justified;

(c) The methods of solicitation employed and the information requested from sources of supplies or services, the distribution of and response to such solicitations or requests, and the basis upon which it is concluded that such solicitations or requests were sufficient to assure such full and free competition as is consistent with the procurement of the required supplies or services;

(d) The history of any negotiations, including the consideration given to appropriate factors, and the basis upon which it is concluded that the results of the negotiations are advantageous to the Government;

(e) If the contract is of a type other than fixed-price, lump-sum, or unit-price, the basis upon which it is concluded that procurement of the required supplies or services is impracticable without the use of the type selected.

SUBPART E—PROCUREMENT BY COST-TYPE CONTRACTORS

SCOPE AND APPLICATION

§ 5.401 Scope. This subpart sets forth basic policies to which cost-type contractors should adhere in procuring supplies and services the cost of which is borne by the Commission, and provides for implementation of those policies.

§ 5.402 Meaning of cost-type contractor. The term "cost-type contractor" as used in this subpart means a contractor who has a prime contract with the Commission on a cost basis, or a subcontractor who has a subcontract on a cost-basis under such a prime contract provided all the preceding subcontracts, if any, in the contractual chain are also on a cost basis.

§ 5.403 Limitations on applicability of this subpart. A cost-type research or development contract which is not to be performed at an installation owned by or leased to the Government shall be exempt from mandatory application of the requirements of §§ 5.501 to 5.509 and § 5.601 if the quantity of procurement contemplated under the contract is not deemed substantial by the contracting officer.

§ 5.404 Required approvals not affected. Cost-type contracts include provisions requiring approvals by the Commission or its authorized representative of subcontracts and purchase orders. Nothing contained in this part shall be construed to abrogate or dispense with the requirements of any such contract provision.

BASIC POLICIES

§ 5.501 Objective. In securing supplies and services cost-type contractors shall effect the procurement in the manner most advantageous to the Government—price, quality, and other factors considered.

§ 5.502 Government sources. Requirements shall be met from Government sources if made available and if procurement from such sources is economically advantageous to the Government. Direct procurement by the Commission, rather than by a cost-type contractor, may be required where deemed necessary by the Commission or its authorized representative in order to carry out special requirements of appropriation acts or other applicable laws relating to particular items.

§ 5.503 Sources other than Government sources. Procurement from sources other than Government sources shall be effected by methods calculated to assure such full and free competition as is consistent with securing the required supplies or services.

§ 5.504 Contractor-controlled sources. A cost-type contractor shall notify the contracting officer sufficiently in advance of the proposed procurement of supplies or services from sources owned by or otherwise under its control to permit the Commission, at its option or by agreement with the cost-type contractor, to effect the procurement directly by competitive or other authorized methods.

§ 5.505 Lists of prospective bidders. Cost-type contractors shall be given access to or supplied with copies of lists of prospective bidders maintained by offices of the Commission.

§ 5.506 Small business concerns. A fair proportion of required supplies and services shall be procured from small business concerns (as defined in § 5.24).

§ 5.507 Ineligible contractors and disqualified bidders. Cost-type contractors may treat persons and firms as ineligible or disqualified to the extent that such persons or firms are so treated by the Commission and listed by offices of the Commission in accordance with § 5.25.

§ 5.508 Types of subcontracts and purchase orders. Types of subcontracts or purchase orders other than fixed-price, lump-sum or unit-price types shall not be used unless procurement of the required supplies or services is impracticable without the use of the type selected, but the cost-plus-a-percentage-of-cost type shall not be used in any event.

§ 5.509 Justifications. Each cost-type contractor shall maintain, and make available for review by the Commission, justifications in support of subcontracts and purchase orders adequate to reflect the procurement practices and procedures used and the circumstances supporting particular transactions.

IMPLEMENTATION OF BASIC POLICIES

§ 5.601 Review by the Commission of specific procurement practices and procedures of cost-type contractors. Written statements of the detailed procurement practices and procedures used or proposed to be used by cost-type contractors, and of the objectives intended to be accomplished by such practices and procedures, shall be submitted to contracting officers for review. Contracting officers are required to satisfy themselves that cost-type contractors follow procurement practices and procedures consistent with the basic policies set forth in §§ 5.501 to 5.509, with due regard to applicable contract provisions, and with reasonable tolerances and exemptions based on the amount or character of a transaction.

The provisions of this part are effective February 1, 1951.

Dated at Washington, D. C., this 18th day of December 1950.

By order of the Commission.

M. W. BOYER,
General Manager.

TITLE 15—COMMERCE AND FOREIGN TRADE

Chapter III—Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Department of Commerce

Subchapter C—Office of International Trade

[5th Gen. Rev. of Export Regs., Amdt. 44 [1]]

PART 372—PROVISIONS FOR INDIVIDUAL AND OTHER VALIDATED LICENSES

PART 374—PROJECT LICENSES

PART 381—ENFORCEMENT PROVISIONS

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

1. Section 372.3 How to file an application for export license is amended in the following particulars:

Paragraph (d) Data supplementing the license application is amended by adding thereto a new subparagraph (5) to read as follows:

(5) Statement; commodities added to Positive List. When a commodity becomes subject to the requirements of this section by reason of having been added to the Positive List, export license applications for such commodity to Group R countries need not conform to these requirements for a period of 30 days from the time such commodities are added to the Positive List. In lieu of the end-use and ultimate consignee statement during such 30-day period, applications shall be accompanied by any evidence available to the exporter which will support the applicant's representations concerning the ultimate consignee and end-use. Such evidence may consist of copies of the letter of credit, the order for the commodities, correspondence between the exporter and the consignee, or other documents from such consignee.

2. Section 374.51 Supplement 1; list of restricted commodities is amended by adding thereto the following commodities:

Positive List commodities	Effective date
Carbon black (contact and furnace): Schedule B Nos. 842310, 842350	Mar. 10, 1951
Sulfur (crude, crushed, ground, refined, sublimed, and flowers): Schedule B Nos. 571400, 571500	Mar. 10, 1951

3. The following interpretations are inserted at the end of § 381.4, Destination control:

INTERPRETATIONS

1. Q. Who other than the shipper is authorized to insert the ultimate destination control statement on the export declaration, the bill of lading and the commercial invoice, as provided by Current Export Bulletin 600 (§ 381.4)?

A. The forwarding agent is deemed to have authority to insert the ultimate destination control statement required by § 381.4 (c) (1) on the bill of lading, shipper's export declaration, and commercial invoices, unless the forwarding agent's authorization prohibits him from so doing. If carrier prepares the bill of lading, the carrier must insert the statement on that document based upon information communicated to the carrier by the exporter or his authorized forwarding agent, i. e., an authenticated shipper's export declaration or a validated license, or a properly executed shipper's export declaration given to the carrier for submission to collectors for authentication containing the statement.

2. Q. If shippers or their agents located in inland cities forward to carriers at ports of exit export declarations, bills of lading, and commercial invoices without having inserted the ultimate destination control statement, is it necessary for the carrier to return the documents to the shipper or his agent?

A. If shipper's export declaration presented to the carrier does not contain the ultimate destination control statement, the carrier cannot add such statement to the declaration unless specifically authorized by exporter, nor can the carrier issue a bill of lading containing the statement until exporter or his authorized forwarding agent has placed the statement on the declaration and the declaration has been authenticated by the collector. The carrier may not insert the statement on any shipper's export declaration or commercial invoice accompanying the shipment, unless authorized by designation as provided in case of forwarding agents.

3. Q. Is the collector responsible for checking as to the ultimate destination control statement on the bill of lading and on invoices, as well as on the export declaration?

A. Collectors of customs have the responsibility for checking as to the ultimate destination control statement on all shipper's export declarations submitted for authentication, and should ascertain that the inscription has been placed on any bills of lading or invoices which they receive in the regular course of business or which otherwise come to their attention. In other cases, collectors may, wherever they deem it appropriate, to assure compliance with the regulations, check the bill of lading or commercial invoices as to the ultimate destination control statement or other matters.

4. Q. Do the destination control provisions apply to Positive List commodities exported under such general licenses as GLV, BAGGAGE and TOOLS OF TRADE?

A. The provisions of § 381.4 apply to GLV shipments and to shipment of Positive List commodities under any other general license where an export declaration is required. However, no ultimate destination control statement is required on declarations of commodities exported under general license BAGGAGE.

5. Q. Does this section apply to intransit shipments?

A. The ultimate destination control statement is not required for shipments made under general license GIT, but is required for intransit shipments of commodities excepted from GIT (CES 371.9(c)), and for commodities moving in transit to Subgroup A, Hong Kong, and Macao.

6. Q. Does § 381.4(g) apply only to ship's manifest?

A. The paragraph applies only to customs outward foreign manifest.

(Sec. 3, 63 Stat. 7; 50 U. S. C. App. Sup. 2023. E. O. 9630, Sept. 27, 1945, 10 F. R. 12245, 3 CFR, 1945 Supp.; E. O. 9919, Jan. 3, 1948, 13 F. R. 59, 3 CFR, 1948 Supp.)

This amendment shall become effective as of February 15, 1951, except that Part 2 thereof shall become effective as of March 10, 1951.

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

Chapter III—Office of Price Stabilization, Economic Stabilization Agency

[General Ceiling Price Regulation, Supplementary Regulation 5]

GCPR, SR 5—Retail Prices for New and Used Automobiles

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Public Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Supplementary Regulation 5 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

During the base period established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation, many retail dealers in new automobiles were not following any uniform practice in fixing the delivered prices of new automobiles. Some dealers added arbitrary amounts to the manufacturer's suggested retail price. Others increased the charge for services supplied in preparing the automobile for delivery. Still others increased their charges for miscellaneous services, such as undercoating, glazing, etc. As a result, the ceiling prices for new automobiles do not reflect the substantial uniformity of pricing in the same geographical area that customarily existed.

This regulation is designed to correct the lack of substantial uniformity in the established ceilings and to correct evasive practices. The formula prices established by this regulation effect no substantial change in the general level of prices for new automobiles established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

A somewhat similar but more serious situation was presented with respect to ceiling prices for used automobiles. During the base period established in the General Ceiling Price Regulation and for some months prior thereto, sellers of used cars departed from their established practices of fixing the resale price for their used cars in line with the national pattern publicized by the several used car guides. The vast majority of the dealers in used cars have for many years used one or more of these guides as a basis for purchases and sales. This regulation requires a continuance of this practice and thus re-establishes the long-practiced custom of the industry. The five official guides listed in the regulation, so far as can be ascertained, are the only ones commonly referred to by used car dealers. Several of the listed official guides are issued on a regional basis and two of them are currently limited in their use to specific areas as indicated in the regulation. The regulation, therefore, requires that any dealer choosing an official guide must choose one which is applicable to the region in which he is located. Again, as in the case of new cars, it appears that the level of prices established for the sale of used cars by this regulation will not vary substantially from the general level of prices established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation since the sellers are required to use the January 1951 issue of the guide which reflects that level of prices.

This supplementary regulation is issued as a temporary means of correcting the pricing problems in this industry which have arisen by reason of the General Ceiling Price Regulation. Many urgent requests from members of the industry for immediate action in this area have been received and all the requests urge the action in order that individual sellers and buyers may have a clearer basis upon which to establish the ceiling prices for their transactions. No formal consultations with representatives of the industry have been possible because of the urgency of the situation. The regulation, however, will serve as an interim measure until a permanent industry regulation can be prepared with the advice of representatives of the industry and put into effect.

FINDINGS OF THE DIRECTOR OF PRICE STABILIZATION

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization the provisions of Supplementary Regulation 5 to General Ceiling Price Regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purpose of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950 to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

Sec.
1. Applicability.
2. Definitions.
3. Ceiling prices for new automobiles.
4. Ceiling prices for used automobiles.
5. Prohibitions.
6. Miscellaneous.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 6 issued under sec 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105.

SECTION 1. Applicability. (a) This supplementary regulation establishes the ceiling prices for retail sales of certain new automobiles and for all sales of certain used automobiles. It applies not only to sales by dealers but also to sales by individual private owners. These ceiling prices supersede the ceiling prices for these commodities established under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

(b) The provisions of this regulation are applicable in the United States, its territories and possessions, and the District of Columbia.

SEC. 2. Definitions. (a) "New automobile" means any automobile (designed primarily for the carriage of passengers, whether intended for passenger or commercial or other use), including its standard equipment, having a seating capacity of less than eleven persons, and for which the manufacturer published a suggested price for sale at retail. It does not include any used automobiles or custom-built automobiles or any automobile for which the manufacturer has not published a suggested price for sale at retail as, for example, certain foreign makes of automobiles.

(b) "Sale at retail" means any sale of a new automobile, the ceiling price for which sale is not established by CPR 1 (New Passenger Automobiles).

(c) "Manufacturer" means any person who produced a new automobile the ceiling price for whose sales of automobiles are established by CPR 1.

SEC. 3. Ceiling prices for new automobiles. The ceiling delivered price for a new automobile for sale at retail shall be the sum of the following items:

(a) The manufacturer's suggested list price in effect prior to January 26, 1951. If the car is a new model for which the manufacturer had not published a list price prior to January 26, 1951, the suggested list price which the manufacturer first publishes after January 26, 1951 may be used.

(b) A charge for any extra, special or optional equipment requested by the customer in writing and attached to the automobile (this charge shall not exceed the manufacturer's suggested list price for the equipment or the suggested list price of the producer of the equipment, as the case may be, in effect on January 26, 1951, but may include the ceiling price established under the General Ceiling Price Regulation for installation of the equipment, if a charge for installation was customarily made during the period December 19, 1950 to January 25, 1951, inclusive).

(c) A charge for covering transportation costs, if any, which shall not exceed actual rail freight at carload rate by the most direct route.

(d) A charge equal to the charges made by the seller's suppliers to cover federal excise taxes on the new automobiles and on any extra, special or optional equipment supplied.

(e) A charge equal to the seller's expense for any state and local taxes imposed on the sale of the new automobile and of any extra, special or optional equipment supplied.

(f) The ceiling price established under the General Ceiling Price Regulation for preparing and conditioning the new automobile for delivery.

(g) The ceiling price established under the General Ceiling Price Regulation for any other service (such as undercoating, glazing, polishing, etc.) requested in writing by the customer and customarily performed on new cars by the seller.

The ceiling delivered price established by this section is the price for sales for cash. The dealer may sell on other terms when requested in writing by the purchaser. Any device by which the seller increases his total realization on the sale of a new automobile over his total realization on the sale of the same model during the period December 19, 1950 to January 25, 1951, inclusive, is an evasion of this regulation (such a device, for instance, would be a decrease in the allowance for a used car, if any, taken in trade, below its reasonable value to the dealer, which value should be related to the ceiling price for the used car established by Section 4).

SEC. 4. Ceiling prices for used automobiles. (a) The ceiling price for any used car shall be the highest price listed for that make and model in the January 1951 issue of the used car guide listed in this section 4, which the seller customarily used in the period December 19, 1950 to January 25, 1951, except (1) the ceiling price of any model used car currently being manufactured by the manufacturer shall be the ceiling delivered price of the car when new determined under section 3 of this regulation; and (2) in no event shall the price exceed the ceiling delivered price of the car when new, computed under the formula stated in section 3 of this regulation.

(b) If the used car is older than the oldest model of that make shown in the guide which the seller uses, the ceiling price shall be the ceiling price of the oldest model of that make in that guide.

(c) The ceiling price may be increased by the amount of the used equipment price for any radio, heater, or optional transmission or drive which is furnished with the car and for which a used equipment price is separately listed in the guide which the seller uses.

(d) If the guide does not list any model of the used car, the ceiling price shall be determined under the provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

(e) If the seller did not customarily use any guide listed in this section 4 during the period December 19, 1950 to January 25, 1951, inclusive, he must select one of the listed guides upon which to base his ceiling price, and thereafter base his ceiling price only on the January 1951 issue of the official guide which he has selected.

(f) In each case the seller's ceiling price shall be the price shown in the guide for the region in which the seller's place of business is located. In the case of a sale by a person not in the business of selling used cars, the seller must select the issue of the guide applicable to the region in which he makes delivery of the car to the buyer.

(g) Every seller of used cars except persons not in the business of selling used cars must file with the nearest District Office of the Office of Price Stabilization a statement in writing showing the guide he used during the period December 19, 1950 to January 25, 1951, inclusive, or the guide which he has selected, as the case may be.

The following is a list of the guides:

N. A. D. A. Official Used Car Guide
Red Book National Used Car Market Report
Blue Book National Used Car Market Report
Wisconsin Automotive Valuation Guide (this guide may be used only by sellers in the State of Wisconsin)
Kelly Blue Book (this guide may be used only by sellers in the States of Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada, Oregon, Utah and Washington).

SEC. 5. Prohibitions. After the date of this regulation, regardless of any contract or other obligation, no person shall sell, dispose of, or deliver a new or used automobile, and no person shall buy or receive a new or used automobile at a price in excess of the ceiling price determined in accordance with the provisions of this regulation. No person shall agree, offer, solicit, or attempt to do anything prohibited by this regulation.

SEC. 6. Miscellaneous. All provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation which are not inconsistent with the provisions hereof shall continue to apply to the sale of the commodities covered by this regulation. These provisions include but are not limited to enforcement and penalty provisions and provisions for the keeping of records.

Effective date. This supplementary regulation to the General Ceiling Price Regulation shall become effective on the 2d day of March 1951.

NOTE: The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this supplementary regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

MICHAEL V. DISALLE,
Director of Price Stabilization.

[Docket No. AO-160 A-11 Rol]

HANDLING OF MILK IN PHILADELPHIA, PA., MARKETING AREA

DECISION WITH RESPECT TO A PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO THE TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENT AND A PROPOSED ORDER AMENDING THE ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was conducted at Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, on January 25, 26, and 27, 1950, pursuant to a notice thereof which was issued on January 18, 1950 (15 F. R. 366), on April 19, 20, and 21, 1950, pursuant to notice thereof which was issued on April 12, 1950 (15 F. R. 2146), on May 10, 11, and 12, 1950, pursuant to notice thereof issued on May 3, 1950 (15 F. R. 2687), and on November 21, 1950, pursuant to notice thereof issued on October 20, 1950 (15 F. R. 7139).

Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at the hearing and the record thereof, the Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, on January 15, 1951, filed with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, his recommended decision in this proceeding. The notice of filing such recommended decision and opportunity to file written exceptions thereto was published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on January 19, 1951 (16 F. R. 502; F. R. Doc. 51-956).

The material issues and the findings and conclusions of the recommended decision (16 F. R. 502; F. R. Doc. 51-956) are hereby approved and adopted as the material issues and the findings and conclusions of this decision as if set forth in full herein, except for the following additional findings and conclusions which modify the findings and conclusions of the recommended decision.

Handlers took exception to the conclusion that the proposed Class I price formula should be adopted. While they found little fault in the construction of this formula, they objected to the adoption of the formula method for the determination of the Class I price on the grounds that (1) statistical devices for this purpose are inherently unreliable because they cannot correctly reflect all the factors and considerations involved, and (2) the formula method would introduce instability in the Philadelphia market where present methods of price determination have resulted in notable stability. In the light of the record such exceptions must be denied. In the record there is reference to the successful employment of formulas for this purpose under all other Federal milk marketing orders. More pertinent is the persuasive evidence of the merits of the particular formula recommended for the Philadelphia market constructed from the complete record of the practices and relationships peculiar to that market. Reliance upon it would seem from the evidence to enhance the assurance of properly adjusted prices under the order. Stability would be promoted by relating price movements to factors which, while not encompassing the entire range of price making influences, must inevitably be reflected in price.

Inter-state Milk Producers' Cooperative, Inc., took exception to the exclusion from the formula index of handlers' Class I sales outside the marketing area. It was argued, in the exception, that out-of-area sales may be expected to increase relative to in-area sales because of the greater rate of growth of suburban population, and that the most variable part of out-of-area sales is relatively small compared to total sales.

Class I sales of Philadelphia handlers outside the marketing area were not recommended in the Administrator's decision for use in the formula because of the relatively large variability apparently due in a large part to fortuitous and unusual sales not normally part of handlers' regular operations in supplying this market. It appears that an index including all outside sales made in nearby areas would account for most out-of-area sales, and would at the same time largely exclude the occasional sale made to distant areas. Philadelphia handlers do ordinarily sell milk for Class I use in districts adjacent to the marketing area in Pennsylvania, New Jersey, and Delaware. Sales of Class I milk to handlers operating in Pennsylvania secondary markets would not logically be a normal part of Philadelphia handlers' operations since Pennsylvania secondary markets are within the area where reserve supplies are generally available from sources not regulated under the order.

Although the index of total Class I sales has not, during the effective period of the order, shown any tendency to increase more than in-area sales, there is a possibility that outside sales may be in the future relatively larger in relation to in-area sales than in the past. Accordingly, the producer exception is granted to the extent of including in the index those out-of-area sales which normally could be expected to be made by Philadelphia handlers in areas adjacent to the marketing area. This could be accomplished by including in the index all Class I sales except of milk moved to plants outside of New Jersey and Delaware from which no routes are operated in the marketing area. Such an index should be adjusted for seasonal variation by using the seasonal index for total Class I sales developed by the Philadelphia Class I Milk Price Committee for current use. The monthly values of such an index should be computed by dividing daily average total Class I sales by 16,640, which is the estimated average daily Class I sales during the base period of 1936–1940.

Handlers and Inter-State Milk Producers' Cooperative, Inc., excepted to the part of the proposed formula which would raise or reduce the Class I price depending on the 12-month percentage of receipts in relation to Class I sales. Handlers, in their exceptions, assumed that this device might cause price changes within a calendar quarter. The proposed order provides, however, that the formula price changes, including price changes based on utilization, would occur at the beginning of calendar quarters.

Producers' exceptions to price adjustments based on utilization argued that a 12-month percentage of utilization cannot accurately measure whether supplies are short, adequate, or excessive. In the recommended decision, it was recognized that the 12-month utilization percentage is not a mathematically precise measure of available supply, and accordingly allowance was made for such lack of precision in deciding upon the percentages which would determine when price adjustments should be made. The figure of 135 percent of sales was estimated to be definitely high enough to indicate that supplies were more than necessary to supply the market. Even with considerably lower percentages for a 12-month period, for example, with receipts about 130 percent of Class I sales, an adequate supply of producer milk is available in the short season, based on the seasonal pattern of production during 1949 and 1950.

Producers argued for a higher percentage than 135 percent of sales to be taken as an indication of a surplus supply situation if this device were to be used to adjust prices. In view of producers' exceptions and the uncertainties involved in current national economic conditions, particularly because of the defense mobilization effort, it is deemed desirable at this time to use a slightly higher percentage of Class I sales as a basis for downward price adjustment. Receipts 137 percent of Class I sales during 12 months would be 4 percentage points higher than the highest level of record, and 7 points higher than for the 12 months ending with December 1950. It is recommended that a downward price adjustment be made when the relationship of receipts to sales reaches this level.

Producers' exception that 115 percent of sales is not high enough to serve as a measure of when supplies are inadequate appears to be based on the slow moving nature of a 12-month average, rather than the actual level of the percentage. No statistical device which would react more quickly in measuring the relationship of available supplies to demand was suggested in the testimony or in exceptions. This exception is denied.

In a further exception producers argued that the supply-utilization ratio might be subject to manipulation which would result in an unjustified price reduction. Handlers might, it was argued, deliberately bring in additional plants in order to reduce the utilization percentages. It was pointed out in the recommended decision that the ability of handlers to reduce the average utilization by adding new plants is largely dependent upon the supply situation. The possibility of manipulation could be largely avoided as suggested in the producer exception, by requiring that a producer plant be in such status for a period of time before its receipts are counted in the 12-months average utilization percentage. Requiring producer plant status for 3 consecutive months out of the 12 months would seem to provide adequate safeguard against manipulation.

Ruling on exceptions. In arriving at the findings and conclusions included in this decision each of the exceptions received was carefully and fully considered in conjunction with the record evidence pertaining thereto. To the extent that the findings and conclusions herein are at variance with the exceptions, such exceptions are overruled.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply of and demand for milk in the marketing area and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and in the order, as amended and as hereby proposed to be further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended and as hereby proposed to be further amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and are applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in the said marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Annexed hereto and made a part hereof are two documents entitled, respectively, "Marketing agreement regulating the handling of milk in the Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, marketing area," and "Order amending the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, marketing area," which have been decided upon as the detailed and appropriate means of effectuating the foregoing conclusions. These documents shall not become effective unless and until the requirements of § 900.14 of the rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and orders have been met.

It is hereby ordered, That all of this decision, except the attached marketing agreement, be published in the FEDERAL REGISTER. The regulatory provisions of said marketing agreement are identical with those contained in the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended by the attached order which will be published with this decision.

This decision filed at Washington, D. C., this 16th day of February 1951.

[SEAL] CHARLES F. BRANNAN,
Secretary of Agriculture.

Order[1] Amending the Order, as Amended, Regulating the Handling of Milk in the Philadelphia, Pa., Marketing Area

§ 961.0 Findings and determinations. The findings and determinations hereinafter set forth are supplementary and in addition to the findings and determinations previously made in connection with the issuance of the aforesaid order and of the previously issued amendments thereto; and all of said previous findings and determinations are hereby ratified and affirmed, except insofar as such findings and determinations may be in conflict with the findings and determinations set forth herein.

[1] This order shall not become effective unless and until the requirements of § 900.14 of the rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and orders have been met.

(a) Findings upon the basis of the hearing record. Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C., 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), a public hearing was held upon certain proposed amendments to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, marketing area. Upon the basis of the evidence introduced at such hearing and the record thereof, it is found that:

(1) The said order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(2) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply and demand for milk in the said marketing area and the minimum prices specified in the order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk and be in the public interest; and

(3) The said order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, regulates the handling of milk in the same manner as and is applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

ORDER RELATIVE TO HANDLING

It is therefore ordered, That on and after the effective date hereof the handling of milk in the Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, marketing area shall be in conformity to and in compliance with the terms and conditions of the aforesaid order, as amended, and as hereby further amended, and the aforesaid order, as amended, is hereby further amended as follows:

Delete § 961.4 (a) (1) and substitute the following:

(1) Class I milk. The market administrator shall compute and announce on the 15th day of each month (or on the next business day if the 15th is a holiday) from the latest available data the index values computed pursuant to subdivisions (i) through (vi) of this subparagraph, the Class I price, and the utilization percentages computed pursuant to subdivisions (vii) and (viii) of this subparagraph.

(i) Compute an index of wholesale commodity prices by averaging the four latest weekly index figures of wholesale commodity prices published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, United States Department of Labor, and convert the result to a 1936–1940 base period by dividing by 0.8028.

(ii) Compute an index of prices paid by Pennsylvania farmers per hundredweight for 20 percent protein mixed dairy feed, using a 1936–1940 base period, by dividing by 0.01776 the monthly price for such feed published by the Pennsylvania Federal-State Crop Reporting Service.

(iii) Compute an index of prices received by Pennsylvania farmers for farm products except dairy on a 1936–1940 base period by dividing the monthly index published by the Pennsylvania Federal-State Crop Reporting Service on a 1910–1914 base by 1.0915, and adjust the result for seasonal variation by dividing by the applicable figure indicated below for each month:

January, February, March	0.96
April, May, June	1.00
July, August, September	1.04
October, November, December	1.00

(iv) Compute an index of prices paid for milk by 18 Midwest condenseries, using a 1936–1940 base period, by dividing by 0.013945 the monthly average price paid at 18 Midwest condenseries as reported by the United States Department of Agriculture, and adjust the result for seasonal variation by dividing by the applicable figure indicated below for each month:

January	1.02	July	0.97
February	1.02	August	1.00
March	1.01	September	1.00
April	.99	October	1.00

June	.96	December	1.03

(v) Compute an index of average daily pounds of Class I milk sold by all handlers during the previous month, except that milk which is moved to plants outside of New Jersey and Delaware from which no routes are operated in the marketing area, using a 1936–1940 base period, by dividing the monthly figure by 16,640, and adjust the result for seasonal variation by dividing by the applicable figure indicated below for each month:

January	0.98	July	0.99
February	.99	August	.99
March	1.00	September	1.04
April	.99	October	1.05
May	.98	November	1.02
June	.98	December	.99

(vi) Divide the sum of the indexes calculated in subdivisions (i) through (v) of this subparagraph by 5. This figure shall be the formula index, and shall determine the Class I price for each calendar quarter in accordance with the following table, subject to the provisions of subdivisions (vii) and (viii) of this subparagraph. The price for each calendar quarter shall be determined by the index value calculated and announced in the month preceding the calendar quarter, in accordance with the bracket shown in the following table in which such index value is included, or if such index value is not within a bracket, the price for the calendar quarter shall be determined by the adjacent index bracket which is the same as or nearest to the bracket equivalent to the price in the previous quarter.

(viii) For any calendar quarter the Class I price shall be 40 cents less than the price prescribed in subdivision (vi) of this subparagraph, if receipts of milk from producers during the 12-month period ending with the second preceding month, excluding receipts at plants which were not producer milk plants during 3 consecutive months, are more than 137 percent of total Class I sales by handlers in the same period; except that a price adjustment pursuant to this subdivision shall not exceed an amount which will result in a Class I price equal to the Class I price for the same quarter of the preceding year minus 80 cents: And provided, That the price adjustment described in this subparagraph shall not be effective until the calendar quarter following 12 calendar months after the effective date of this order amending the order as amended.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 70–2566]

GENTILLY DEVELOPMENT CO., INC., AND MIDDLE SOUTH UTILITIES, INC.

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 16th day of February A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that Middle South Utilities, Inc. ("Middle South"), a registered holding company, and its wholly owned non-utility subsidiary Gentilly Development Company, Inc. ("Gentilly"), have filed an application-declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 and have designated sections 11 (b) (1), 11 (b) (2), 12 (c), and 12 (f) thereof and Rule U-46 of the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder as applicable to the proposed transactions which are summarized as follows:

Gentilly's principal assets consist of two first mortgage notes in the aggregate principal amount of $810,000, maturing January 12, 1953, which notes were received in connection with Gentilly's sale of land which it owned in the City of New Orleans (Holding Company Act Release No. 10328). Pursuant to such mortgages the mortgagors may obtain release of specific parcels of property from time to time upon payment of specified amounts per unit of property to be released. As such property is released Gentilly proposes to pay liquidating dividends to Middle South of such amounts as are received in excess of Gentilly's corporate needs. Such payments will be made as a return of capital out of unearned surplus and will be charged to capital surplus created as a result of the reduction of capital stock authorized by the Commission in 1948 (Holding Company Act Release No. 8452). It is proposed that payments received by Middle South will be credited to the carrying value of its investment in the common stock of Gentilly. It is further proposed that Middle South maintain the corporate existence of Gentilly until such time as the mortgage notes shall have been paid, at which time it is contemplated that appropriate action will be taken for complete liquidation of Gentilly.

The application-declaration states that the sale of the real property of Gentilly and the transactions described herein are in pursuance of the program of Middle South and its subsidiaries to dispose of properties not properly constituting a part of the Middle South system.

Applicants-declarants request that the order of the Commission herein recite that the proposed transactions are necessary or appropriate to the integration or simplification of the holding company system of which Gentilly and Middle South are members and necessary or appropriate to effectuate the provisions of section 11 (b) of the act in accordance with the meaning and requirements of the Internal Revenue Code, as amended, including section 1808 (f) and Supplement R thereof.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than March 5, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., e. s. t., request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on such matter, stating the reasons for such request, the nature of his interest and the issues of fact or law raised by said declaration which he desires to controvert, or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after March 5, 1951, said declaration, as filed or as amended, may be permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may exempt such transactions as provided in Rule U-20 (a) and Rule U-100 thereof. All interested persons are referred to said application-declaration which is on file with this Commission for a full statement of the proposed transactions.

By the Commission.

EQUITY CORP. AND FIRST YORK CORP.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 16th day of February A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that The Equity Corporation (Equity) and First York Corporation (First York), both of 103 Park Avenue, New York, New York, have filed an application pursuant to section 6 (c) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 requesting an order granting a partial exemption from the provisions of Rule N-30D–1, so as to permit the applicants to mail at a date not later than March 31, 1951, reports and financial statements as of December 31, 1950, of such applicants.

Section 6 (c) of the act provides in part that the Commission may by order upon application, conditionally or unconditionally exempt any person from any provision or provisions of the act or of any rule or regulation thereunder, if and to the extent that such exemption is necessary or appropriate in the public interest and consistent with the protection of investors and the purposes fairly intended by the policy and provisions of this title. Rule N-30D–1 provides that at least semiannually every registered management investment company shall transmit by mail to each stockholder of record, a report containing certain information and financial statements, as specified in section 30 (d) of the act. Each report is required to be mailed within 30 days after the date as of which the report is made; except that if the reporting company is a nondiversified company having one or more majority-owned subsidiaries which are not investment companies, the report may be mailed within 60 days after the date as of which it is made, or within such longer period as the Commission may permit by order upon application.

Equity and First York are registered, non-diversified management investment companies. The application states that due to delays in closing the accounts of certain industrial subsidiaries and the delay in receiving financial statements from certain subsidiary insurance companies it is impossible to determine the value of First York's and Equity's investment in such subsidiaries. It is further pointed out that an application is presently pending before the Commission with respect to a proposed recapitalization of Commercial Controls Corporation. The plan of recapitalization is to be consummated as of December 31, 1950, but cannot be consummated prior to the issuance of an order by the Commission granting an exemption from the act with respect thereto. Such an order, pursuant to the Commission's notice of application, cannot be issued until after March 1, 1951. It is asserted therefore that financial statements should not be submitted to stockholders until such time as it is possible to reflect consummation of this recapitalization, if and when effected. The applicants request therefore that they be permitted to mail the reports required by section 30 (d) and Rule N-30D–1 within not more than 90 days after December 31, 1950, the date as of which the report is to be made.

For a more detailed statement of the matters of fact and law asserted, all persons are referred to said application which is on file in the offices of the Commission in Washington, D. C.

Notice is further given that an order granting the application, in whole or in part and upon such conditions as the Commission may deem necessary or appropriate, may be issued by the Commission at any time after February 28, 1951, unless prior thereto a hearing upon the application is ordered by the Commission, as provided in Rule N-5 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act. Any interested person may, not later than February 26, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., submit to the Commission in writing his views or any additional facts bearing upon this application or the desirability of a hearing thereon. Any such communication or request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C., and should state briefly the nature of the interest of the person submitting such information or requesting a hearing, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law raised by the application which he desires to controvert.

By the Commission.

[Orange Reg. 360]

PART 966—ORANGES GROWN IN THE STATES OF CALIFORNIA OR IN ARIZONA

LIMITATION OF SHIPMENTS

§ 966.506 Orange Regulation 360—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the provisions of Order No. 66, as amended (7 CFR Part 966; 14 F. R. 3614), regulating the handling of oranges grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and upon the basis of the recommendation and information submitted by the Orange Administrative Committee, established under the said amended order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of the quantity of such oranges which may be handled, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule-making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient, and a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions hereof effective as hereinafter set forth. Shipments of oranges, grown in the State of California or in the State of Arizona, are currently subject to regulation pursuant to said amended order; the recommendation and supporting information for regulation during the period specified herein was promptly submitted to the Department after an open meeting of the Orange Administrative Committee on February 21, 1951, such meeting was held, after giving due notice thereof to consider recommendations for regulation, and interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit their views at this meeting; the provisions of this regulation, including its effective time, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such oranges; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period hereinafter specified; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed by the effective time thereof.

§ 933.517 Tangerine Regulation 109—(a) Findings. (1) Pursuant to the marketing agreement, as amended, and Order No. 33, as amended (7 CFR, Part 933), regulating the handling of oranges, grapefruit, and tangerines grown in the State of Florida, effective under the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended, and upon the basis of the recommendations of the committee established under the aforesaid amended marketing agreement and order, and upon other available information, it is hereby found that the limitation of shipments of tangerines, as hereinafter provided, will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act.

(2) It is hereby further found that it is impracticable and contrary to the public interest to give preliminary notice, engage in public rule making procedure, and postpone the effective date of this section until 30 days after publication thereof in the FEDERAL REGISTER (60 Stat. 237; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) because the time intervening between the date when information upon which this section is based became available and the time when this section must become effective in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act is insufficient; a reasonable time is permitted, under the circumstances, for preparation for such effective time; and good cause exists for making the provisions of this section effective not later than February 26, 1951. Shipments of tangerines, grown in the State of Florida, have been subject to regulation by grades and sizes, pursuant to the amended marketing agreement and order, since October 23, 1950, and will so continue until February 26, 1951; the recommendation and supporting information for continued regulation subsequent to February 25 was promptly submitted to the Department after an open meeting of the Growers Administrative Committee on February 20; such meeting was held to consider recommendations for regulation, after giving due notice of such meeting, and interested persons were afforded an opportunity to submit their views at this meeting; the provisions of this section, including the effective time thereof, are identical with the aforesaid recommendation of the committee, and information concerning such provisions and effective time has been disseminated among handlers of such tangerines; it is necessary, in order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, to make this section effective during the period hereinafter set forth so as to provide for the continued regulation of the handling of tangerines; and compliance with this section will not require any special preparation on the part of persons subject thereto which cannot be completed by the effective time hereof.

(b) Order. (1) During the period beginning at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., February 26, 1951, and ending at 12:01 a. m., e. s. t., March 12, 1951, no handler shall ship:

(i) Any tangerines, grown in the State of Florida, that do not grade at least U. S. No. 1 Bronze; or

(ii) Any tangerines, grown in the State of Florida, that are of a size smaller than a size that will pack a 210 pack of tangerines, packed in accordance with the requirements of a standard pack, in a half-standard box (inside dimensions 9½ x 9½ x 19⅓ inches; capacity 1,726 cubic inches) except that the minimum size of such tangerines shall be 2$^{5}/_{16}$ inches with a total tolerance for variations incident to proper sizing of 20 percent, by count, of tangerines that are smaller than 2$^{5}/_{16}$ inches in diameter of which not more than one-half, or a total of 10 percent by count of the tangerines, are smaller than 2$^{5}/_{16}$ inches in diameter.

(2) As used herein, "handler," "ship," and "Growers Administrative Committee" shall have the same meaning as when used in said amended marketing agreement and order; and "U. S. No. 1 Bronze," "diameter," "210 pack," and "standard pack" shall have the same meaning as when used in the United States Standards for Tangerines (7 CFR 51.416).

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Public Law 774, 81st Congress), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 2 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation (16 F. R. 808) is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

Since the issuance of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, it has become plain that certain features of the regulation need to be modified in order to clarify its intent and to close certain gaps. In particular, some sellers are asserting that they have established ceiling prices under the regulation by virtue of isolated sales at prices which were substantially higher than their own level of prices during the base period. In some cases there is reason to believe that sellers in anticipation of the issuance of a regulation freezing prices, deliberately embarked on a policy of periodically making sales in small quantities at abnormally high prices in order to record transactions which would serve them well following the issuance of a regulation fixing ceiling prices as of some earlier period. In order to remove the inequities among sellers resulting from the forehanded conduct of certain sellers and to reduce unwarrantedly high ceiling prices, the regulation has been amended as it affects manufacturers and wholesalers, to provide that while the ceiling price of a particular commodity is the highest price charged during the base period, account may not be taken of any sales to a particular class of purchaser if those sales amounted to less than 10 percent of all sales to that class of purchasers during the base period.

However, this new rule should not operate to prejudice sellers who in the base period genuinely announced or put into effect a general increase in prices. Accordingly the rule that sales of less than 10 percent to a particular class of purchaser cannot be taken into account is not applicable if all deliveries to a particular class of purchaser following the announcement or putting into effect of the price rise were made at the increased price, except to such purchasers as the seller was found to charge a lower price because of a firm commitment.

A distortion in the price structure of certain sellers has resulted because deliveries were made during the base period at higher prices to one or more classes of purchasers but not to all, thereby creating ceiling prices which do not reflect the seller's normal differentials between classes of purchasers. The present amendment corrects this distortion by allowing a seller to charge as his ceiling price any increase in his prices announced in writing to all classes of purchasers, if the increase was made effective by deliveries to purchasers in one or more classes which in the year 1950 accounted for at least 30 percent of the sales of the commodity to all of the classes for whom the increase was so announced. Of course deliveries which do not establish ceiling prices for a class (under the rules announced above) may not be included in the necessary 30 percent.

Another change which will restore normal pricing relationships involves manufacturers and wholesalers who, during the base period, announced in writing a price increase on a list of commodities, but did not make deliveries of all of the commodities at the higher price. The amendment provides that if the seller made deliveries of items on the price list which during the year 1950 accounted for at least 30 percent of the seller's total sales, of the commodities included in the list, the price becomes the ceiling price for all the items contained on the list.

It has come to the attention of the Director of Price Stabilization that some sellers are selecting the highest price at one business establishment and are using that price as the ceiling price for all their establishments. While the Regulation, as properly interpreted does not permit of this result, the matter is deemed to be of sufficient importance to announce it in the form of a clarifying amendment in addition to an interpretation under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

The term "commodity" was defined in the General Ceiling Price Regulation as in the General Maximum Price Regulation of 1942 to include "contracts to buy, sell or deliver" the physical commodity. This clause is not necessary to accomplish the purpose of the Regulation since the definition of "sell" makes it clear that no one may contract, or even offer, to sell or deliver any commodity at a price in excess of its ceiling price. The particular legal mechanisms by which a person makes a sale, or delivery, or transfers title, or the right to possession of the physical commodity, or makes an offer to do any of these, whether by a formal contract, transfer of a warehouse receipt etc., is of no significance in this regard.

The ceiling for the commodity effectively governs all transactions involving sale, title, delivery, or right of possession of the commodity.

Recently, however, there has emerged on the scene an avowed claim by some sellers that the "contracts" clause of the definition of a commodity may be interpreted to mean that the regulation prescribes one ceiling for "contracts" which are "delivered" during the base period (presumably by exchange of blue-bound documents for their equivalents) and another ceiling for the physical commodity which is delivered after the effective date of the Regulation.

That "interpretation" is not tenable and is a complete distortion of the General Ceiling Price Regulation. The regulation makes it crystal clear that the ceiling price for the commodity governs all deliveries and sales as defined, regardless of the terms of any preexisting contract.

However, since the words in question are not necessary in the definition of a "commodity," they are reworded in the accompanying clarifying amendment to avoid even the shred of a claim by sellers or their counsel that they were in real doubt as to the meaning of the regulation.

The same considerations apply to services, and the definition of "service" has been amended accordingly.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

The General Ceiling Price Regulation is amended in the following respects:

1. Section 3 is amended to read as follows:

SEC. 3. General ceiling prices—(a) Ceiling prices for all sellers for commodities or services sold in base period. Your ceiling price for sale of a commodity or service is the highest price at which you delivered it during the base period to a purchaser of the same class. If you did not deliver the commodity or service during the base period, your ceiling price is the highest price at which you offered it for base period delivery to a purchaser of the same class. The offer must have been made in writing, but in the case of a retailer may have been made by display. If you are a manufacturer or a wholesaler, you cannot, unless permitted by paragraph (b) (1) of this section, use a price as your ceiling price to a class of purchaser unless you made at least 10 percent of your total deliveries during the base period to that class of purchaser at that price.

(b) General increases by manufacturers and wholesalers. If you are a manufacturer or wholesaler of a commodity, you may apply the following provisions in determining your ceiling prices.

(1) General increases to all of a class of purchasers. If, during the base period, you announced in writing and put into effect a price increase for a class of purchaser by making all deliveries to that class for the remainder of the base period at the higher price (except deliveries pursuant to firm commitments made before the price increase), the increased price becomes your ceiling price for that class of purchaser, even though less than 10 percent of your base period deliveries to that class were made at the higher price.

(2) General increases to several classes of purchasers. If, during the base period, you announced in writing a general increase for sales to more than one class of purchasers and if you made deliveries which, under the preceding paragraphs of this section, established the increased price or prices as the ceilings to all purchasers of one or more classes and if those classes accounted during the year 1950 for at least 30 percent of your dollar sales of the commodity, then the announced increased prices are your ceiling prices for all classes of purchasers for whom increases were announced.

(3) General increases on several items. If during the base period you announced in writing a price increase on a list of commodities, and if you made deliveries which, under the preceding paragraphs of this section, established the increased price or prices as the ceilings to all classes of purchasers of one or more of the commodities covered by the price list, and if those commodities accounted during the year 1950 for at least 30 percent of your dollar sales of the commodities covered by the price list, then the price list prices are your ceiling prices for all the items on the list.

2. Section 22 is amended by striking out of the definition of the word "Seller" the words "at retail"; by striking out of the definition of the word "Commodity" the words "and contracts to buy, sell or deliver any of the foregoing"; and by striking out of the definition of the word "Service" the words "and contracts to sell or supply such service."

This amendment shall become effective the 28th day of February 1951.

[General Ceiling Price Regulation, Amdt. 3]

GCPR, AMDT. 3—BASE PERIOD RECORDS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Amendment 3 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation (16 F. R. 808) is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

The accompanying amendment to the General Ceiling Price Regulation postpones, for sellers of commodities at retail, from March 1, 1951 to March 22, 1951, the date on or before which certain statements must be prepared under section 16 (a) (2) and (3) of the Regulation. This in no way removes the requirement contained in subparagraph (a) (1) of section 16 that all sellers at the retail, wholesale, and manufacturing level preserve all records showing prices charged in the base period and records of net cost. The subparagraphs affected by the amendment are subparagraph (2) which, in so far as it affects sellers of commodities at retail, requires preparation of a statement showing the categories in which deliveries or offers for delivery were made during the base period and subparagraph (3) which entails an additional requirement by which sellers must prepare and preserve a ceiling price list showing the commodities in each category delivered or offered for delivery during the base period. Postponement of the preparation of the category and price statements at the retail level is deemed advisable since the issuance of a regulation is contemplated which, it is hoped, may render unnecessary the preparation, by sellers of commodities at retail of certain of the statements which otherwise would be prepared under the General Ceiling Price Regulation and will stubstitute therefor, as to a large number of commodities, statements more expertly tailored to the need of the retailer.

AMENDATORY PROVISIONS

General Ceiling Price Regulation is amended as follows:

Subparagraphs (2) and (3) of section 16 are amended by inserting, in both subparagraphs, after the phrase "March 1, 1951," the phrase "as to all your deliveries and offers for delivery of commodities other than at retail, and on or before March 22, 1951, as to all your deliveries and offers for delivery of commodities at retail,".

Effective date. This amendment is effective immediately.

GCPR, SR 6—EXEMPTION OF THE PANAMA CANAL ZONE

Under the authority vested in the Director of Price Stabilization by the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738) this Supplementary Regulation 6 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

This Supplementary Regulation is issued for the purpose of removing the Panama Canal Zone from the operation of all price regulations issued or to be issued by the Office of Price Stabilization. Heretofore, any price regulation applicable to the Territories and Possessions has been applicable to the Canal Zone.

In the Canal Zone there are no privately owned business establishments and the United States Government, principally through its own stores, maintains a practical monopoly on the supply of all goods to residents of the Canal Zone and the armed forces in that area. Practically all consumers in the Canal Zone are government personnel or employed on government projects. The prices established for commodities purchased by such employees are purposely low. Sufficient price control may be indirectly achieved by control of prices at the source of supply in the United States.

In addition, the application of the present price ceilings on the Canal Zone would result in extremely heavy continued losses to the Government agencies engaged in supplying the residents and the armed forces in the Canal Zone. These losses would arise because of the several factors peculiar to the situation in the Canal Zone including the nature of the Government monopoly and resulting obligation to continue to supply the needs of the residents and armed forces regardless of economic considerations. Another contributing factor is the lag of from 30 to 90 days in the reflection locally of price changes in the United States because of necessary buying methods involving price averaging and the maintenance of large reserves to meet obligations in this area remote from the source of supply in the United States.

Sales made by a person in the continental United States to a purchaser in the Panama Canal Zone continue to be governed by the General Ceiling Price Regulation and any subsequent price regulation issued by the Office of Price Stabilization.

This Supplementary Regulation 6 removes the Canal Zone from coverage by Price regulations.

REGULATORY PROVISIONS

Sec.
1. Removal of the Panama Canal Zone from the operation of all price regulations.
2. Definitions.
3. Sales from a seller in the continental United States to a purchaser in the Panama Canal Zone.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 3 issued under Sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong., E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105.

SECTION 1. Removal of the Panama Canal Zone from the operation of all price regulations. Sales and deliveries of commodities in the Panama Canal Zone shall not be subject to any price regulations issued, or which may be issued, by the Office of Price Stabilization, unless specific provision making a price regulation applicable to the Canal Zone shall hereafter be included in such regulation.

SEC. 2. Definitions. (a) "Panama Canal Zone" includes the Panama Canal and the Canal Zone.

(b) "Price regulation", as used in this Supplementary Regulation 6, means a ceiling price regulation issued by the Office of Price Stabilization, or any amendment or supplement thereto or order issued thereunder.

(c) "Sale and deliveries of commodities in the Panama Canal Zone" do not include sales from a seller outside the Panama Canal Zone to a purchaser in the Panama Canal Zone.

SEC. 3. Sales from a seller in the continental United States to a purchaser in the Panama Canal Zone. Sales from a seller in the continental United States to a purchaser in the Panama Canal Zone shall be governed by the maximum prices established for commodities and services under the General Ceiling Price Regulation and all subsequent price regulations.

Effective date. This Supplementary Regulation 6 to the General Ceiling Price Regulation shall become effective February 23, 1951.

Issued this 22d day of February 1951.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Production and Marketing Administration

[Docket No. AO 201-A 1]

HANDLING OF DRIED PRUNES PRODUCED IN CALIFORNIA

NOTICE OF HEARING WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO MARKETING AGREEMENT AND ORDER

Pursuant to the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and in accordance with the applicable rules of practice and procedure governing proceedings to formulate marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR, Part 900), notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held in Room 300, Public Health Building, 101 Grove Street, Corner Grove and Polk Streets, San Francisco, California, beginning at 9:30 a. m., P. s. t., March 8, 1951, and in Room 449, U. S. Post Office Building, Corner Mission and Seventh Streets, San Francisco, California, beginning at 9:30 a. m., P. s. t., March 9, 1951, with respect to proposed amendments to the marketing agreement and order (7 CFR, Part 993) regulating the handling of dried prunes produced in California. These proposed amendments have not received the approval of the Secretary of Agriculture.

The public hearing will be held for the purpose of receiving evidence with respect to the economic and marketing conditions relating to the proposed amendments which are hereinafter set forth, or appropriate modifications hereof.

The following amendments have been proposed by the Prune Administrative Committee, the administrative agency for the conducting of operations under the aforementioned marketing agreement and order (hereinafter referred to as "the order"):

1. Amend the provisions of § 993.1 (d) of the order to read as follows:

(d) "Prunes" means and includes all sun-dried or artificially dehydrated plums, of any type or variety, produced from plums grown in the State of California, except: (1) Sulfur-bleached prunes which are produced from yellow varieties of plums and are commonly known as silver prunes; (2) plums which have not been dried or dehydrated to a point where they are capable of being stored unrefrigerated or without other artificial means of preservation, prior to packaging, without deterioration or spoilage, and so long as they are treated by a process which is in conformity with, or generally similar to, the processes for treatment of plums of that type which have been developed or recommended by the Food Technology Division, College of Agriculture, University of California for the specialty pack known as "high moisture content prunes", but this exception shall not apply if and when such plums are dried to the point that they are capable of being stored unrefrigerated or without other artificial means of preservation, without deterioration or spoilage; and (3) prunes as used in § 993.5 (d).

2. Delete the provisions of § 993.2 (b) of the order.

3. Renumber § 993.2 (c) of the order as § 993.2 (b), and amend the first sentence of subparagraph (1) of § 993.2 (b), as now proposed to be renumbered, to read as follows:

(1) General. The term of office of members, and their respective alternates, shall be two years, ending on May 31 of even numbered years, and any later date which may be necessary for the selection and qualification of their respective successors.

4. Amend subdivision (ii) of subparagraph (2) of § 993.2 (b) of the order, as now proposed to be renumbered, to read as follows:

(ii) Cooperative producers. Prior to March 1 of each election year, the committee shall report to the Secretary the total tonnage of prunes handled by all handlers as the first handlers thereof and the total tonnage of prunes handled by cooperative marketing associations as the first handlers thereof during the crop year preceding such election year. Prior to March 15 of each election year, the Secretary shall determine and announce the number of producer member nominees and producer alternate member nominees which shall be nominated by cooperative marketing associations handling prunes on behalf of their members. Such number of nominees shall bear, as far as practicable, the same percentage compared to the total of 14 producer members and their alternates as the prune tonnage handled by cooperative marketing associations as the first handlers thereof bears to the total tonnage handled by all handlers as the first handlers thereof during the crop year preceding such election year. Prior to March 31 of each election year the cooperative marketing associations handling prunes shall nominate to the Secretary on behalf of their members such number of producer nominees and their respective alternates.

5. Renumber §§ 993.2 (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), (j), (k), and (l) of the order, to read, respectively, §§ 993.2 (c), (d), (e), (f), (g), (h), (i), (j), and (k).

6. Amend § 993.2 (k) (6) of the order, as now proposed to be renumbered, so as to delete the proviso at the end thereof, and so, as thus amended, it will read as follows:

(6) To submit to the Secretary not later than June 20 of each year, a budget of its anticipated expenditures and the recommended rate of assessment for the ensuing crop year, and the supporting data therefor.

7. Amend the provisions of the first sentence of § 993.3 (a) of the order to read as follows:

(a) Basis. Prior to the beginning of each crop year, the committee shall prepare and submit to the Secretary a report setting forth its marketing policy for the regulation of the handling of prunes in such crop year, pursuant to §§ 993.4 and 993.5.

8. Amend the provisions of § 993.3 (b) of the order so as to delete the proviso at the end thereof, and so, as thus amended, it will read as follows:

(b) Policy meeting. The committee shall hold a meeting for the purpose of formulating and adopting the marketing policy for any crop year not later than June 15 preceding the beginning of such crop year.

9. Amend the provisions of § 993.3 (c) of the order so as to delete the proviso at the end thereof, and so, as thus amended, it will read as follows:

(c) Time of submission. The marketing policy report for any crop year shall be submitted to the Secretary not later than June 20 preceding the beginning of such crop year.

10. Amend the provisions of § 993.4 (a) (1) of the order so as to read as follows:

(1) General. In order to effectuate the declared policy of the act, no handler shall receive prunes from producers or dehydrators, except in accordance with the terms and conditions with respect to grades and sizes set forth in this paragraph: Provided, That no handler shall receive any prunes (either as standard prunes or as substandard prunes) from producers or dehydrators unless such prunes have been properly dried and cured in original natural condition, without the addition of water, and free from active insect infestation, so that they are capable of being received, stored, and packed without deterioration or spoilage. Any high moisture prunes, as described in the exception numbered (2) in paragraph (d) of § 993.1, in the possession of a handler, which are dried or dehydrated to a point where they are capable of being stored unrefrigerated or without other artificial means of preservation, prior to packaging, without deterioration or spoilage, shall be deemed, at that time, to have been received by such handler as prunes and to be subject to all of the conditions and restrictions hereof.

11. Amend the provisions of § 993.4 (a) (5) of the order to read as follows:

(5) Substandard natural condition prunes—(i) Producer's or dehydrator's options. Any natural condition prunes tendered to a handler by a producer or dehydrator which fail to meet the applicable minimum standards as to grades and sizes, may, (a) at the producer's or dehydrator's option, be returned to such producer or dehydrator for sorting, or, (b) by agreement between such producer and handler or dehydrator and handler, may be received pursuant to the provisions of subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph, or, (c) be turned over to the Handler unsorted to be held by him, as substandard natural condition prunes, for the account of the committee. Any such substandard prunes, except as otherwise specifically provided, shall be treated the same as and be subject to the same provisions respecting surplus prunes, as contained in § 993.5, and, except those referred to in subdivision (ii) of this subparagraph, shall be held by a handler separate and apart from any standard prunes held by him.

(ii) Equivalent quantity basis. In the event a producer or dehydrator should elect to arrange with a handler for the receiving of substandard prunes tendered by him to such handler for sorting or disposing of such prunes unsorted in conformity with the provisions hereof, the inspection agency designated to make inspections of prunes shall issue, at the handler's expense, a certificate of appraisal on such prunes so tendered, which shall show the percentage thereof comprising offgrade prunes necessary to be removed therefrom for the remainder to be standard prunes. A quantity of prunes equivalent to the weight of such offgrade prunes represented by the application of such percentage to the total tonnage so appraised and certified shall be treated as substandard prunes in the manner provided for in subdivision (i) of this subparagraph: Provided, That any prunes so treated as substandard prunes shall be of such comparable size as may be established by the committee through issuance of rules and regulations. No certificate of inspection on such substandard natural condition prunes so tendered shall be required after a certificate of appraisal has been issued applicable to such prunes.

12. Amend the provisions of § 993.4 (b) (5) (ii) of the order to read as follows:

(ii) Defective prunes accumulated from standard prunes and prunes received by a handler for his own account which fail to meet the quality standards for disposition. Any defective prunes which may be accumulated by a handler by removing them from his standard prunes and any prunes received by a handler for his own account which fail to meet the quality standards for the disposition of prunes, may be disposed of, or marketed for disposition, as animal feed, pitted prunes, or as other prune products in which they lose their form and character as prunes by conversion prior to consumption: Provided, That any such prunes which are disposed of, or marketed for disposition, for human consumption shall meet those minimum standards prescribed in Exhibit A (which is attached to and made a part hereof) as relate to the defects of mold, imbedded dirt, insect infestation, and decay. The committee shall issue any such rules and regulations as may be necessary to insure such uses. Each handler shall, at his own expense, before shipping or otherwise making final disposition of prunes under this subdivision, cause an inspection to be made of such prunes by the inspection agency. Such handler shall obtain from the inspection agency a certificate that such prunes meet the applicable conditions contained herein, and submit it, or cause it to be submitted, together with such other instruments and records as the committee may require, to the committee. Otherwise, such prunes may be shipped or disposed of for the purposes specified in this subdivision without regard to the restrictions contained in subparagraphs (2), (3), and (4) of this paragraph.

13. Amend the provisions of § 993.4 of the order to add, at the end thereof, a new paragraph, lettered (c), and which will read as follows:

(c) Regulation of the handling of prunes during any crop year when the estimated season average price is in excess of parity—(1) Determination. If the Secretary should conclude that the season average price for prunes for any crop year will be in excess of the price level contemplated by the provisions of section 2 (1) of the act, he shall issue an order in which such finding is set forth, and, in such order, he shall provide that, for such crop year, the handling of prunes shall be in accordance with the provisions set forth hereinafter in this paragraph.

(2) Receiving of prunes by handlers. In lieu of the provisions set forth in paragraph (a) of this section, a handler may receive any tender of prunes from a producer or dehydrator: Provided, That such prunes have been properly dried and cured in original natural condition, without the addition of water, and free from active insect infestation, so that they are capable of being received, stored, and packed without deterioration or spoilage. However, for the assistance of the committee in its supervision of operations under this paragraph, each handler shall, at his own expense, cause an inspection to be made by the inspection agency for the purpose of ascertaining the net weight of the delivery and the percentage of defective prunes in such delivery which is in excess of the maximum tolerances specified in paragraph C of subdivision I of Exhibit A (which is attached to and made a part hereof). In the case of each such inspection, the handler shall obtain from the inspection agency a certificate showing the percentage of such excess by defects or groups of defects, as the committee may require, and he shall submit such certificate, or cause it to be submitted, together with such other instruments and records as the committee may require, to the committee.

(3) Disposition of prunes by handlers. In lieu of the requirements set forth in paragraph (b) of this section, no handler shall ship or otherwise make final disposition of prunes (regardless of whether natural condition or processed prunes), for human consumption as prunes, which fail to meet the applicable minimum standards set forth in the aforesaid Exhibit A for standard prunes or standard processed prunes, as the case may be. Also, no handler shall ship or otherwise make final disposition of natural condition prunes or of processed prunes for use in the manufacture of any prune product for human consumption as food, which fail to meet the applicable minimum standards set forth in the aforesaid Exhibit A for standard prunes or standard processed prunes, as the case may be, which relate to the defects of mold, insect infestation, imbedded dirt, and decay. Any handler may ship or otherwise make final disposition of any natural condition prunes or of any processed prunes, as the case may be, for any use other than those referred to in the two preceding sentences. Such disposition without restriction shall include, but is not limited to, disposition for animal feed, botanicals, and distillation. Each handler shall, at his own expense, before shipping or otherwise making final disposition of prunes, cause an inspection to be made by the inspection agency to determine whether they meet the applicable grade standards, as set forth hereinabove in this subparagraph, and he shall obtain from the inspection agency a certificate that such prunes meet the aforementioned applicable minimum standards and submit such certificate, or cause it to be submitted, together with such other instruments and records as the committee may require, to the committee. Notwithstanding the aforesaid restrictions, any handler may transfer prunes from one plant owned by him to another plant owned by him within the State of California, and any handler may ship prunes from his plant to another handler's plant within the State of California, without having such inspection made and certificate issued. A report of each inter-handler transfer shall be made promptly by the transferring handler to the committee, and the receiving handler shall, before shipping or otherwise making final disposition of such prunes, comply with the requirements of this subparagraph. The committee is hereby authorized to exercise such supervision as may be reasonably necessary to insure that prunes are disposed of for the respective uses for which they were intended, and that the prunes used for each particular purpose meet the applicable minimum grade standards prescribed in this subparagraph.

(4) Inspection agency. The inspection agency referred to in this paragraph shall be the same as the inspection agency which is provided for in paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section.

(5) Assessments. In lieu of the payment of assessments pursuant to the computation method prescribed in § 993.7 (b) (1), each handler shall pay to the committee, upon demand, with respect to all prunes received by him as the first handler thereof, his pro rata share of such expenses which the Secretary finds will be incurred pursuant to the provisions of § 993.7 (a) by the committee during such crop year. Also, in such an event, each handler's pro rata share of such expenses shall be equal to the ratio between the total tonnage received by him as the first handler thereof during such crop year and the total tonnage received by all handlers as the first handlers thereof during the same crop year. The Secretary shall fix the rate of assessment to be paid by such handlers on the basis of a specified rate per ton. At any time during or after a crop year the Secretary may increase the rate of assessment to apply to all prunes received by handlers as the first handlers thereof during such crop year to obtain sufficient funds to cover any finding by the Secretary relative to the expenses of the committee. Each handler shall pay such additional assessment to the committee upon demand. The Secretary shall reduce the assessment rate applicable to all such tonnage during the particular crop year if he finds that when thus reduced it will provide funds sufficient to enable the committee properly to perform its functions hereunder. In all other respects, the provisions of § 993.7 shall remain in full force and effect. Further, the provisions of §§ 993.1, 993.2, 993.3, 993.6 and 993.8, and all subsequent sections shall remain in full force and effect in such a situation, except to any extent that any such provisions may clearly be inappropriate or inapplicable.

14. Amend the provisions of § 993.5 (e) of the order to read as follows:

(e) Disposition of surplus tonnage—(1) Purposes for which disposition may be made—(i) Sales to United States Government and foreign governments. The committee is authorized to sell direct, or to sell to handlers for resale, surplus tonnage to the United States Government or to any agency thereof (including, but not limited to, sales for domestic or foreign relief purposes, school lunch and institutional feeding, or for foreign economic assistance), or to any foreign government. Such sales may be at negotiated prices with adequate consideration to probable processing costs.

(ii) Sales for export. In the event it appears that the total salable tonnage is not sufficient to meet the estimated domestic and foreign requirements due to the expansion of foreign markets in countries which were considered in estimating the salable percentage, to a greater extent than was anticipated at the time of such estimate, the committee may offer to sell, and sell, surplus standard prunes to handlers for sale into, and for use in, such foreign channels in such quantities as are necessary to meet the increased demand. The quantity of prunes included in any offer to sell to individual handlers shall be in the proportion that the respective handler's sales in foreign channels bears to sales in such channels by all handlers. No such sale shall be made by the committee at a price below that which reflects the average price received by producers for salable tonnage during the then current crop year to a date as near as practicable to the date of the offer, as shown by the reports required to be filed under the provisions of § 993.6, plus accrued charges for receiving and storing of surplus tonnage.

In addition, the committee may offer to sell, and sell, to any handler, a quantity of surplus prunes for export to any foreign country, which country was not included in the estimates upon which the salable percentage was based, in the event of proof of demand for such quantity for such country. Such sale may be made at a negotiated price. The committee shall require proof that any standard prunes so sold were used for the purpose for which they were sold.

The committee shall file with the Secretary, by telegram or air mail letter, seven calendar days prior to making any offer to sell under either of the foregoing situations, surplus standard prunes pursuant to this subdivision, complete information with respect thereto, including the basis for such proposal. The Secretary shall have the right to disapprove, within such seven-day period, the making of such an offer or any term or condition thereof.

(iii) Sales for aminal feed and certain manufacturing uses. The committee may sell any surplus prunes for animal feed, botanicals, distillation, or for any manufacturing uses which were not provided for in connection with the estimating of the salable quantity of standard prunes for the then current crop year. Such sales may be made at negotiated prices. The committee is hereby authorized to exercise such supervision as may be reasonably necessary to insure that such prunes are disposed of for the respective uses for which they are sold.

(iv) Sales to handlers. If the committee finds that total contracted sales by all handlers during the crop year exceeds 80 percent of the total salable tonnage received by all handlers plus 80 percent of the estimated tonnage held unsold by producers and dehydrators which would become salable tonnage; or, if the committee finds that more than 20 percent of the uncontracted salable tonnage is being held so tightly by relatively few handlers, dehydrators, or producers as seriously to restrict commerce in prunes and if 75 percent of all handlers have made a written request therefor and such requesting handlers have purchased over 65 percent of the salable tonnage purchased from producers and dehydrators, the committee may, in either event, sell to handlers standard prunes from the surplus tonnage for use as salable tonnage, subject to the following conditions:

(a) No such sale shall be made prior to December 15;

(b) No single sales offer of surplus tonnage to handlers shall exceed 20 percent of the original estimated salable tonnage;

(c) If any such sale is made for manufacturing purposes in which the prunes will lose their form and character as prunes by conversion prior to consumption, it may be made by the committee at a negotiated price; otherwise, such sales shall not be made by the committee at a price below that which reflects the average price received by producers for salable tonnage during the then current crop year to a date as near as practicable to the date of the offer, as shown by the reports required to be filed under the provisions of § 993.6, plus accrued charges for receiving and storing of surplus tonnage;

(d) In any offer by the committee to sell surplus tonnage to handlers pursuant to this subdivision, each handler shall be given the first opportunity to purchase his share of the offer, which share shall be determined as the same proportion that the respective surplus tonnage held by him is of the surplus tonnage held by all handlers. In the event that any handler declines or fails to purchase any or all of his share of any such offer, the remaining portion thereof shall be re-offered by the committee to all handlers who purchased all of their respective shares of such offer, in proportion to their respective shares. Any balance remaining unsold after such re-offer shall be withdrawn from the particular offer. Any offer outstanding as of July 5 of any crop year shall be withdrawn and the committee shall not make any further offer to sell surplus tonnage to handlers after that date, except that if the committee determines, with the approval of the Secretary, that a major change in conditions has occurred, such as the involvement of the United States in war or a crop failure in the following year, or any other significant development, which indicates a shortage of supply, the said July 5 limitation shall no longer apply; and

(e) The committee shall file with the Secretary, by telegram or air mail letter, seven calendar days prior to making any offer to sell surplus prunes pursuant to this subdivision, complete information with respect thereto, including the basis therefor. The Secretary shall have the right to disapprove, within such seven-day period, the making of such an offer or any term or condition thereof.

(v) Sales of standard prunes for manufacturing purposes. In the event it appears that the total salable tonnage is not sufficient to meet the estimated domestic and foreign requirements due to the expansion of manufacturing outlets, which outlets were provided for in estimating the salable percentage, to a greater extent than was anticipated at the time of estimating the salable percentage, the committee may offer to sell, and sell, surplus standard prunes to handlers for resale or use for such manufacturing purposes in which such prunes will lose their form and character as prunes by conversion prior to consumption, in such quantities as are necessary to meet the increased demand. The quantity of prunes offered to individual handlers to meet such deficiency shall be in the proportion that the respective handler's sales or uses for manufacturing bears to sales or uses for manufacturing by all handlers. No such sale shall be made by the committee at a price below that which reflects the average price received by producers for salable tonnage during the then current crop year to a date as near as practicable to the date of the offer, as shown by the reports required to be filed under the provisions of § 993.6, plus accrued charges for receiving and storing of surplus tonnage.

In addition, the committee may offer to sell, and sell to any handler, a quantity of surplus standard prunes for any manufacturing use, which manufacturing use was not included in the estimate upon which the salable percentage was based, in the event of proof of demand for such quantity for such purpose. Such sale may be made at a negotiated price. The committee shall require proof that any standard prunes so sold were used for the purpose for which they were sold.

The committee shall file with the Secretary, by telegram or air mail letter seven calendar days prior to making any offer to sell under either of the foregoing situations, surplus standard prunes to handlers pursuant to this subdivision, complete information with respect thereto including the basis for such proposal. The Secretary shall have the right to disapprove, within such seven-day period, the making of such offer or any term or condition thereof.

(vi) Sales of substandard prunes for animal feed and for manufacturing purposes. The committee may sell direct, or sell to handlers for resale, substandard prunes for animal food, and for any manufacturing purpose in which such prunes will lose their form and character as prunes by conversion prior to consumption: Provided, That any such prunes which are sold for disposition for manufacturing purposes for human consumption, either directly to handlers, or for resale by handlers, shall, at the time of such disposition or use, meet those minimum standards prescribed in Exhibit A (which is attached to and made a part hereof) as relate to the defects of mold, imbedded dirt, insect infestation, and decay; and any such prunes so sold by the committee to a person who is not a handler shall meet those quality standards at the time of disposition by the committee: And provided, further, That no such sales shall be made while standard prunes are available in the surplus tonnage. The committee is hereby authorized to exercise such supervision as may be reasonably necessary to insure that such prunes are disposed of for the respective uses for which they were sold. Such sales may be made at negotiated prices.

(vii) Donations of surplus prunes. The committee may donate limited quantities of surplus prunes for use in research or promotional activities.

(viii) Unsold surplus tonnage. The committee shall endeavor to sell all prunes in the surplus tonnage at a rate so as to achieve, as nearly as may be practicable, the complete disposition of the surplus tonnage not later than July 31 of the crop year. Any surplus tonnage remaining unsold as of July 31 shall be disposed of as soon as practicable for animal feed, distillation, or in any other outlets which are not competitive with the sale of prunes in normal marketing channels, not otherwise provided for in this paragraph, unless determination with respect to a shortage of supply has been made as provided for in subdivision (iv) (d) of this subparagraph. The committee may dispose of unsold surplus prunes after July 31 at negotiated prices.

(2) Proceeds of sales of surplus tonnage—(i) Charges against proceeds. Expenses incurred by the committee for the receiving, handling, holding, or disposing of any quantity of surplus tonnage shall be charged against the proceeds of sales of surplus tonnage.

(ii) Distribution of net proceeds. Net proceeds from the disposition of surplus tonnage shall be distributed by the committee either directly, or through handlers as agents of the committee, under safeguards to be established by the committee, to persons in proportion to their contributions thereto, or to assignees of such interests, with appropriate grade and size differentials as established by the committee. Progress payments may be made by the committee in the same manner, as sufficient funds accumulate. Distribution of the proceeds in connection with the surplus tonnage contributed by a nonprofit cooperative agricultural marketing association which has authority to market the prunes of its members and to allocate the proceeds therefrom to such members shall be made to such association, if it so requests. Prior to making any such distribution, the committee shall submit to the Secretary a report including all pertinent details with respect thereto.

(3) Prohibition against the hypothecation of surplus. In no event shall the committee hypothecate surplus tonnage.

15. Amend the provisions of § 993.7 (a) of the order to read as follows:

(a) Expenses. The committee is authorized to incur such expenses (exclusive of expenses for the receiving, handling, holding, or disposing of any quantity of surplus tonnage) as the Secretary finds are reasonable and likely to be incurred by it during each crop year for the maintenance and functioning of the committee and for such other purposes as the Secretary may, pursuant to the provisions hereof, determine to be appropriate. The recommendation of the committee as to these expenses and the recommended rate of assessment for each such crop year, together with all data supporting such recommendations, shall be filed with the Secretary not later than June 20 preceding the crop year in connection with which such recommendations are made.

16. Amend the provisions of the first sentence of § 993.7 (b) (1) of the order to read as follows:

(1) Requirement for payment and rate of assessment. The funds to cover the expenses of the committee (exclusive of expenses for the receiving, handling, holding, or disposing of any quantity of surplus tonnage) shall be acquired by levying assessments.

The following amendment has been proposed by four handlers of dried prunes, namely, Richmond-Chase Company and Mayfair Packing Company of San Jose, California, and California Packing Corporation and Rosenberg Brothers & Company, Inc., of San Francisco, California:

17. Amend the provisions of § 993.2 (b) (3) of the order, as now proposed to be renumbered, by changing the period at the end thereof to a colon and adding the following: "Provided, That the Secretary shall determine and announce the number of nominees for member and alternate member which shall be nominated for large, medium, and small handlers who are not cooperative marketing associations (hereinafter called "independent handlers") on the basis of the following: Large handlers are those who, during the preceding crop year, individually handled 17 or more percent of the total tonnage handled by independent handlers; approximately 40 percent of such nominees shall be large handlers. Medium handlers are those who, during the preceding crop year, individually handled 8 or more percent but less than 17 percent of the total tonnage handled by independent handlers; approximately 20 percent of the nominees for member and alternate member respectively, to which independent handlers are entitled, shall be medium handlers. Small handlers are those who, during the preceding crop year, individually handled less than 8 percent of the total tonnage handled by independent handlers; approximately 40 percent of such nominees shall be small handlers."

The following amendment has been submitted by certain independent producers of dried prunes:

18. Amend the provisions of § 993.2 (b) (2) (i) of the order, as now proposed to be renumbered, by changing the period at the end thereof to a colon and adding the following: "Provided, That the respective areas covered by the aforementioned seven districts may be changed by the Secretary at any time he concludes that such areas, as delineated above, no longer represent approximately equal segments from the standpoints of numbers of producers of prunes or productions of prune tonnages with a view to reestablishing such equalization on the basis of the existing situations."

The following amendments are proposed by the Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture:

19. Renumber the sections, paragraphs, subparagraphs, and subdivisions throughout the marketing order in accordance with the revised Federal Register regulations, and make similar conforming changes in the numbering of the provisions of the marketing agreement.

20. Make such other changes in the marketing agreement and order as may be necessary to make the entire marketing agreement and order conform with any amendments thereto which may result from this hearing.

21. Amend the provisions of § 993.1 of the order by adding the following paragraph, lettered (t), at the end thereof:

(t) Part and subpart. "Part" means the order regulating the handling of dried prunes produced in California, and all rules, regulations, and supplementary orders issued thereunder. This order regulating the handling of dried prunes produced in California shall be a "subpart" of such part.

C., or may be there inspected, or from the Western Marketing Field Office, Fruit and Vegetable Branch, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, 335 Fell Street, San Francisco 2, California.

CANNED VEGETABLES OTHER THAN THOSE SPECIFICALLY REGULATED; DEFINITIONS AND STANDARDS OF IDENTITY

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

In the matter of amending the definition and standard of identity for canned mushrooms and adopting a standard of fill of container for canned mushrooms:

It is proposed that, by virtue of the authority vested in the Federal Security Administrator by the provisions of the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act (secs. 401, 701, 52 Stat. 1046, 1055; 21 U. S. C. 341, 371) and upon the basis of substantial evidence received at the public hearings held pursuant to the notices published in the FEDERAL REGISTER on July 5, 1949 (14 F. R. 3922) and March 10, 1950 (15 F. R. 1310), and upon consideration of proposed findings of fact filed by interested parties, which are adopted in part and rejected in part as is apparent from the detailed findings made below, the following order be made:

Findings of fact.[1] 1. In 1937 there was established a standard of fill of container for canned mushrooms under authority conferred on the Secretary of Agriculture by the McNary-Mapes Amendment to the Federal Food and Drugs Act of 1906 (46 Stat. 1019; 21 U. S. C. 9, 10).[2] This standard was in force until the act of 1906 was superseded by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act of 1938. In 1939, a definition and standard of identity for canned mushrooms (21 CFR Part 52) was established. This standard provides that canned mushrooms are the caps and stems of mushrooms in the optional forms of buttons, whole, slices, or pieces and stems of mushrooms with water, sealed in a container and so processed by heat as to prevent spoilage. Optional ingredients permitted were salt, citric acid, a vinegar, spice, sugar, and corn sugar. The only optional ingredients known to have been used in canned mushrooms are salt for seasoning, and citric acid for obtaining a lighter color of the canned mushrooms. During World War II, when tin containers were in short supply, some mushroom canners packed mushrooms in glass containers. This experience revealed that mushrooms packed in glass appeared to become darker during storage. Ready sales, however, obviated prolonged storage during this period. Mushrooms packed in tin containers do not darken during storage but on the contrary, for a limited period, become lighter in color than when first packed. As the supply of tin increased, packers of mushrooms in glass returned to the use of tin containers. A canner of mushrooms interested in packing mushrooms in glass containers in 1948 and 1949 made experimental packs containing ascorbic acid and citric acid for retarding the color changes during storage. This canner applied for a hearing on a proposal to amend the standard of identity for canned mushrooms to include ascorbic acid as an optional ingredient. A hearing was held on this proposal (14 F. R. 3922) but before a tentative order was published application was made by the Cultivated Mushroom Institute of America to hold a second hearing to take additional evidence on the proposal to include ascorbic acid as an optional ingredient and to take evidence on a proposal to restrict the optional ingredients to water and salt. In granting this application (15 F. R. 1310), the Administrator on his own initiative also proposed to take evidence on a proposal to establish a standard of fill of container for canned mushrooms. A second hearing was held pursuant to this application. These findings are based on the evidence presented at both hearings. (R. 10, 18, 19, 21, 23, 28, 46–47, 54–56, 152–153, 158–159, 200–201, 237–239, 247, 248, 400, 507, 509, 513, 522, 566, 725, 733, 838–840, 841; Ex. 2, 6, 18)

2. Experimental packs of canned mushrooms prepared on a semicommercial scale show that such mushrooms packed in glass or tin containers with small quantities of citric acid and ascorbic acid are lighter in color than the same quality of mushrooms with only salt and water. This is true at any time after packing. When used together, citric acid and ascorbic acid have a greater lightening effect on color of canned mushrooms than either acid used alone. The effect on the color is increased as the quantity of acids added is increased, and this effect is more pronounced in tin containers than in glass. (R. 43–57, 290, 325–326, 330, 349, 734–735, 758; Ex. 8, 10, 11, 16)

3. To obtain high-quality canned mushrooms, the raw mushrooms used should be picked at optimum maturity for canning and canned promptly after picking. Sometimes, because of the receipt of a large supply of raw mushrooms by the cannery, or for other reasons, it may be necessary to hold the raw stock for a day or several days before canning. Such a holding period results in this raw stock becoming stale. All mushrooms undergo changes in color during the canning process. Stale mushrooms after canning are darker in color than they would be if canned when freshly picked. The addition of small amounts of citric acid in the canning process lessens the darkening that results from canning. Such addition of small amounts of citric acid to stale mushrooms makes it possible to obtain a canned product of about the same color as when fresh mushrooms are canned without an added acid. The mechanism of the chemical action of dilute citric acid which results in a lighter color of the canned mushrooms is not definitely shown by the record, but it appears that its effect in lightening the color of mushrooms is caused by an intensified reaction between the contents of the container and tin. Citric acid is the only acid known to be commercially used for this purpose. There was evidence that other acid-reacting substances have been used but their identity was unknown to the canners who testified at the hearings. There also was evidence that the addition of any substance which lowers the pH will lighten the color of canned mushrooms. (R. 141–142, 193–194, 195, 224–225, 227, 230, 252–253, 330, 350, 522, 527–528, 530, 556–558, 568, 646, 648–649, 651, 653, 670–671, 692–693, 784; Ex. 8)

4. In determining the grade for canned mushrooms according to the standards promulgated by the Production and Marketing Administration of the United States Department of Agriculture, more importance is attached to the factor of color than to any of the other factors considered, such as uniformity of size and symmetry, absence of defects, and tenderness. The use of citric acid enables a canner to pack stale mushrooms which are graded higher on the factor of color than such stale mushrooms canned without the addition of citric acid. The use of citric acid in canned mushrooms has not promoted honesty and fair dealing in the interest of consumers. (R. 159–160, 224, 248, 356, 367–368, 559–560, 646–647, 651; Ex. 15)

5. The lightening of color of mushrooms, canned in tin containers with only water and salt, during storage appears to be due to a reaction of the packing medium with the tin of the container, although the mechanism causing the lightening is not known. When the acidity of the packing medium is increased by the use of any acid-reacting substance, this reaction is intensified. The reaction which affects the color of the mushrooms does not reach an equilibrium for some time, and the mushrooms in tin containers continue to become lighter in color during the first few months in which they are held in storage. (R. 355, 357–358, 693, 738)

6. The mechanism of the action of ascorbic acid on the color of canned mushrooms, when it is added in small amounts in the canning process, is not established. During processing there is an apparent reduction in the amount of ascorbic acid, which indicates a reaction of the ascorbic acid with oxygen inside the container. There is some increase in acidity when ascorbic acid is used, but its effect on the pH of canned mushrooms is less pronounced than that of like quantities of citric acid. (R. 74, 76, 82, 86, 350–354, 784, 805, 876; Ex. 8, 14, 16, 22)

7. The characteristic light tan color of canned mushrooms in tin containers prepared from mushrooms picked at optimum maturity and promptly canned furnishes purchasers a basis for judging the quality of canned mushrooms both in tin and glass containers. Since the color of mushrooms canned in glass containers is not as light as that of those in tin containers, the mushrooms in glass containers are at a disadvantage. By limiting the quantity of the ascorbic acid used so that its effect on the color of the mushrooms is to restrict darkening from oxidation, it is possible to obtain this desirable effect without likelihood of abuse. In the few experiments reported where the pH of the liquid drained from the canned mushrooms was determined, ascorbic acid alone in amounts not exceeding 150 milligrams per 4 ounces drained weight of mushrooms lowered the pH an average of approximately 0.25 when compared with the pH of similar mushrooms canned with water and salt only. It is unlikely that there will be abuse from the use of ascorbic acid alone, in amounts not greater than 150 milligrams per 4 ounces of drained mushrooms. (R. 21, 57, 78, 156–157, 190–191, 553–557, 581, 648, 727, 737, 799–800, 876; Ex. 8, 9, 14, 16, 22)

8. The pH of mushrooms canned with water and salt as reported in this record varies from 5.9 to 6.7. The addition of an acid lowers the pH of canned mushrooms, depending on the acid used and the amount added. If the liquid drained from canned mushrooms has a pH of less than 5.9 it indicates that some ingredient other than water and salt has been added. Citric and ascorbic acid can be detected in canned mushrooms by well-known methods of analysis, but other acid-reacting substances might be added in small amounts and escape detection by objective examination of the canned mushrooms. A requirement that the pH of canned mushrooms be not less than 6.0 was proposed. Such a requirement would be very helpful in enforcing the prohibition of unauthorized ingredients, but the data on the pH of canned mushrooms are insufficient for prescribing such a limit. (R. 57, 181–183, 291–292, 293, 294, 295, 296, 300, 333–334, 376, 530, 670–671, 755, 876, 877; Ex. 8, 9, 14, 16, 22)

9. The McNary-Mapes amendment to the Food and Drugs Act of 1906 authorized the adoption of standards of quality, condition, and fill of container for most canned foods. The standard of fill of container for canned mushrooms promulgated by the Secretary of Agriculture in 1937 provided for minimum drained weights for mushrooms packed in ten specified containers, and for minimum drained weights based on a ratio of 1 ounce of drained mushrooms for each 3 cubic inches inside capacity for containers other than those specified. That standard became inoperative when the Food and Drugs Act of 1906 was superseded by the Federal Food, Drug, and Cosmetic Act of 1938 and since that time there has been no standard of fill of container for canned mushrooms. (R. 839–842; Ex. 18)

10. It is the general practice of canners to blanch the fresh mushrooms in hot water or steam before packing into containers. This blanching results in some shrinkage of the fresh mushrooms that would otherwise occur during processing and might result in a slack fill. Even though the McNary-Mapes standard has not been in force for several years, canners of mushrooms have continued the practice of blanching and filling to meet the levels prescribed under that standard. Compliance with the standard for fill of container for canned mushrooms has generally resulted in the containers being well filled with mushrooms. (R. 150–152, 220, 506–507, 552–553, 561, 587–588, 645, 650–651, 678, 829–831, 840–846, 851; Ex. 18, 19)

11. Canned mushrooms are now packed in substantial quantities in containers of sizes for which specific drained weights were not specified in the McNary-Mapes standard. Some of the containers formerly extensively used are now of minor importance. In standards of fill of container, canners generally prefer specific requirements as to the drained weights for containers extensively used rather than general requirements fixing drained weights calculated from the capacity of the can. The containers now extensively used and the drained weights of mushrooms found necessary to fill them properly are as follows:

Trade designation	Over-all dimensions sealed can		Weight of drained mushrooms
	Diameter	Height
	Inches	Inches	Ounces (avoirdupois)
202 x 204	2⅛	2⅛	2
211 x 212	2 1/16	2⅛	4
300 x 400	3	4	8
307 x 510	3 7/16	5⅛	16
603 x 700	6 1/16	7	68

(R. 552–553, 587–588, 650–651, 678, 839, 841–847, 851–852; Ex. 18–21)

12. Since containers of sizes other than those named in finding 11 may sometimes be used, it is necessary to provide also for drained weights based on capacity of containers for which no specific requirements are made. A suitable and practicable method for determining the capacity of containers is the general method for determining water capacity of containers in 21 CFR 10.1. The following requirements for drained weights based on the water capacity of the container will insure that such containers are properly filled. For containers with a water capacity (at 68° F.) of less than 11 ounces avoirdupois, the drained weight of mushrooms is not less than 56 percent of the water capacity of the container. For containers with a water capacity of 11 ounces or more but less than 25 ounces, the weight of the drained mushrooms is not less than 59 percent of the water capacity of the container. For containers with a water capacity of 25 ounces or more, the weight of the drained mushrooms is not less than 62 percent of the water capacity of the container. (R. 841–842, 846–848, 851, 853–863; Ex. 6, 21)

13. A suitable and practicable method for determining the drained weight of canned mushrooms which is essentially the same as that prescribed in the McNary-Mapes standard is as follows: Tilt the opened container so as to distribute the contents evenly over the meshes of a circular sieve which has been previously weighed. The diameter of the sieve is 8 inches if the quantity of the contents of the container is less than 3 pounds, and 12 inches if such quantity is 3 pounds or more. The bottom of the sieve is woven-wire cloth which complies with the specifications for such cloth set forth under "2380 Micron (No. 8)" in table 1 of "Standard Specifications for Sieves," published March 1, 1940, in L. C. 584 of the U. S. Department of Commerce, National Bureau of Standards. Without shifting the material on the sieve, so incline the sieve as to facilitate drainage. Two minutes after drainage begins, weigh the sieve and drained mushrooms. The weight so found, less the weight of the sieve, shall be considered to be the weight of drained mushrooms. (R. 848–849, 863–864; Ex. 6, 13, 20, 21)

14. A label statement which adequately informs consumers when canned mushrooms fail to meet the prescribed standard of fill of container is the general statement of substandard fill specified in 21 CFR 10.2 (b). (R. 850–851; Ex. 6, 21)

Conclusions. Upon consideration of the whole record and the foregoing findings of fact, it is concluded that it will promote honesty and fair dealing in the interest of consumers:

1. To amend the definition and standard of identity for canned mushrooms presently contained in § 52.990 to delete citric acid, vinegar, spice, sugar, and corn sugar as optional ingredients and make ascorbic acid in amounts not exceeding 37.5 milligrams per one ounce of drained weight of mushrooms an optional ingredient;

2. To adopt the standard of fill of container for canned mushrooms hereinafter set forth in proposed § 52.10.

It is therefore proposed that Part 52 be amended by renumbering § 52.990 as § 52.1, and by amending renumbered § 52.1 (c) to read as follows:

§ 52.1 Canned vegetables; identity; label statement of optional ingredients.

(c) To the vegetable ingredient water is added; except that piminentos may be canned with or without added water, and sweet potatoes in mashed form are canned without added water, and asparagus may be canned with added water, asparagus juice, or a mixture or both. For the purposes of this section, asparagus juice is the clear, unfermented liquid expressed from the washed and heated sprouts or parts of sprouts of the asparagus plant; mixtures of asparagus juice and water are considered to be water when such mixtures are used as a packing medium for canned asparagus. In the case of artichokes, citric acid or a vinegar is added in such quantity as to reduce the pH of the finished canned vegetable to 4.5 or below. The following optional ingredients, in the case of the vegetables specified, may be added:

(1) Citric acid or a vinegar, in the cases of all vegetables (except artichokes, in which such ingredient is prescribed, and except canned mushrooms, in which no such ingredient is permitted), in a quantity not more than sufficient to permit effective processing by heat without discoloration or other impairment of the article.

(2) An edible vegetable oil, in the cases of artichokes and pimientos.

(3) (i) Starch, in the cases of white sweet corn (cream style or crushed form) and yellow sweet corn (cream style or crushed form), in a quantity not more than sufficient to insure smoothness.

(ii) In the case of potatoes, purified calcium chloride, calcium sulfate, calcium citrate, monocalcium phosphate, or any mixture of two or more such calcium salts, in a quantity reasonably necessary to firm the potatoes, but in no case in a quantity such that the calcium contained in any such calcium salt or mixture is more than 0.051 percent of the weight of the finished food.

(4) Snaps, in the cases of shelled beans, black-eye peas, and field peas.

(5) Salt may be added to any of the canned vegetables in this section in a quantity sufficient to season the food.

(6) In the cases of all vegetables (except canned mushrooms) one or more of the following optional seasoning ingredients may be added in a quantity sufficient to season the food:

(i) A vinegar.

(ii) Spice.

(iii) Refined sugar (sucrose).

(iv) Refined corn sugar (dextrose).

(7) In the case of canned mushrooms, ascorbic acid (vitamin C) may be added in a quantity not to exceed 37.5 milligrams for each ounce of drained weight of mushrooms.

The food is sealed in a container, and so processed by heat as to prevent spoilage.

b. It is further proposed that Part 52 be amended by adding the following new section:

§ 52.10 Canned mushrooms; fill of container; label statement of substandard fill. The standard of fill of container for canned mushrooms is a fill such that:

(a) The weight of drained mushrooms in a container the dimensions of which are specified in the following table is not less than the weight of drained mushrooms prescribed in such table for such container:

Trade designation	Over-all dimensions sealed can		Weight of drained mushrooms
	Diameter	Height
	Inches	Inches	Ounces (avoirdupois)
202 x 204	2⅛	2⅛	2
211 x 212	2 1/16	2⅛	4
300 x 400	3	4	8
307 x 510	3 7/16	5⅛	16
603 x 700	6 1/16	7	68

(b) The drained weight of mushrooms in containers of a size not specified in paragraph (a) of this section is not less than 56 percent of the water capacity of the container, if such water capacity is less than 11.0 ounces avoirdupois; not less than 59 percent of the water capacity of the container, if such water capacity is 11.0 ounces or more but less than 25 ounces avoirdupois; and not less than 62 percent of the water capacity of the container, if such water capacity is 25 ounces avoirdupois or more.

(c) Water capacity of containers is determined by the general method provided in § 10.1 of this chapter.

(d) Drained weight is determined by the following method: Tilt the opened container so as to distribute the contents evenly over the meshes of a circular sieve which has been previously weighed. The diameter of the sieve is 8 inches if the quantity of contents of the container is less than 3 pounds, and 12 inches if such quantity is 3 pounds or more. The bottom of the sieve is woven-wire cloth which complies with the specifications for such cloth set forth under "2380 Micron (No. 8)" in table 1 of "Standard Specifications for Sieves," published March 1, 1940, in L. C. 584 of the U. S. Department of Commerce, National Bureau of Standards. Without shifting the material on the sieve, so incline the sieve as to facilitate drainage. Two minutes after drainage begins, weigh the sieve and drained mushrooms. The weight so found, less the weight of the sieve, shall be considered to be the weight of drained mushrooms.

(e) If canned mushrooms fall below the applicable standard of fill of container prescribed in paragraph (a) or (b) of this section, the label shall bear the general statement of substandard fill specified in § 10.2 (b) of this chapter, in the manner and form therein specified.

Any interested person whose appearance was filed at the hearing may, within 30 days from the date of publication of this tentative order in the FEDERAL REGISTER, file with the Hearing Clerk, Federal Security Agency, Room 5109, Federal Security Building, Fourth Street and Independence Avenue SW., Washington, D. C., written exceptions thereto. Exceptions shall point out with particularity the alleged errors in this tentative order and shall contain specific references to the pages of the transcript of the testimony or to the exhibits on which such exceptions are based. Such exceptions may be accompanied by a memorandum or brief in support thereof. Exceptions and accompanying memoranda or briefs shall be submitted in quintuplicate.

Dated: February, 16, 1951.

Other persons claiming credit for service of veterans must furnish like proof in support of their claims. Persons asserting preference rights, through settlement or otherwise, and those having equitable claims, shall accompany their applications by duly corroborated statements in support thereof, setting forth in detail all facts relevant to their claims.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 70-2529]

REPUBLIC SERVICE CORP.

NOTICE OF FILING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 16th day of February A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that Republic Service Corporation ("Republic"), a registered holding company, has filed with this Commission pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, an amendment to a declaration heretofore permitted to become effective by the Commission (Holding Company Act Release No. 10292). Declarant has designated section 12 as being applicable to the proposed transaction.

Notice is further given that any interested person may, not later than February 23, 1951, request the Commission in writing that a hearing be held on this matter stating the nature of his interest, the reason for such request and the issues, if any, of fact or law, raised by the amended declaration which he proposes to controvert or may request that he be notified if the Commission should order a hearing thereon. Any such request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. At any time after February 23, 1951, said amended declaration as filed or as further amended may be permitted to become effective as provided in Rule U-23 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act, or the Commission may exempt such transaction as provided in Rules U-20 (a) and U-100 thereof.

All interested persons are referred to said amended declaration which is on file in the offices of this Commission for a statement of the transaction therein proposed which is summarized as follows:

On December 18, 1950, the Commission approved the sale by Republic of the common stock of Abington Electric Company to Scranton Electric Company ("Scranton"), for a consideration of 60,000 shares of $5 par value common stock of Scranton plus cash, and the distribution by Republic to its stockholders, as a partial liquidating dividend, of 56,259 out of the 60,000 shares of Scranton stock to be received (Holding Company Act Release No. 10292). The Commission's approval of the distribution of the Scranton stock was subject to the condition, among others, that if the proposed distribution were not effected in the year 1950, distribution could not thereafter be effected until Republic should have submitted for the record a statement setting forth the method of distribution and the accounting entries in connection therewith, and until a further order should have been entered by the Commission. The filing states that Republic was unable to effect the proposed distribution in the year 1950.

Republic now proposes to distribute to its stockholders, as a partial liquidating dividend, 56,259 shares of the Scranton stock on the basis of 8/10 share of Scranton for each share of Republic. The amount of Republic's investment in said shares will be charged to capital surplus, to the extent thereof, and to earned surplus; the par amount of Republic's common stock will not be reduced. The remaining 3,741 shares of the Scranton stock not required for such distribution have been disposed of or will be disposed of in the near future. Republic proposes to make the distribution, in partial liquidation, on March 12, 1951 to stockholders of record as of February 28, 1951. The shares of Scranton will be transmitted to Republic's stockholders of record by Provident Trust Company of Philadelphia ("Provident"), Distribution Agent. Only full shares of Scranton stock will be distributed, and holders entitled to fractional shares will receive in lieu of fractional shares registered Certificates of Interest in shares of Scranton stock; these Certificates of Interest when accumulated in amounts aggregating one or more full shares may be exchanged for shares of Scranton stock, and, unless so accumulated and presented for whole shares, shall expire at the end of six months after issuance, at which time Provident shall sell the shares of Scranton stock representing unexchanged Certificates of Interest and hold the proceeds for the account of stockholders entitled thereto, subject to subsequent disposition acceptable to Republic and the Commission. Republic agrees to report to the Commission within three months from the date of distribution as to the number of shares of Scranton stock still unclaimed, including such stock to which holders of unexchanged shares of Republic's formerly outstanding preferred stock may be entitled. Republic further agrees, if the Commission deems such action necessary and appropriate, to employ some method of personal solicitation and search, satisfactory to the Commission, for the purpose of locating and notifying holders of Republic's common stock who have not theretofore claimed their distribution of shares of Scranton, and holders of Republic's formerly outstanding preferred stock who have not theretofore exchanged such stock for Republic's common stock.

Republic proposes to publish once a week for three successive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in New York City, beginning within one week of filing this amendment, a notice of the proposed distribution, and to send a similar notice to its stockholders within one week of the filing of this amendment.

Because of the inability to effect the distribution in the year 1950, the previous estimate of fees and expenses have been revised from $1,300, including legal fees of $500, to $1,800, including legal fees of $800.

By the Commission.

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 16th day of February A. D. 1951.

Interstate Power Company ("Interstate"), a registered holding company and an operating public utility company has filed a declaration and amendments thereto pursuant to sections 6 and 7 of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act").

Interstate proposes to issue and sell at par on or before April 15, 1951, and on or before September 15, 1951, promissory notes in the aggregate principal amounts of $2,500,000 and $2,000,000, respectively. Said notes will bear interest at the rate of 2¾ percent per annum, will mature 360 days from the date of the first borrowing and will be issued to The Chase National Bank of the City of New York and to Manufacturers Trust Company in equal amounts not to exceed $2,250,000 to each of said banks in accordance with the terms of a loan agreement dated January 9, 1951. The loan agreement provides that Interstate will pay an aggregate commitment fee of $9,000 to the two banks. The notes may be prepaid in whole or in part at any time without premium provided, however, that if such prepayment is made from proceeds of any bank borrowing, a premium at the rate of 1 percent per annum on the principal amount so prepaid, calculated from the date of such prepayment to the stated maturity of the notes, will be payable.

Interstate has requested the Commission to authorize, at this time, the issuance and sale of only $2,500,000 aggregate principal amount of the above described notes in equal amounts to the two above named banks on or before April 15, 1951, and to reserve jurisdiction with respect to the proposed issuance and sale of the additional $2,000,000 principal amount of said promissory notes. Declarant states that the proceeds of the notes will be applied toward the financing of its construction program and to reimburse the company for funds already used for new construction.

Said declaration having been filed on January 12, 1951, and the last amendment thereto having been filed on January 29, 1951, and notice of said filing having been duly given in the form and manner prescribed by Rule U-23 promulgated pursuant to the act, and the Commission not having received a request for hearing with respect to said declaration, as amended, within the period specified in said notice, or otherwise, and not having ordered a hearing thereon; and

Interstate having requested that the Commission's order herein issue at the earliest date possible and before February 19, 1951, and become effective upon issuance; and

The Commission finding with respect to said declaration, as amended, that the requirements of the applicable provisions of the act and the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder are satisfied and that no adverse findings are necessary thereunder, and deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that said declaration, as amended, be permitted to become effective forthwith:

It is ordered, Pursuant to Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, that said declaration, as amended, with respect to the issuance and sale by Interstate of $2,500,000 aggregate principal amount of 2¾ percent promissory notes, be, and the same hereby is, permitted to become effective forthwith subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24;

It is further ordered, That jurisdiction be, and it hereby is, reserved over the issuance and sale by Interstate of an additional $2,000,000 principal amount of 2¾ percent promissory notes until a further order shall have been issued with respect thereto by this Commission.

By the Commission.

UNITED GAS CORP. ET AL.

ORDER GRANTING APPLICATION AND PERMITTING DECLARATION TO BECOME EFFECTIVE

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 16th day of February, A. D. 1951.

In the matter of United Gas Corporation, United Gas Pipe Line Company, Union Producing Company; File No. 70-2561.

United Gas Corporation ("United"), a gas utility subsidiary of Electric Bond and Share Company, a registered holding company, and United's wholly owned subsidiaries, United Gas Pipe Line Company ("Pipe Line"), and Union Producing Company ("Union"), having filed a joint application-declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, particularly sections 9 (a) (1), 10 and 12 thereof and Rule U-43 (a) of the rules and regulations promulgated thereunder with respect to the following proposed transactions:

United, Union, and Pipe Line, are engaged in the production, purchase, transportation, distribution and sale of natural gas in the states of Texas, Louisiana and Mississippi. In addition, Pipe Line and Union are engaged in the production, transportation and sale of crude oil and extraction and sale of gasoline and other liquid hydrocarbons.

United proposes to purchase from Pipe Line a recently constructed research laboratory building and the equipment and fixtures used in connection therewith, all located in the city of Shreveport, Louisiana, for a cash consideration of $530,075.35, which is stated to be the actual depreciated cost of such property to Pipe Line. United also proposes to purchase from Union a tract of land consisting of 7.67 acres, upon which the research laboratory is located, for a cash consideration of $8,679.37, which is stated to be the actual cost of such land to Union.

Pipe Line maintains its own research department which deals with the day to day operating problems in connection with the production and transmission of natural gas, oil and other liquid hydrocarbons and in the development of new methods and processes in connection with said operations. The application-declaration states that Pipe Line is now enlarging its research personnel to take care of research problems with respect to current system operations. The application-declaration also states that the management of United has for some time considered the advisability of creating a research division whose activities will be devoted to the solution of problems as they arise with respect to day to day operations of United, Pipe Line and Union, and that in its opinion the best interests of the system, as an integrated operation, will be served by transferring the research duties to a separate division of United so that its service may be available equally to Pipe Line, Union, and the operating divisions of United. The application-declaration also states that upon consummation of the proposed transactions, research service will be available to system companies at cost.

The proceeds from the sale of property described above will be deposited by Pipe Line with the Corporate Trustee under its Mortgage and Deed of Trust dated September 25, 1944, in accordance with the provisions of such mortgage and deed of trust.

Said application-declaration having been filed on January 19, 1951, notice of said filing having been given in the form and manner required by Rule U-23 promulgated pursuant to said act, and the Commission not having received a request for hearing within the time specified in said notice, or otherwise, and the Commission not having ordered a hearing thereon; and

The Commission finding that the proposed transactions are in compliance with the applicable standards of the act, that no adverse findings are necessary in connection therewith, and the Commission deeming it appropriate that said application-declaration be granted and permitted to become effective without the imposition of terms and conditions, and the Commission also deeming it appropriate to grant applicants'-declarants' request that the order herein become effective forthwith upon its issuance:

It is ordered, Pursuant to said Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of said act that said application-declaration, be, and the same hereby is, granted and permitted to become effective forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions contained in Rule U-24.

LOUISIANA POWER & LIGHT CO.

ORDER GRANTING EXEMPTION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 16th day of February A. D. 1951.

Louisiana Power & Light Company ("Louisiana"), a utility subsidiary of Middle South Utilities, Inc., a registered holding company, having filed an application-declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, requesting approval of certain transactions, more particularly described below, pursuant to section 12 (d) of the act and Rule U-44 of the rules and regulations thereunder, or, in the alternative, requesting an order exempting the transactions from the application of section 12 (d) and Rule U-44 pursuant to the provisions of Rule U-100.

Louisiana proposes to transfer certain of its electric facilities installed in 1949 and 1950 at a stated cost of $234,735.50 to Gulf Public Service Company, Inc. ("Gulf"), a non-affiliate. In consideration of the transfer by Louisiana, Gulf will transfer to Louisiana certain electric facilities recorded by Gulf as of October 31, 1950 at a purported original cost of $170,198.82 and having an applicable reserve for depreciation stated at $27,863.09. The application states that the purpose of the transfer is to promote more efficient service in each of the companies and to achieve economies of operations. It is further stated that the transfer of facilities will result in bringing into Louisiana properties which are in its service area and to transfer to Gulf properties which are in the latter's service area. In addition, the application-declaration states that the acquisition by Louisiana will result in lower rates and that the transfer by Louisiana will afford Gulf greater capacity.

The proposed transactions have been specifically authorized by the Public Service Commission of Louisiana, which commission has jurisdiction over both companies and by the Federal Power Commission, which has asserted jurisdiction over both companies.

It appearing to the Commission that the proposed exchanges of properties will tend towards the development of integrated public utility systems of both Louisiana and Gulf in accordance with section 2 (a) (29) (A) and section 10 of the act, and it also appearing to the Commission that the proposed disposition of properties by Louisiana is subject to the provisions of Rule U-44; it further appearing that the proposed acquisitions of assets have been approved by the Public Service Commission of the State of Louisiana and are thereby exempt pursuant to the provisions of section 9 (b) (1) of the act, and the Commission finding in view of the nature of the transactions and the authorization heretofore granted by the Federal Power Commission to Louisiana and Gulf that it is not necessary or appropriate in the public interest or for the protection of investors or consumers that the disposition of facilities proposed by Louisiana be subject to the requirements of Rule U-44:

It is ordered, Pursuant to the provisions of Rule U-100 (a) that the transactions summarized above be, and the same hereby are, exempted, effective forthwith, from the provisions of Rule U-44.

By the Commission.

GENERAL PUBLIC UTILITIES CORP.

NOTICE OF FILING AND ORDER FOR HEARING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 16th day of February A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that General Public Utilities Corporation ("GPU"), a registered holding company, has filed an application-declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("act"), regarding the proposed establishment by GPU of an Employees Savings and Retirement Income Plan.

All interested persons are referred to said application-declaration which is on file in the offices of the Commission for a statement of the transactions therein proposed which may be summarized as follows:

GPU contemplates requesting its stockholders, at the annual meeting to be held on April 2, 1951, to consider and vote upon a proposal to approve the establishment of an Employees Savings and Retirement Income Plan. The plan provides, among other things, for contributions by GPU (1) for past service benefits to its employees, which are estimated to require a lump sum payment of $151,000 and (2) for future service benefits which, based upon salaries in effect on January 1, 1951, would require annual contributions by the corporation of about $31,000. Under the plan employees of GPU may voluntarily contribute up to 4 percent of their base pay toward future service benefits.

The foregoing contributions are to be deposited with the Chemical Bank & Trust Company as trustee. The trustee will invest the contributions received by it, and inoome thereon, in shares of GPU common stock purchased by it in the market from time to time.

GPU will guarantee that the aggregate value of the common stock purchased by the trustee with the employees' own contributions and the income thereon, will not as of the date of such employees' death, termination of employment, retirement or attainment of Normal Retirement Date, whichever is earlier, be less than the employees' own contributions.

The establishment of the Plan is subject to (1) the approval of the Plan by a vote of the holders of a majority of the GPU common stock represented and entitled to vote at the annual meeting to be held on April 2, 1951, (2) the obtaining of a ruling from the Bureau of Internal Revenue that the Plan and the trust established in connection therewith, conform to the requirements of sections 23 (p) and 161 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code, (3) such approval, if any, by the Securities and Exchange Commission as may be required under the act and (4) such approval, if any, as may be requisite under wage and salary control regulations.

It appearing to the Commission that it is appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that a hearing be held with respect to the proposed transactions and that said application-declaration should not be permitted to become effective except pursuant to the further order of this Commission:

It is ordered, Pursuant to the applicable provisions of the act and rules and regulations promulgated thereunder, that a hearing with respect to said application-declaration be held on February 27, 1951, at 10:00 a. m., e. s. t., at the offices of this Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington 25, D. C. On such date the hearing room clerk in Room 101 will advise as to the room in which such hearing will be held. Any person desiring to be heard or otherwise participate in this proceeding shall file with the Secretary of the Commission, on or before February 23, 1951, a written request therefor as provided by Rule XVII of the Commission's rules of practice.

It is further ordered, That James G. Ewell or any other officer or officers of this Commission designated by it for that purpose, shall preside at such hearing. The officer so designated to preside at such hearing is hereby authorized to exercise all powers granted to the Commission under section 18 (c) of the act and to a hearing officer under the Commission's rules of practice.

Chapter IX—Production and Marketing Administration (Marketing Agreements and Orders), Department of Agriculture

ORDER SUSPENDING CERTAIN PROVISIONS

Pursuant to the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (48 Stat. 31, as amended; 7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the "act," and of the marketing agreement and order (7 CFR Part 993) regulating the handling of dried prunes produced in California, hereinafter referred to as the "order," it is hereby found and determined, that the following provisions of the order no longer tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act, in that it has now been determined that the 1950–51 season average price to producers for prunes will be in excess of the price level specified in section 2 (1) of the act: § 993.4 (including the provisions of Exhibit A, which is attached to and made a part of the order) and § 993.5, except to the extent that the provisions of said § 993.5 are necessary for application with respect to the liquidation by the Prune Administrative Committee, the administrative agency for operations under the order, of the 1950–51 substandard prune pool, including the disposition by the committee of substandard prunes which are held by it, or for its account, at the time this suspension action becomes effective, and the final distribution by the committee of the net proceeds of the substandard prune pool. It is hereby further found and determined, that the provisions of the following sections implementing the order no longer tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act for the same reason as that stated in the preceding sentence: §§ 993.104, 993.105, and 993.201 (14 F. R. 6625, 15 F. R. 1888, and 15 F. R. 5534), except to the extent that the provisions of said §§ 993.104, 993.105, and 993.201 of said implementing sections are necessary for application with respect to liquidation by the aforementioned Prune Administrative Committee, of the 1950–51 substandard prune pool, including the disposition by the committee of substandard prunes which are held by it, or for its account, at the time this suspension action becomes effective, and final distribution by the committee of the net proceeds of the substandard prune pool.

It is therefore ordered, That the following provisions of the order be, and they hereby are, suspended on and after publication of this suspension order in the FEDERAL REGISTER: § 993.4 (including the provisions of Exhibit A, which is attached to and made a part of the order) and § 993.5, except to the extent that the provisions of said § 993.5 are necessary for application with respect to the liquidation by the Prune Administrative Committee, the administrative agency for operations under the order, of the 1950–51 substandard prune pool, including the disposition by the committee of substandard prunes which are held by it, or for its account, at the time this suspension action becomes effective, and the final distribution by the committee of the net proceeds of the substandard prune pool. It is also ordered, That the provisions of the following sections implementing the order be, and they hereby are, suspended on and after publication of this suspension order in the FEDERAL REGISTER: §§ 993.104, 993.105, and 993.201 (14 F. R. 6625, 15 F. R. 1888, and 15 F. R. 5534), except to the extent that the provisions of said §§ 993.105, 993.104, and 993.201 of said implementing sections are necessary for application with respect to the liquidation by the aforementioned Prune Administrative Committee, of the 1950–51 substandard prune pool, including the disposition by the committee of substandard prunes which are held by it, or for its account, at the time this suspension action becomes effective, and final distribution by the committee of the net proceeds of the substandard prune pool.

This suspension action shall not be deemed to have any of the following effects with respect to any acts or transactions under the order which took place prior to the time such suspension action became effective: (a) Affect or waive any right, duty, obligation, or liability which arose in connection with any provision of the order or any regulation issued thereunder; (b) release or extinguish any violation of the order or of any regulation issued thereunder; or (c) affect or impair any rights or remedies of the United States of America, the Secretary of Agriculture of the United States, the Prune Administrative Committee, or of any other person with respect to any such right, duty, obligation, or liability under the order or any regulation issued thereunder.

Notice of proposed rule making, public procedure thereon, and publication or service of this suspension order 30 days prior to its effective date (see section 4 of the Administrative Procedure Act; 5 U. S. C. 1001 et seq.) are impracticable, unnecessary, and contrary to the public interest, since it has now been determined that the situation with respect to mended seeding rates, kinds of seeds, and proportions of seeds in a mixture must be set forth in the State handbook. Acreages of these grasses and legumes for which assistance for new seedings is given under another 1951 practice may not be considered in determining the increased acreage eligible for assistance under this practice.

Maximum assistance. 80 percent of the average cost of seed.

(Sec. 4, 49 Stat. 164; 16 U. S. C. 590d. Interpret or apply secs. 7–17, 49 Stat. 1148, as amended; 16 U. S. C. 590g–590q) prunes is such that suspension action is required by law, and public participation in connection with the taking of such action could accomplish no useful purpose. This suspension action will serve to relieve the persons who are now covered under the order from the restrictions contained therein with respect to their future dealings in prunes, and they will require no advance notice in connection with said suspension action.

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. and Sup., 608c)

Issued at Washington, D. C., this 21st day of February 1951, to be effective on and after the date of the publication of this suspension order in the FEDERAL REGISTER.

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

[Distribution Order 1, Amdt. 1]

DO 1—FAIR DISTRIBUTION OF LIVESTOCK AND MEAT

SUPPLIERS MUST SELL MEATS TO CERTAIN INSTITUTIONAL USERS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 5 (16 F. R. 1273), this Amendment 1 to Distribution Order 1 (16 F. R. 1273) is hereby issued.

Preamble. Institutions of involuntary confinement and institutions principally engaged in the care and treatment of the sick perform an important public function. It is essential that they be assured of a meat supply sufficient to meet their minimum needs. It has come to the attention of the Director of Price Stabilization that the needs of these institutional users are not being met on a voluntary basis in accordance with the policy of Distribution Order 1.

This amendment, under certain conditions will require a person selling meat, to sell or transfer a certain quantity of meat to institutional users if the institutional user acquired meat during 1950 from that person or any predecessor who then operated the establishment. The meat sold or transferred must be the same, comparable or reasonably substitutable type as the user acquired from the supplier during 1950, and need not be sold or transferred unless the user is willing to acquire such meat at Office of Price Stabilization ceiling prices. Examples of comparable substitutable meat types are given in the amendment.

A person required by this amendment to sell or transfer meat to an institutional user, who refuses to sell or transfer to the institutional user the maximum quantity specified within the time allowed, will be prohibited from selling or transferring any meat until the institutional user acquires that quantity from him within that time. This prohibition is an addition to any action, penalties or proceedings which may be authorized by law for his failure to comply.

Distribution Order 1 is amended by adding the following section:

SEC. 15. Suppliers must sell meats to certain institutional users. (a) Any operator of a prison, jail, insane asylum, home for delinquents, or other institutions of involuntary confinement, or a public or private orphanage, or a hospital or other establishment principally engaged in the care and treatment of the sick is an institutional user. Beginning February 27, 1951, an institutional user may, for each month starting with March 1951, give written notice, personally or by registered mail, to each person from whom meat was acquired during the calendar year 1950 (or if that person transferred his establishment, to any successor currently operating the establishment) containing all of the following information:

(1) The amount, quality and types of meat acquired from the supplier during each month of the calendar year 1950;

(2) The percentage that each such monthly amount bears to the total amount of meat acquired each month by the institutional user during 1950;

(3) The estimated number of persons to be fed during the month for which this notice is given;

(4) The number of persons fed during the corresponding month in 1950;

(5) The total amount of meat required by the institutional user for the month in which the statement is made.

(The information in (1) and (2) may be omitted from any subsequent notice pursuant to (a), to the same supplier or successor to whom a previous notice, containing that information, has been given pursuant to (a)).

(b) Each supplier or successor to whom a notice is given pursuant to (a) must, irrespective of any claimed inaccuracy in the notice, sell or transfer to that institutional user, upon such user's request, during the month specified in the notice, the quantity of meat determined under (c) for the current month, to the extent that such supplier or successor has meat available for sale or transfer regardless of any other contract, agreement or commitment (except any meat which he is required to set aside under this section for any other institutional user). Such sale or transfer of meat must be of the same, comparable or reasonably substitutable types as the institutional user acquired from that supplier during 1950. The supplier or successor, however, need not sell or transfer any such meat to the institutional user unless the user is willing to acquire such meat at ceiling prices established by the Office of Price Stabilization.

NOTE: Examples of comparable and reasonably substitutable types of meat are: (1) Steaks, roasts, or chops or any wholesale cuts from which they are obtained; (2) Ground meat or stew meat and the wholesale cuts from which they are obtained; (3) Smoked meats, such as bacon, ham, or picnics; (4) Dry salt meats, such as bellies, jowls, plates, or fatback; (5) Processed meat products, such as canned meats or sausage; (6) Offal, such as livers, hearts, or kidneys; and (7) Miscellaneous items, such as tails, heads, snouts or ears. Substitutions may be made of one item for another within any of these numbered categories but you cannot substitute an item in one numbered category to replace an item in another numbered category.

(c) The quantity of meat which the supplier or successor is required under (b) to sell or transfer to institutional users giving such notice shall be determined in the following way:

(1) Divide the amount of meat sold or transferred to the institutional user by the supplier during the corresponding month in 1950 by the number of persons fed during that month.

(2) Multiply the result in (1) by the estimated number of persons to be fed in the month for which the notice in (a) is given.

(3) The result in (2), or the amount requested by the institutional user, whichever is less, is the quantity of meat which must be sold or transferred to the institutional user during the month specified in the notice.

(d) If the institutional user, during the month covered by the notice has not acquired from the supplier or successor the quantity specified in (c) for that period, the supplier or successor, upon the institutional user's request, must sell or transfer to the institutional user during the first 15 days of the next month, all or any part of the quantity not so acquired by the institutional user.

(e) Any supplier or successor who refuses to sell or transfer meat to an institutional user in the amounts required by this section may not sell or transfer any meat until he has sold or transferred to the institutional user meat in the amount required by this section. This prohibition is in addition to any action, penalties or proceedings which may be authorized by law for his failure to comply.

(f) Each notice given by the institutional user pursuant to (a) shall be deemed a certification to the Office of Price Stabilization as to the information contained in the notice.

(g) Each person to whom a notice is given pursuant to (a) must keep such notice at his establishment.

EDWARD F. PHELPS, Jr.,
Acting Director of Price Stabilization.

This supplementary regulation is applicable only to the feed manufacturing industry and to wholesalers and retailers of manufactured feeds.

1. Adjustment of ceiling prices. Section 1 of this supplementary regulation provides for adjustments in ceiling prices for manufactured feeds and these provisions are necessary to resolve certain problems created by Supplement 3 of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, covering soybean meal, and which will arise when regulations are issued establishing specific price ceilings for other ingredients used in manufactured feeds. A major problem is illustrated by the effect on the industry of the establishment, in Supplement 3, of a celing price for soybean meal. When soybeans were on the list of "listed commodities" under Section 11 of General Ceiling Price Regulation, the "parity" adjustment allowed for increases in the price of soybean meal to be reflected in the prices of manufactured feeds. When soybeans were removed from the parity list and placed under Supplementary Regulation No. 3, the prices provided for soybean meal were from eight to ten dollars per ton above the prices paid by feed manufacturers and used by them in determining their ceiling prices under section 11. Section 11 requires that the ceiling prices determined under it for commodities processed in substantial part from a listed commodity, and in effect at the time a commodity is removed from the list, shall remain as the ceiling price. Feed manufacturers, therefore, were forced to absorb the difference between the ceiling price at the time soybeans were removed from the parity list and the higher ceiling price established by Supplementary Regulation No. 3. The feed manufacturing industry uses approximately 80 percent of all the soybean meal produced, some 500,000 tons per month. The industry operates on a large volume basis and the absorption of the possible losses involved would wipe out a large part of the net operating margin of the industry.

Section 1 (a) specifies that a feed manufacturer may use the ceiling price for any ingredient which has a definite ceiling price established unless the reasonable market value is lower, in which case he shall use such value. This conforms with the customary practice of the industry of using market or replacement values for ingredients in determining selling prices for its manufactured products.

It is the long established and customary practice of the industry to determine its selling prices on the basis of market or replacement values rather than "cost." For this there are many reasons. It is an industry of very rapid turnover. Ingredients are constantly being purchased, processed and rapidly disposed of. Selling prices of manufactured feeds are quickly adjusted to market changes of the ingredients, whether up or down. It would be most difficult, if not impossible, to determine the "cost" on which to base selling prices. On the other hand, market values, at any given time, although not exact, can readily be determined within narrow ranges. Market values may vary slightly for different markets and sellers, and each manufacturer, through the exercise of administrative judgment, arrives at his own determination of market or replacement values to him and sets his prices on the basis of such determinations. This supplementary regulation preserves the customary practice of the industry.

2. Ceiling prices of wholesalers and retailers. Since the manufacturer is permitted to increase his prices as specified in section 1, the distributor will be allowed to increase his ceiling prices accordingly, as provided for in this section.

3. Filing of ceiling and ingredient prices and keeping of records. Compliance with the "notice" requirements of section 11 (f) of General Ceiling Price Regulation is most difficult for the feed manufacturing industry. Each of the 60 or more distinct rations produced by a typical feed manufacturer includes many different ingredients. It is apparent that the number of mathematical computations involved in meeting this "notice" requirement is working great hardship on the industry. Section 3 of this supplementary regulation provides for one filing of ceiling prices of the manufactured feeds and of the ingredient prices used in arriving at such ceiling prices during the base period. The feed manufacturer is of course required to comply with the record keeping provisions of section 16 of General Ceiling Price Regulation.

4. Definitions. It is necessary to define "manufacture" and "manufactured feed". In doing so, and in listing the exceptions, the general terms used in the last regulation for the industry under O. P. A. have been followed.

The definition of "reasonable market value" of necessity refers to quotations of commodity exchanges and of suppliers. Both these sources of information are regularly used by feed manufacturers in determining reasonable market values. In the definition, consistency in the use of quotations is required. The manufacturer must keep his records showing that the market value used by him can be substantiated by quotations.

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization the ceiling prices established by this supplementary regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

So far as practicable the Director of Price Stabilization gave due consideration to the national effort to achieve maximum production in furtherance of the objectives of the Defense Production Act of 1950; to parity prices and the other minimum requirements of the law including prices prevailing during the period from May 24, 1950, to June 24, 1950, inclusive; and to relevant factors of general applicability.

Although special circumstances have rendered impracticable consultation with formal industry advisory committees, including trade association representatives, the provisions of this supplementary regulation have been presented to, and generally approved by, persons representing substantial segments of the various industries affected.

REGULATORY PROVISIONS

1. Adjustment of ceiling prices.
2. Ceiling prices of wholesalers and retailers.
3. Filing of ceiling and ingredient prices and keeping of records.
4. Definitions.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 4 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interprets or applies Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong., E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105.

SECTION 1. Adjustment of ceiling prices. You may use this supplementary regulation to adjust your ceiling prices only if you are a manufacturer of manufactured feeds as these terms are defined in section 4 below. You may increase your ceiling price per ton, as otherwise determined in the General Price Regulation, for a manufactured feed being priced by you for current sale, by the dollars and cents amount that the total value per ton of the ingredients in that manufactured feed, determined as specified in paragraph (a) below, exceeds the total value per ton of the ingredients in that manufactured feed in your calculation which determined your ceiling price for that manufactured feed in the base period under the General Ceiling Price Regulation. You may round out your ceiling price on the manufactured feed to the nearest 20 cents per ton.

(a) You determine the total value per ton of the ingredients for current sale as follows:

(1) For an ingredient which has a ceiling price established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation, you use such ceiling price, unless the current reasonable market value (as this term is defined in section 4, below) is lower, in which case you shall use such reasonable market value, and

(2) For an ingredient which has a ceiling price established by any supplementary regulation to the General Ceiling Price Regulation, or by a separate ceiling price regulation, you use such ceiling price unless the current reasonable market value (as this term is defined in section 4, below) is lower, in which case you shall use such reasonable market value, and

(3) For an ingredient being priced which has no ceiling price you use the current reasonable market value (as this term is defined in section 4, below).

SEC. 2. Ceiling prices of wholesalers and retailers. If you are a seller of manufactured feeds, other than a manufacturer, and your supplier increases his ceiling price in accordance with the provisions of this regulation you may increase your ceiling price by the same amount in dollars and cents as the increase in the ceiling price of your supplier.

SEC. 3. Filing of ceiling and ingredient prices and keeping of records—(a) Filing base period prices. If you are a manufacturer as defined in section 4 (1) below, you are not required to comply with the filing provisions of section 11 (f) of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, but you must notify the Director of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., by registered mail, within 30 days of the effective date of this supplementary regulation, by giving the following information:

(1) A list of the manufactured feeds manufactured by you giving the base period ceiling price for each as established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation, and

(2) A list of the ingredients used by you showing the price you used in arriving at your base period ceiling price for each manufactured feed as determined under the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

(b) Keeping of records. You must comply with the record provisions of section 16 of the General Ceiling Price Regulation.

SEC. 4. Definitions. When used in this regulation the following terms have the following meanings:

(1) Manufacturer. "Manufacturer" means, with respect to any lot of manufactured feed, a person who manufactures such feed except when he manufactures it as a service rather than as a sale of a commodity.

(2) Manufactured feed. "Manufactured feed" is a mixture or blend of more than one ingredient for the purpose of feeding to animals or poultry, either in the same form or in combinations with other ingredients (including scratch-chick or growing grains consisting entirely of recleaned grains, seeds, grit and shell containing no more than 10 percent of grain flour or screenings that will pass through a No. 20 standard tinned mill wire), except that the following commodities shall not be considered manufactured feeds under this supplementary regulation.

(i) A mixture resulting from the blending or mixing of offals or by-products from a single vegetable, plant or other agricultural product.

(ii) Screenings consisting of a mixture of mill or elevator run materials or a combination of varying amounts of ground or unground materials obtained in the process of cleaning grain or seed, either or both, such as inferior, light or broken grain or seed, weed seeds, hulls, chaff, joints, straw, elevator dust and floor sweepings.

(iii) Foods prepared especially for household pets.

(iv) Mineral mixtures.

(v) Manufactured feeds containing 50 percent or more of milk solids.

(vi) Animal and poultry tonics, condiments and medicants, in which the nitritive value is not substantial.

(vii) Vitamin products which are sold and used for further mixing primarily for their vitamin content and which are required to be labeled with a guaranteed vitamin content in accordance with any Federal or State law or regulation.

(3) Reasonable market value. "Reasonable market value" means the price to you, as customarily determined by you, of the ingredient in the appropriate quantity, grade and quality, on the basis of quotations of commodity exchanges or ingredient suppliers, in arriving at the selling prices of your manufactured feeds. The computation by which reasonable market value is determined must be consistent in all respects, including quantity, grade and quality, with the computation used in the calculation which determined the ceiling price for the manufactured feed during the base period. For example, if you determine reasonable market value for one computation on the basis of the closing quotation on a certain commodity exchange you should use the closing quotation on the same exchange as the basis of the other computation. As another example, if you used a carload quantity quotation during the base period you should use a carload quantity quotation for the computation for the current sale. You must keep a record of these prices as determined by you and they must be substantiated by quotations of commodity exchanges or ingredient suppliers. Reasonable market value must not exceed the ceiling price of the ingredient if one is applicable.

Effective date. This supplementary regulation is effective February 27, 1951.

EDWARD F. PHELPS, JR.,
Acting Director of Price Stabilization.

Chapter VI—National Production Authority, Department of Commerce

M-1—IRON AND STEEL

This amendment to order M-1 is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to authority granted by section 101 of the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the issuance of this amendment, consultation with industry representatives has been rendered impracticable due to the necessity for immediate action.

This amendment affects NPA Order M-1 as amended January 22, 1951, as follows: It redesignates §§ 20.1 through 20.19 as sections 1 through 19, respectively; the word "part" is changed to "order" throughout; and Table I has been revised. As so amended, NPA Order M-1 reads as follows:

Sec.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 19 issued under sec. 704, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interprets or applies sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong., sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order applies particularly to producers of iron and steel and provides rules for placing, accepting, and scheduling rated orders for iron and steel. Its purpose is to provide equitable distribution of rated orders among all iron and steel producers of the particular products in order to make possible maximum production and to reduce to a minimum disruption of normal distribution. It makes provision for required acceptance of rated orders based on a percentage of previous shipments, and provides for allotment, and maximum inventories. It supplements NPA Regs. 1 and 2, but only those provisions of Regs. 1 and 2 which are inconsistent with this order are superseded, and all other provisions of those regulations continue to apply to the iron and steel industry.

SEC. 2. Forms of iron and steel products to which this order applies. The iron and steel products to which this order applies are set out in Table I at the end of this order. Table I also sets out the lead time (days) and product limitation for acceptance of rated orders. This order also applies to all second quality materials and shearings and material sorted or salvaged from steel scrap and sold for other than remelting purposes.

SEC. 3. Required shipment dates. A rated order for iron or steel in any of the forms listed in Column A of Table I must specify shipment on a particular date or in a particular month, which, in no case, may be earlier than required by the person placing the order. The producer of iron or steel must schedule the order for shipment within the requested month as close to the requested shipment date as is practicable considering the need for maximum production.

SEC. 4. Rejection of rated orders (lead time). A producer of iron or steel in a form listed in Column A of Table I need not accept a rated order which is received by him less than the number of days (lead time) set forth in Column B of Table I prior to the first day of the month in which shipment is requested, unless specifically directed to accept such order by the National Production Authority.

SEC. 5. Product limitation for acceptance of rated orders. Unless specifically directed by NPA, no iron or steel producer shall be required to accept rated orders for shipment from any one producing unit regardless of location in any one month in excess of the percentages set forth in Column C of Table I, of his average monthly shipments of the products listed in said column, as made by him during the period from January 1, 1950, through August 31, 1950. Where no percentage limitation is set forth as to any product, it is expected that the amount of such product to be called for by rated orders will be relatively small.

SEC. 6. Conditions for acceptance of rated orders. Unless otherwise specifically directed by the National Production Authority, and subject to the provisions of NPA Reg. 2, each iron or steel producer shall be required to accept rated orders calling for shipment in any one month from any one of his producing units regardless of location, of products listed in Column A of Table I up to the amount of the percentages listed in Column C of Table I of his average monthly shipments of such products from that producing unit during the period from January 1, 1950, to August 31, 1950. Where no percentage is listed in Column C, in regard to any iron or steel product, each iron or steel producer shall be required to accept all rated orders served upon him, subject to the provisions of NPA Reg. 2, unless otherwise specifically directed by the National Production Authority.

SEC. 7. Changes in lead time. (a) If an iron or steel producer would have an open space on his production schedule created by the difference between the lead time of forty-five days as established by this order as originally issued or as subsequently amended, and a longer lead time as established by section 4, he shall continue to accept rated orders to fill such open space on his production schedule, on the basis of a lead time of forty-five days, before he applies the newly established longer lead time. In filling such open space on his production schedule, as above referred to, an iron or steel producer shall be governed by the product limitation percentage appearing in Column C of Table I.

Example: Under the previously established lead time of 45 days, a steel producer would, up to December 17, 1950, accept DO rated orders for shipment in February 1951. Where a lead time has been increased to 120 days, he would, up to January 31, 1951, accept DO rated orders for shipment in June 1951. In the application of this example, the steel producer would continue to accept DO rated orders for shipment in March and April 1951, on a 45-day lead time until he had arrived in any one month at the product limitation percentage of that product as set forth in Column C, of Table I. Thereafter, he would conform to the new lead time of 120 days for shipment in the succeeding months.

(b) In the example in paragraph (a) of this section, if the product limitation percentage under Column C of Table I as to that particular iron or steel product has been increased from 5 percent to 10 percent, the iron or steel producer should accept DO rated orders up to the amount of the new product limitation percentage figure, commencing with shipments for the month of March, 1951, and should continue at that new figure thereafter.

SEC. 8. Allotments for further conversion. A steel producer who buys from another steel producer a steel product listed under the heading "Steel Mill Products" in Column A of Table I (herein called "steel mill products"), and by further processing converts, for resale, the purchased steel into another steel mill product is engaged in further conversion. For the purpose of this section, the steel producer who sells a steel mill product for further conversion shall be called a producer supplier and the steel producer engaged in further conversion shall be called a converter. Each producer supplier shall make a monthly allotment of his production of each steel mill product that remains after shipments on DO ratings and NPA directives to each of his converter customers. Such monthly allotment shall be at least equal to that percentage of his available production so remaining, as the producer supplier's shipments to each converter customer bore to his total shipments, during the base period, from January 1, 1950, through September 30, 1950. A producer supplier must accept orders placed by his converter customer up to the limit of his allotment: Provided, however, That such orders are placed in accordance with the lead times in Column B of Table I. Shipments under such allotments shall be made in addition to shipments to the same converter customer pursuant to authorized extension of DO ratings. Orders placed under the provisions hereof must be for substantially the same product as was supplied to each such converter during such period, except for minor variations in size and design. In determining the amount of the monthly allotments, adjustments may be made by a producer supplier, with the consent of the converter involved, to provide for any abnormal situations which affect any steel products.

SEC. 9. Extension of ratings for further conversion of steel products. All DO ratings extended for the purpose of further conversion of steel products shall have the symbol FC added to the two-digit designation following the prefix DO on the order.

SEC. 10. NPA assistance in placing rated orders. Any person who is unable to place a rated order for iron or steel due to the limitations imposed by sections 5 and 6 should apply to the NPA, Iron and Steel Division, Ref.: M–1, specifying the producers who refused to accept the order. The NPA will arrange to assist him in locating other sources of supply.

SEC. 11. Scheduled programs. NPA will from time to time approve scheduled programs calling for the production and delivery of iron and steel products for stated purposes, over specified periods of time. Upon approval of major programs of this type, supplements to this order will be issued describing such programs and specifying the manner in which they are to be carried out by the iron and steel industry. Thereafter, directives will be issued to individual concerns establishing schedules for their participation in such programs. Such directives shall be complied with by the recipients in accordance with the terms thereof, unless otherwise directed by NPA.

SEC. 12. Minimum orders. The minimum orders that may be placed with DO ratings or under NPA directives are set out in Table II at the end of this order. The minimum quantity for each size and grade of any item for shipment at any time to any one destination is listed opposite the appropriate item. If all other requirements of this order have been met, orders for such minimum quantities shall be accepted.

SEC. 13. Inventories. In addition to the provisions of NPA Reg. 1, relating to Inventory Control, it is considered that a more exact requirement applying to users of iron or steel products is necessary. No person obtaining iron or steel products for use in manufacture, processing or construction, may receive or accept delivery of a quantity of iron or steel products if his inventory is, or by such receipt would become, in excess of that necessary to meet his deliveries or supply his services on the basis of his scheduled method and rate of operation pursuant to this order during the succeeding 45-day period, for steel products, gray and malleable iron castings, and 30-day period for pig iron, or in excess of a practicable minimum working inventory (as defined in NPA Reg. 1), whichever is less. For the purpose of this section, iron and steel products listed in Table I in which only minor changes or alterations have been effected shall be included in inventory. NPA Reg. 1 will apply to iron and steel products except as modified by this section. Said 45-day limitation does not apply to persons who order structural steel for use in construction (including buildings, bridges and other structures of a like type) and who order it delivered cut to the specifications required for a specific project and who normally keep such steel segregated for the specific project. Instead, no such person may accept delivery of such steel more than 45 days before it is scheduled to be fabricated or, if it is not to be further fabricated, before it is scheduled to be assembled.

SEC. 14. Application for adjustment or exception. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry, or its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In considering requests for adjustment claiming that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of the public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each request shall be in writing, shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

SEC. 15. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C., Ref: M–1.

SEC. 16. Reports. Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such reports to the NPA as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act (P. L. 831, 77 Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139–139F). All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942. In accordance with this section all steel producers are required to report on "NPAF–13—Steel Producers' Report of Orders Accepted For DO Ratings and Programs" the orders accepted bearing DO ratings and orders resulting from programs made effective by NPA directives; and on "NPAF–17—Steel Producers' Monthly Report on Shipments and Past Due Orders" the record of the shipments and past due orders by DO ratings and programs made effective by NPA directives.

SEC. 17. Records. Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least two years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

SEC. 18. Audit and inspection. All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the NPA.

SEC. 19. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provisions of this order or any other order or regulation of NPA or wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and upon conviction may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

This order as amended shall take effect on February 23, 1951.

NATIONAL PRODUCTION AUTHORITY,
[SEAL] MANLY FLEISCHMANN,
Administrator.

M-25—CANS

This order as amended is found necessary and appropriate to promote the national defense and is issued pursuant to authority granted by section 101 of the Defense Production Act of 1950. In the formulation of this order there has been consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, and consideration has been given to their recommendations. However, consultation with representatives of all trades and industries affected in advance of the issuance of this order has been rendered impracticable by the fact that the order affects a very substantial number of different trades and industries.

In the formulation of this amendment consultation with industry representatives has been rendered impracticable due to the necessity for immediate action and because the order affects a large number of users in different trades and industries.

This amendment affects NPA Order M-25 as follows: It redesignates §§ 102.1 through 102.11 as sections 1 through 11; it amends the can specifications and the plate specifications for certain products in Schedule I; and adds Schedule II to the order. Order M-25 reads as follows:

Sec.
1. What this order does.
2. Definitions.
3. Restrictions on use of cans.
4. Other restrictions.
5. Restrictions on amount that may be packed.
6. Exceptions.
7. Certification of delivery of cans.
8. Application for adjustment or exception.
9. Records and reports.
10. Communications.
11. Violations.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 11 issued under sec. 701, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong. Interprets or applies sec. 101, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; sec. 101, E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105; sec. 2, E. O. 10200, 16 F. R. 61.

SECTION 1. What this order does. This order places restrictions upon cans made of tin plate and terneplate. Schedules I and II set out plate specifications for cans which vary according to the products packed. This order also limits the use of cans made of tin plate and terneplate. Cans made wholly of black plate are not restricted by this order. NPA Order M-24 permits the use of tin plate and terneplate for cans in accordance with the terms of this order. NPA Order M-8 sets forth the specifications for solder that may be used in the manufacture of cans.

SEC. 2. Definitions. As used in this order:

(a) "Can" means any unused container made in whole or in part of tin plate, terneplate or black plate, which is suitable for packing any product. The term includes any container which has a closure or fitting, made in whole or in part of tin plate, terneplate or black plate, but does not include a glass container having such a closure or fitting. The term does not include fluid milk shipping containers.

(b) "Tin plate" means steel sheet coated with tin, and includes "primes", "seconds", and all other forms of tin plate, except waste and waste-waste.

(c) "Terneplate" means steel sheets coated with terne metal and includes "primes" and "seconds". The term does not include terneplate waste-waste, or terneplate waste. "Terne metal" means the lead-tin alloy used as the coating for terneplate, but does not include lead recovered from secondary sources which contains less than 1½ percent residual tin.

(d) "SCMT" means special coated manufacturers' terneplate.

(e) "Waste" means scrap tin plate and terneplate (including strips and circles) produced in the ordinary course of manufacturing cans, and tin plate and terneplate strips produced in the ordinary course of manufacturing tin plate and terneplate. The term also includes tin plate and terneplate parts recovered from used cans.

(f) "Waste-waste" means hot dipped or electrolytic tin-coated steel sheets or steel sheets coated with terne metal which have been rejected during processing by the producer because of imperfections which disqualify such sheets from sale as primes or seconds.

(g) "Black plate" means steel sheets (other than tin plate or terneplate 29 gauge (128 pounds) or lighter. The term includes can manufacturing quality black plate (CMQ), "black plate rejects", chemically treated black plate (CTB), waste-waste, and waste.

(h) "Packer" means any person who uses cans for commercially packing any product.

(i) "Person" means any individual, corporation, partnership, association, or any other organized group of persons and includes any agency of the United States or any other government.

SEC. 3. Restrictions on use of cans. No packer shall purchase, accept delivery of, or use a can made in whole or in part of tin plate or terneplate for any purpose other than for packing products listed in Schedules I and II, and in accordance with the specifications set out in said Schedules I and II. The restrictions contained in this section and said Schedules I and II are subject to the exceptions of section 6. Schedules I and II are set out at the end of this order.

SEC. 4. Other restrictions. No person shall manufacture, sell or deliver any cans which he knows or has reason to believe will be accepted or used in violation of the terms of this order or any other order or regulation of the NPA.

SEC. 5. Restrictions on amount that may be packed. (a) The restrictions of this section do not apply to the packing of those products which are listed in Schedules I and II and preceded by a single asterisk. However, the restrictions of paragraph (b) of this section do apply to products preceded by a single asterisk if such products are repacked from other containers.

(b) During the first quarter of the calendar year 1951 and each quarter thereafter, until otherwise ordered by NPA, no packer may accept delivery of or use for packing any particular product which is listed in Schedules I and II and preceded by a double asterisk any cans, made in whole or in part of tin plate or terneplate, requiring more than 100 percent of the quantity by area of measurement of tin plate, terneplate and black plate which he used for packing that particular product during the corresponding quarter of 1949 or 1950. The amounts packed during each quarter shall be spread as equally as possible over each of the three months of such quarter, but no packer shall be required to take delivery of cans in less than carload lots to meet this provision.

(c) During the first quarter of the calendar year 1951 and each quarter thereafter, until otherwise ordered by NPA, no packer may accept delivery of or use for packing any other product which is listed in Schedules I and II any cans, made in whole or in part of tin plate or terneplate, by area of measurement requiring more than 90 percent of the quantity by area of measurement of tin plate, terneplate and black plate which he used for packing such product during the corresponding quarter of 1949 or 1950. The amounts packed during each quarter shall be spread as equally as possible over each of the three months of such quarter, but no packer shall be required to take delivery of cans in less than carload lots to meet this provision.

SEC. 6. Exceptions. (a) The plate specifications set out in Schedules I and II do not apply to the use of any cans which are in the inventory of a packer or in the inventory of a can manufacturer or in process of manufacture, or to tin plate or terneplate which was either in process at a tin mill, in the inventory of a tin mill for the account of a can manufacturer or in the inventory of a can manufacturer on the effective date of this order. It is the intent of this section that any tin plate or terneplate intended for use in the manufacture of cans in inventory or process as aforesaid shall be used notwithstanding the plate specifications of this order. However, the restrictions of section 5 are not excepted by this paragraph (a).

(b) Until March 31, 1951, .25 pound electrolytic tin plate or SCMT plate may be used in place of black plate for soldered parts on cans where facilities for soldering black plate are not available. This exception is provided to enable manufacturers to equip themselves to solder black plate.

(c) Any person whose total use of cans for packing any product in any calendar year requires less than 250 base boxes of tin plate and terneplate shall be exempt from the use limitations of section 5 but not from the plate specifications of Schedules I and II.

(d) Cans may be used to pack any product provided such product is not to be sold in the same or different form, but this does not permit the use of cans contrary to the provisions of this order for the purpose of aiding or promoting the sale of a product.

(e) (1) Orders having a properly applied DO rating are exempt from the use limitations of this order but not from the plate specifications.

(2) The restrictions in this order shall not apply to military requirements for cans of a special design or style not normally produced or used commercially, nor to cans for emergency rations and supplies for lifeboats.

SEC. 7. Certification of delivery of cans. No manufacturer shall sell or deliver cans unless he has received from the purchaser a certificate signed manually. This certificate shall be by letter in substantially the following form and, once filed by a purchaser with a manufacturer, covers all future deliveries of cans from the manufacturer to that purchaser:

To _____, manufacturer:

The undersigned purchaser certifies, subject to criminal penalties for misrepresentation, that he is familiar with Order M-25 of the National Production Authority, and that all purchases from you of items regulated by that order, and the acceptance of the same by the undersigned, will be in compliance with said order, and any amendments thereto.

SEC. 8. Application for adjustment or exception. Any person affected by any provision of this order may file a request for adjustment or exception upon the ground that his business operation was commenced during or after the base period, or because any provision otherwise works an undue or exceptional hardship upon him not suffered generally by others in the same trade or industry or its enforcement against him would not be in the interest of the national defense or in the public interest. In examining requests for adjustment claiming that the public interest is prejudiced by the application of any provision of this order, consideration will be given to the requirements of the public health and safety, civilian defense, and dislocation of labor and resulting unemployment that would impair the defense program. Each request shall be in writing and shall set forth all pertinent facts and the nature of the relief sought, and shall state the justification therefor.

SEC. 9. Records and reports. (a) Each person participating in any transaction covered by this order shall retain in his possession for at least two years records of receipts, deliveries, inventories, and use, in sufficient detail to permit an audit that determines for each transaction that the provisions of this order have been met. This does not specify any particular accounting method and does not require alteration of the system of records customarily maintained, provided such records supply an adequate basis for audit. Records may be retained in the form of microfilm or other photographic copies instead of the originals.

(b) All records required by this order shall be made available at the usual place of business where maintained for inspection and audit by duly authorized representatives of the National Production Authority.

(c) Persons subject to this order shall make such records and submit such reports to the National Production Authority as it shall require, subject to the terms of the Federal Reports Act (Pub. Law 831, 77th Cong., 5 U. S. C. 139–139F).

SEC. 10. Communications. All communications concerning this order shall be addressed to the National Production Authority, Washington 25, D. C. Ref.: M–25.

SEC. 11. Violations. Any person who wilfully violates any provisions of this order or any other order or regulation of the National Production Authority or wilfully conceals a material fact or furnishes false information in the course of operation under this order is guilty of a crime and, upon conviction, may be punished by fine or imprisonment or both. In addition, administrative action may be taken against any such person to suspend his privilege of making or receiving further deliveries of materials or using facilities under priority or allocation control and to deprive him of further priorities assistance.

NOTE: All reporting and record-keeping requirements of this order have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with said Federal Reports Act.

This order as amended shall take effect on February 23, 1951.

NATIONAL PRODUCTION AUTHORITY,
[SEAL] MANLY FLEISCHMANN,
Administrator.

SCHEDULE I—CAN SPECIFICATIONS

Columns 2 and 3 specify the weights of tin coating per base box of tin plate and terneplate which may be used for the parts of cans for the products listed in column 1. Any packer may also use for packing a listed product black plate cans or cans with a tin coating lighter than that specified for that product. Wherever .25 lb. electrolytic tin plate is specified SCMT may be used. Tin plate menders arising in the production of electrolytic tin plate may be used without regard to the weight of coating for any purpose where .50 lb. electrolytic tin plate is permitted under this schedule. Where menders arising cannot be used to replace .50 lb. electrolytic tin plate, they may be used to replace any electrolytic tin plate. When only a figure is given in columns 2 or 3 this means that tin plate may be used for the part and the figures given indicate the maximum weight of tin coating on each base box of plate. Wherever CMQ is specified .25 lb. electrolytic tin plate may be used in that part of a can which is closed by soldering. Reference is made to section 5 for restrictions on amount that may be packed and meaning of the asterisks preceding certain products.

SCHEDULE II—CAN SPECIFICATIONS

Columns 2 and 3 specify the weights of tin coating per base box of tin plate and terneplate which may be used for the parts of cans for the products listed in column 1. Any packer may also use for packing a listed product black-plate cans or cans with a tin coating lighter than that specified for that product. Wherever .25 lb. electrolytic tin plate is specified SCMT may be used. Tin plate menders arising in the production of electrolytic tin plate may be used without regard to the weight of coating for any purpose where .50 lb. electrolytic tin plate is permitted under this schedule. Where menders arising cannot be used to replace .50 lb. electrolytic tin plate, they may be used to replace any electrolytic tin plate. When only a figure is given in columns 2 and 3 this means that tin plate may be used for the part and the figures given indicate the maximum weight of tin coating on each base box of plate. Wherever can manufacturing quality black plate (CMQ) is specified .25 lb. electrolytic tin plate may be used in that part of a can which is closed by solder. Reference is made to section 5 for restrictions on amount that may be packed and meaning of the asterisks preceding certain products.

Chapter XV—Federal Reserve System

[Regulation W]

REG. W—CONSUMER CREDIT

1. Effective February 26, 1951, section 7 of Regulation W is hereby amended by adding, at the end thereof after the present paragraph (k), a new paragraph (l) reading as follows:

(l) Certain temporary rentals. Any contract or similar arrangement for the rental, leasing or bailment of a listed article for a specified period of not more than 3 months if (1) the transaction is to be terminated, and the article returned to the Registrant, on or before the expiration of the specified period, and (2) the transaction is not renewable and does not directly or indirectly relate to or involve any subsequent lease, use of, or other interest in, the article or any similar article.

(Sec. 5, 40 Stat. 415, as amended, sec. 601, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.; 50 U. S. C. App. 5. E. O. 8843, Aug. 9, 1941, 6 F. R. 4035; 3 CFR, 1941 Supp.)

2. a. The above amendment to Regulation W is issued under the authority of section 5 (b) of the act of October 6 1917, as amended, U. S. C., Title 50, App., sec. 5 (b); Executive Order No. 8843, dated August 9, 1941; and the "Defense Production Act of 1950", particularly section 601, thereof.

The purpose of the amendment is to exempt from the down payment and monthly payment requirements of this regulation certain short-term, non-renewable leases.

b. In 15 F. R. 8856, December 14, 1950, § 222.126, relating to "'Rental' transations", the Board stated that it was examining further into the characteristics of leasing arrangements and that it would consider whether or not any such arrangements were of such a special character as to make it desirable or feasible to relax any of the provisions of Regulation W to any extent for their benefit; and to aid in such examination and consideration, the Board invited the submission to it of any relevant explanations, data or other information.

This amendment was adopted by the Board after consideration of all relevant matter, including that presented to it pursuant to the abovementioned notice in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Special circumstances rendered impracticable further consultation with industry representatives, including trade association representatives, in the formulation of the above amendment, especially in view of the relaxing nature thereof; and, therefore, as authorized by section 709 of the Defense Production Act of 1950, the amendment has been issued without such further consultation. Section 709 of the Defense Production Act of 1950 provides that the functions exercised under such act shall be excluded from the operation of the Administrative Procedure Act (60 Stat. 237) except as to the requirements of section 3 thereof.

BOARD OF GOVERNORS OF THE FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM, [SEAL] S. R. CARPENTER,
Secretary.

PART 120—OCEAN MAIL SERVICE

COMPENSATION FOR TRANSPORTATION OF FOREIGN MAILS

Whereas section 4009 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (39 U. S. C. 654) vests authority in the Postmaster General to fix the compensation, within certain prescribed limits, for mail transported by a vessel of the United States, and

Whereas the Post Office Department has been petitioned to increase the present rate paid for the transportation of United States mails consisting of articles (including parcel post) other than letters and post cards dispatched from ports in the continental United States on steamships of the United States registry for distances up to and including 300 nautical miles, and

Whereas it has been determined, from the investigation conducted by the Post Office Department, that the carriers transporting such mails have suffered and are continuing to suffer a loss under the rate presently paid, and that an increase in such rate is, therefore, warranted, and

Whereas it has been found that compliance with the notice, public rule making procedure, and effective date requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) is unnecessary and contrary to the public interest:

Now, therefore, it is ordered, that, effective March 1, 1951, Part 120 be amended as follows:

In §120.7 Compensation for transportation of foreign mails (39 CFR 120.7) amend paragraph (c) by the addition of a subparagraph (3) to read as follows:

(3) Payment shall be made for the transportation of United States mails, consisting of articles (including parcel post) other than letters and post cards, when dispatched from ports in the continental United States, on steamships of United States registry, at the rate of 2.8 cents a pound for distances up to and including 300 nautical miles.

Chapter I—Coast Guard, Department of the Treasury

Subchapter O—Regulations Applicable to Certain Vessels During Emergency

[CGFR 51-9]

PART 154—WAIVERS OF NAVIGATION AND VESSEL INSPECTION LAWS AND REGULATIONS [1]

MISCELLANEOUS AMENDMENTS

The purpose for the following changes in waiver orders is to restate certain waiver orders, including regulations and instructions relating thereto, pertaining to laws and regulations relating to navigation and vessel inspection administered by the Coast Guard and considered necessary in the interest of national defense. These waiver orders are also published in 33 CFR Part 19 and the changes made in 46 CFR Part 154 by this document shall likewise be made in 33 CFR Part 19. Because of the technical character of general waiver orders and because of the urgency of providing general waiver authority in the interest of national defense, it is found that compliance with the notice of proposed rule making, public rule making procedure thereon, and effective date requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act is impracticable and contrary to the public interest.

All the waivers published in 46 CFR Part 154, which are also codified in 33

[1] This is also codified in 33 CFR Part 19.

CFR Part 19, were canceled by section 3 of Public Law 891, 81st Congress, 2d Session, approved December 27, 1950, which repealed the authority for these waivers and, therefore, all waivers in 46 CFR Part 154, as well as 33 CFR Part 19, are hereby revoked.

The purpose for the following general waivers of navigation and vessel inspection laws is to modify statutory requirements to such an extent and in such a manner and upon such terms as may be necessary in the interest of national defense. These general waivers are applicable to vessels or persons meeting the terms and conditions set forth therein without making formal application to the Coast Guard.

By virtue of the authority vested in me as Commandant, United States Coast Guard, by an order of the Acting Secretary of the Treasury, dated January 23, 1951, and identified as CGFR 51-1 and published in the FEDERAL REGISTER dated January 26, 1951 (16 F. R. 731), certain general waiver orders are revoked and others are restated and prescribed and shall become effective on and after the date of publication of this document in the FEDERAL REGISTER:

1. Section 154.03 Bond allotments on shipping articles is revoked.

2. Section 154.07 is restated and amended to read as follows:

§ 154.07 Chronological record of seaman's previous employment. (a) Compliance is hereby waived with regard to the provisions of subsection (h) of R. S. 4551, as amended (46 U. S. C. 643), to the extent necessary to permit the Commandant of the United States Coast Guard to issue a chronological record of a seaman's previous employment on a single document, in lieu of making individual entry in a duplicate continuous discharge book or furnishing individual certificates of discharge.

(b) It is hereby found that the waiving of the provisions of R. S. 4551 (h), as amended (46 U. S. C. 643), is necessary in the interest of national defense.

(Order CGFR 51-1, dated Jan. 23, 1951, of Acting Secretary of the Treasury; 16 F. R. 731; interpret or apply Pub. Law 891, 81st Cong., 2d Sess., approved Dec. 27, 1950)

3. Section 154.09 Permitting cargo vessels equipped with certificates issued by British Ministry of War Transport to load passengers at U. S. ports for outward transportation is revoked.

4. Section 154.13 Utilization of petroleum for motive power of steam vessels is revoked.

5. Section 154.17 Reporting of employment, discharge, or termination of seamen on tugs, towboats, and seagoing barges is revoked.

6. Section 154.19 is restated and amended to read as follows:

§ 154.19 Eight-hour day on tugs navigating the Great Lakes and tributary waters. (a) Compliance is hereby waived with regard to the provisions of section 2 of the act of March 4, 1915, as amended (46 U. S. C. 673), restricting the working hours of licensed officers or seamen in the deck or engine department of any tug navigating the Great Lakes or tributary waters thereof to eight hours in one day on any vessel engaged in business connected with the national defense.

(b) It is found necessary in the interest of national defense that there be waived compliance with so much of section 2 of the act of March 4, 1915, as amended (46 U. S. C. 673), regarding the working hours of licensed officers or seamen because the application of the statutory requirement unless waived would impede the operation of vessels engaged in business connected with the national defense.

(Order CGFR 51-1, dated Jan. 23, 1951, of Acting Secretary of the Treasury; 16 F. R. 731; interpret or apply Pub. Law 891, 81st Cong., 2d Sess., approved Dec. 27, 1950)

7. Section 154.23 is restated and amended to read as follows:

§ 154.23 Reporting of employment, discharge, or termination of seamen on vessels engaged exclusively in trade on the lakes other than the Great Lakes, bays, sounds, bayous, canals, and harbors. (a) Compliance is hereby waived with regard to the provisions of subsection (1) of R. S. 4551, as amended (46 U. S. C. 643 (1)), and with § 14.05-20 of this chapter for issuance of certificates and continuous discharge books relating to the reporting of the employment, discharge, or termination of the services of seamen on Coast Guard Form CG 735-T in the case of vessels employed in trade on lakes other than the Great Lakes, bays, sounds, bayous, canals, and harbors, and engaged in business connected with the national defense.

(b) It is found that the waiving of the provisions of R. S. 4551 (1), as amended (46 U. S. C. 643 (1)), is necessary in the interest of national defense.

(Order CGFR 51-1, dated Jan. 23, 1951, of Acting Secretary of the Treasury; 16 F. R. 731; interpret or apply Pub. Law 891, 81st Cong., 2d Sess., approved Dec. 27, 1950)

8. Section 154.27 Procedures for effecting individual waivers of navigation and vessel inspection laws and regulations is revoked.

9. Section 154.29 Continuation in effect of certain waivers, regulations, and instructions effective July 1, 1950 is revoked.

TITLE 47—TELECOMMUNICATION

Chapter I—Federal Communications Commission

PART 2—FREQUENCY ALLOCATIONS AND RADIO TREATY MATTERS; GENERAL RULES AND REGULATIONS

EXTENSION OF TEMPORY ALLOCATION OF FREQUENCIES TO THE RADIOLOCATION SERVICE

In the matter of a petition filed with the Commission by the Seismograph Service Corporation of Tulsa, Oklahoma, requesting extension of temporary allocation of frequencies to the radiolocation service in the band 1750–1800 kc.

At a meeting of the Federal Communications Commission held at its offices in Washington, D. C., on the 14th day of February 1951;

The Commission having under consideration footnote 2 to § 2.104 (a) of its rules which, subject to certain conditions, temporarily allocated the band 1750–1800 kc. until not later than February 17, 1951, to a radiolocation service for the location of petroleum deposits in the Gulf of Mexico, and having under consideration a petition filed by the Seismograph Service Corporation requesting an extension of this temporary allocation for an additional period after February 17, 1951, on the general grounds that such extension is needed in connection with the proceedings to be held in the Commission's general radiolocation hearing in Docket 9233 and on the further grounds that the petitioner has filed applications for renewal of its existing Class 2 Experimental licenses authorizing the use of this band for certain radiolocation purposes; and

It appearing, that the Commission's general radiolocation hearing in Docket 9233 has been postponed to an indefinite future date to be announced by the Commission and that an extension of the temporary allocation may serve to permit the accumulation of further data concerning radiolocation operations which may be utilized in connection with Docket 9233; and

It further appearing, that the Commission has heretofore found that establishment on a temporary basis of a radiolocation system as described above would be in the public interest and a further temporary extension as herein ordered would continue to be in the public interest; and

It further appearing, that steps are now being taken by the Commission which when completed are expected to result in the activation of the Disaster Communications Service in the band 1750–1800 kc., and that such service when activated should be free from harmful interference such as might be caused by the operation of the radiolocation service in this band; and

It further appearing, that the legal authority for a temporary extension of the existing temporary allocation of the band 1750–1800 kc. is vested in the Commission under sections 4 (i), and 303 (a), (b), (c), (d), (f), (g), (h), and (r) of the Communications Act of 1934, as amended; Article 7 of the Cairo (1938) General Radio Regulations, and Article 3 of the Atlantic City (1947) Radio Regulations;

It is ordered, That the petition of the Seismograph Service Corporation is granted to the extent that the temporary allocation is extended in accordance with the terms hereinafter set forth.

It is further ordered, That footnote (2) to § 2.104 (a) of the Commission's rules governing Frequency Allocations and other matters is amended to read as follows:

[2] On the condition that harmful interference shall not be caused to the Disaster Communications Service in this band, this band is temporarily allocated to the radiolocation service until not later than August 17, 1951, subject to possible temporary continuance beyond that time for such additional period or periods as the Commission may find necessary; Provided, however, That this temporary allocation, or any temporary continuation thereof, shall be subject to the use-in-derogation provisions of Article 7 of the Cairo General Radio Regulations and Chapter III of the Atlantic City Radio Regulations: And provided further, That this temporary allocation, or any temporary continuation thereof, shall automatically terminate, without the necessity of any further actions by the Commission, not later than the date on which that part of the Table of Frequency Allocations of the Inter-American Radio Agreement (Washington, 1949) covering the band 1750–1800 kc. becomes effective, or the date on which that part of the Atlantic City Table of Frequency Allocations covering all of the bands below 27,500 kc. becomes effective (as provided by Article 47 of the Atlantic City Radio Regulations), whichever date is earlier: And provided still further, That this temporary allocation, or any temporary continuation thereof, shall be subject to earlier cancellation or modification by the Commission, without the necessity of a hearing, if during any period when such allocation is in effect the Commission shall, in the course of any action by the United States Government directed toward bringing into force any part of the Inter-American Radio Agreement (Washington, 1949) or toward making effective all or any portion of that part of the Atlantic City Table of Frequency Allocations covering the bands below 27,500 kc. or in the course of proceedings undertaken by the Commission to determine whether a radiolocation service should be provided on a permanent basis, or in the course of activating the Disaster Communications Service or any other fixed or mobile service in this band, reach conclusions which, in the opinion of the Commission, require such cancellation or modification. This temporary allocation, or any temporary continuation thereof, is strictly limited to a radiolocation service for the location of petroleum deposits in the Gulf of Mexico. Stations in this service shall be located within 150 miles of the shoreline of the Gulf of Mexico.

It is further ordered, That this order, and the amendment of Part 2 of the rules herein ordered, shall be effective February 17, 1951.

(Sec. 4, 48 Stat. 1066, as amended; 47 U. S. C. 154. Interprets or applies sec. 303, 48 Stat. 1082, as amended; 47 U. S. C. 303)

Released: February 15, 1951.

Secretary.

DEPARTMENT OF THE TREASURY

United States Coast Guard

[33 CFR, Parts 80, 90, 95]

[46 CFR, Parts 59, 60, 76, 94, 146, 160]

[CGFR 51-5]

INSPECTION AND NAVIGATION REGULATIONS

MERCHANT MARINE COUNCIL PUBLIC HEARING ON PROPOSED CHANGES

1. The Merchant Marine Council will hold a public hearing on March 27, 1951, commencing at 9:30 a. m., in Room 4120, Coast Guard Headquarters, Thirteenth and E Streets NW., Washington, D. C., to consider proposed changes in the navigation and vessel inspection regulations.

2. The proposed changes in the regulations, together with the statutory authority for making such changes, are generally described by subjects in paragraphs 4 to 13, inclusive. Copies of the proposed changes in the regulations have been mailed to persons and organizations who have expressed an active interest in the subjects under discussion. Copies of any of the proposed regulations may be obtained from the Commandant (CMC), Coast Guard Headquarters, Washington 25, D. C., so long as they are available. After all extra copies available for distribution are exhausted, copies will be available for reading purposes only in Room 4104, Coast Guard Headquarters, or at the offices of the various Coast Guard District Commanders.

3. Comments on the proposed regulations are invited. All persons who desire to submit written comments, data, and views, prior to the hearing for consideration in connection with the proposed changes may submit them in writing for receipt prior to March 26 by the Commandant (CMC), Coast Guard Headquarters, Washington 25, D. C., or comments, data, and views may be presented orally or in writing at the hearing. In order to insure consideration and to facilitate the checking and recording of comments, it is necessary that each suggested rewording of a proposed regulation be submitted on a separate sheet of letter size paper, showing the section number (if possible) and the specific item number; the proposed change; the reason or basis (if any); and the name, business firm or organization (if any), and the address of the submitter. It is urged that the written comments, data, and views be submitted as soon as possible so they will be received prior to March 26 in order to insure consideration at the hearing and before recommendations are made concerning the proposed regulations.

ITEM I—WARNING SIGNALS FOR USE BY COAST GUARD BUOY TENDERS WHILE WORKING BUOYS

4. It is proposed to add a new regulation in the Pilot Rules for Certain Inland Waters, Pilot Rules for the Great Lakes and Their Tributaries and the St. Marys River, and the Pilot Rules for the Western Rivers and the Red River of the North, as 33 CFR 80.33a, 90.15a, and 95.26. This proposed regulation will contain requirements for special signals to be used by a Coast Guard vessel while working on a buoy and will require the pilot or operator of a vessel observing this signal to give the Coast Guard vessel as wide a berth as possible and to reduce the speed of his vessel during passing as much as possible. This regulation is being added in order to reduce the hazards on a Coast Guard vessel which is in a very vulnerable position when working on a buoy and attempting to raise it.

5. The authority to add 33 CFR 80.33a is in section 2, 30 Stat. 102, as amended, 33 U. S. C. 157. The authority to add 33 CFR 90.15a is in section 3, 28 Stat. 649, as amended, 33 U. S. C. 243. The authority to add 33 CFR 95.26 is in R. S. 4233A, as amended, 33 U. S. C. 353.

ITEM II—LIFEBOAT WINCHES, LIMIT SWITCHES IN CONTROL CIRCUITS OF

6. It is proposed to amend 46 CFR 59.3a (b), 60.21a (b), 76.15a (b), and 94.14a (b), of the general rules and regulations, Ocean and Coastwise, Great Lakes, and Bays, Sounds, and Lakes Other Than the Great Lakes, to require the limit switches functioning in the control circuits of lifeboat winches which were in existence on November 17, 1949, to meet the same requirements as limit switches presently required in lifeboat winches for use in new installations. During the last five years the records of the Coast Guard show there have been thirty accidents caused by defective limit switches. These thirty casualties have resulted in three deaths, eighteen persons injured, and considerable property damage. During this same period two men were killed and seven were injured as a result of being struck by spinning crank handles while in the act of hand cranking the davits to their final position. It is felt that most of these accidents could be eliminated by requiring limit switches in circuits of lifeboat winches on existing installations to meet the requirements for new installations. This proposal will extend the application of the regulations so that all installations of limit switches in circuits of lifeboat winches will be the same. In view of the fact that the equipment installed on existing vessels is aging, the accident rate from defective limit switches if not corrected may be expected to increase rather than decrease.

7. The authority for requiring limit switches in electric circuits of lifeboat winches is in R. S. 4405, 4488, 4491, 49 Stat. 1544, 54 Stat. 346; and sec. 5 (e), 55 Stat. 244, as amended, 46 U. S. C. 1, 367, 375, 481, 489, 1333, 50 U. S. C. 1275.

ITEM III—INFLAMMABLE LIQUIDS, TRANSPORTATION OF

8. It is proposed to revise the requirements for the transportation of inflammable liquids in the regulations governing explosives or other dangerous articles or substances and combustible liquids on board vessels by adding 46 CFR 146.03-9, regarding definition of "flammable" or "inflammable" and by amending 46 CFR 146.04-5, 146.21-1, 146.21-2, 146.21-14, and 146.21-100 so that the Coast Guard requirements will be in agreement with the Interstate Commerce Commission's regulations. Since new inflammable liqids have become commercially important and are now covered by ICC regulations, it is proposed to add similar requirements in 46 CFR 146.21-100. The Interstate Commerce Commission has also changed the requirements for some of the containers used in transporting inflammable liquids, as well as authorized the use of a number of new contalners, and the regulations have been revised to reflect these changes.

9. The authority for regulations covering the transportation of inflammable liquids is in R. S. 4405, 4472, and sec. 5 (e), 55 Stat. 244, as amended, 46 U. S. C. 1, 170, 375, and 50 U. S. C. 1275.

ITEM IV—SPECIFICATIONS FOR FIBROUS GLASS LIFE PRESERVERS, PISTOL PROJECTED PARACHUTE RED FLARE DISTRESS SIGNALS AND SIGNAL PISTOLS

10. It is proposed to add a new specification covering life preservers using fibrous glass as buoyant material as a new Subpart 160.005 in 46 CFR Part 160. This specification will provide an alternate type of life preserver for use on inspected vessels. At the public hearing held on September 20, 1950, this proposed specification was considered. Because numerous comments and suggestions were submitted it was determined to reconsider this specification after all the comments previously received have been incorporated into it where possible. The proposed specification sets forth the requirements to be followed in manufacturing life preservers using fibrous glass as buoyant material, as well as the inspections and tests required and the procedures for obtaining approval.

11. It is proposed to cancel the present specification designated as 46 CFR Subpart 160.024, which contains requirements for pistol projected parachute red flare distress signals and signal pistols and in lieu thereof add two new specifications designated as Subpart 160.024 for the pistol projected parachute red flare distress signals and Subpart 160.028 for the signal pistols in 46 CFR Part 160. These specifications as rewritten contain no new requirements except that the cost of qualification tests for type or brand approval must now be borne by the manufacturer. The proposed specifications cover the requirements to be followed in manufacturing pistol projected parachute red flare distress signals and signal pistols as well as the inspections and tests required and the procedures for obtaining approval.

12. The authority for specifications covering fibrous glass life preservers is in R. S. 4405, 4417a, 4426, 4482, 4488, 4491, 4492, sec. 11, 35 Stat. 428, 49 Stat. 1544, 54 Stat. 163–167, 346, and sec. 5 (e), 55 Stat. 244, as amended, 46 U. S. C. 1, 367, 375, 391a, 396, 404, 475, 481, 489, 490, 526–526t, 1333, and 50 U. S. C. 1275.

13. The authority for the specifications regarding pistol projected parachute red flare distress signals and signal pistols is in R. S. 4405, 4417a, 4488, 4491, 49 Stat. 1544, 54 Stat. 346, and sec. 5 (e), 55 Stat. 244, as amended, 46 U. S. C. 1, 367, 375, 391a, 481, 489, 1333, and 50 U. S. C. 1275.

Dated: February 21, 1951.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Production and Marketing Administration

[Docket No. AO 166-A13]

HANDLING OF MILK IN THE CINCINNATI, OHIO, MARKETING AREA

NOTICE OF RECOMMENDED DECISION AND OPPORTUNITY TO FILE WRITTEN EXCEPTIONS WITH RESPECT TO PROPOSED AMENDMENT TO TENTATIVE MARKETING AGREEMENT, AND TO ORDER, AS AMENDED

Pursuant to the provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), and the applicable rules of practice and procedure, as amended, governing the formulation of marketing agreements and marketing orders (7 CFR Part 900), notice is hereby given of the filing with the Hearing Clerk of the recommended decision of the Assistant Administrator, Production and Marketing Administration, United States Department of Agriculture, with respect to a proposed amendment to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the Cincinnati, Ohio, marketing area. Interested parties may file written exceptions to this decision with the Hearing Clerk, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C., not later than the close of business the 5th day after publication of this decision in the FEDERAL REGISTER. Exceptions should be filed in quadruplicate.

Preliminary statement. The hearing, on the record of which the proposed amendment to the tentative marketing agreement and to the order, as amended, was formulated, was conducted at Cincinati, Ohio, on January 8, 1951, pursuant to notice thereof which was issued on January 2, 1951 (16 F. R. 98).

The material issues of record related to (1) the level of Class I and Class II prices in relation to the basic formula price, and (2) the pricing of Class III milk in such a manner as to discourage handlers from using producer milk in Class III when outlets are available for such milk in Class I or Class II.

Findings and conclusions. The following findings and conclusions are based upon evidence contained in the record:

(1) The level of Class I and Class II prices in relation to the basic formula price.

The amounts to be added to the basic formula price in computing Class I and Class II prices should not be changed; however, Class I and Class II prices should not be allowed to decline prior to May 1, 1951.

In November 1950, the last month for which the record contains data, the amount of emergency milk classified in Classes I and II was only one percent of total Class I and Class II milk and was only 7 percent of the amount of producer milk classified in Class III. No emergency milk was received by handlers from January 1949 to October 1950. Even though the weather in the latter part of November was more severe and more unfavorable to milk production than in most winters, only a very small amount of emergency milk was needed. On some days deliveries of milk from farms to plants and from plants to wholesale or retail outlets were curtailed because of weather and road conditions. The unfavorable weather continued into December and early January, but the supply of producer milk is usually lowest in November, so that the extent of usage of emergency milk in Classes I and II was probably not significantly greater in December or January than in November.

Conclusions set forth hereinafter concerning the pricing of Class III milk should make more producer milk available for use in Class I and Class II in the short supply season.

The basic formula price, and accordingly Class I and Class II prices, increased 24 cents from November to December and further increases appear likely.

In view of the above, it is concluded that no permanent increase in Class I and Class II price differentials is necessary.

Any condition unfavorable to the milk production of an individual cow will be reflected to some extent throughout the lactation period in which that condition exists. A relatively large number of cows in producers' herds freshen in December and January. Thus, the severe weather this winter will have some unfavorable effect on the volume of producer milk throughout most of 1951. Establishment of some incentive to encourage producers to maintain their herds at a high level of production to assure an adequate supply for the short season of 1951 appears desirable. It is therefore concluded that Class I and Class II prices should not be allowed to decline prior to May 1, 1951. By May 1 production is nearing the seasonal high point and pastures are supplying a large amount of nutrients.

(2) The pricing of Class III milk in such a manner as to discourage handlers from using producer milk in Class III when outlets are available for such milk in Class I or Class II.

The Class III price should be increased 30 cents per hundredweight above the price presently applicable in each of the months of October through February.

Considerable quantities of producer milk have been used in Class III in the recent short milk production season by some handlers while other handlers have had considerable difficulty obtaining milk to satisfy their needs for Class I and Class II. Attempts have been made by a cooperative association to channel producer milk into the Class I and Class II outlets available, but some handlers using substantial amounts of producer milk in Class III have not been willing to release such milk.

Ice cream constitutes the major portion of Class III usage in the short supply season. Regulations of marketing area health authorities require that butterfat used in ice cream must be from milk produced under their supervision, but nonfat milk solids used in ice cream can be obtained from other sources if certain temperature requirements are met in processing. Ice cream sold ouside the marketing area need not be made from producer milk.

Butterfat can be stored during the season of flush milk production for use in the short season. Apparently the seasonal variation in the Class III price is not presently great enough to encourage such storage. On the basis of estimated costs of storage of such butterfat, a seasonal differential of 30 cents plus the seasonal variation in the Class III formula factors should encourage storage of butterfat for use in ice cream. This should result in making more producer milk available for Class I and Class II requirements in the season of short milk production.

A proposal considered at the hearing would add 30 cents to the Class III price in any of the months of October through February if a prescribed relationship between volume of Class I and Class II milk and volume of producer milk was exceeded. Such a provision would provide less incentive for handlers to store butterfat than the change herein concluded to be necessary and desirable.

It is therefore concluded that the Class III price should be increased 30 cents above the present formula level in each of the months of October through February.

General findings. (a) The proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, and all of the terms and conditions thereof will tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act;

(b) The parity prices of milk as determined pursuant to section 2 of the act are not reasonable in view of the price of feeds, available supplies of feeds and other economic conditions which affect market supply of and demand for milk, in the marketing area and the minimum prices specified in the proposed marketing agreement and the order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, are such prices as will reflect the aforesaid factors, insure a sufficient quantity of pure and wholesome milk, and be in the public interest; and

(c) The proposed order, as amended, and as hereby proposed to be further amended, will regulate the handling of milk in the same manner as, and will be applicable only to persons in the respective classes of industrial and commercial activity specified in a marketing agreement upon which a hearing has been held.

Rulings on proposed findings and conclusions. A brief was filed on behalf of Cincinnati Sales Association, Inc. The brief contained statements of fact, proposed findings and conclusions, and arguments with respect to the provisions of the proposed amendment. Every point covered in the brief was carefully considered along with the evidence in the record in making the findings and reaching the conclusions hereinbefore set forth. To the extent that the findings and conclusions proposed in the brief are inconsistent with the findings and conclusions contained herein, the request to make such findings or to reach such conclusions is denied on the basis of the facts found and stated in connection with the conclusions in this recommended decision.

Recommended marketing agreement and amendment to the order. The following amendment to the order is recommended as the detailed and appropriate means by which the foregoing conclusions may be carried out. 2. Amend § 965.51 (b) by adding thereto the following: "Provided, That from the effective date of this proviso through April 1951 the Class II price for any month shall not be lower than in the immediately preceding month."

3. Amend that portion of § 965.51 (c) which precedes subparagraph (1) thereof to read as follows:

(c) The price for Class III milk during each of the months of March through September shall be the higher of the prices computed pursuant to subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph; and the price for Class III milk during each of the months of October through February shall be the higher of the prices computed pursuant to subparagraphs (1) and (2) of this paragraph, plus 30 cents.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS BOARD

[14 CFR, Part 41]

FLIGHT TIME LIMITATIONS FOR PILOTS NOT REGULARLY ASSIGNED TO ONE TYPE OF CREW

NOTICE OF PROPOSED RULE MAKING

Pursuant to authority delegated by the Civil Aeronautics Board to the Bureau of Safety Regulation, notice is hereby given that the Bureau will propose to the Board a Special Civil Air Regulation in substance as hereinafter set forth.

Interested persons may participate in the making of the proposed rules by submitting such written data, views, or arguments as they may desire. Communications should be submitted, in duplicate, to the Civil Aeronautics Board, attention Bureau of Safety Regulation, Washington 25, D. C. All communications received by March 28, 1951, will be considered by the Board before taking further action on the proposed rules. Copies of such communications will be available after March 30, 1951, for examination by interested persons at the Docket Section of the Board, Room 5412, Commerce Building, Washington, D. C.

Under the present interpretation of § 41.57 of the Civil Air Regulations it is impossible to use a pilot in more than one type of crew combination even for a single flight without restricting his total monthly flight time to 100 hours. In view of the fact that pilots in flight crews consisting of two pilots and an additional flight crew member may fly as much as 120 hours a month, and that no specific monthly limitations are established for 3-pilot plus additional flight crew member crews, the effect of this limitation is to prevent mixed assignments even where no increase in flight fatigue would be involved and where the arrangement would be desirable for both pilot and carrier.

It is our opinion that regulations should be so drafted as to permit assignment to more than one type of flight crew without creating any penalty in terms of maximum permissive flight duty without, of course, opening the door to evasion of the stricter limitations applicable to the smaller crew combinations.

It is our intention, for an experimental period of 6 months, to permit a pilot to take advantage of changing during the month to another type of crew combination which is less restrictive as to monthly flight time limitations, or vice versa, if he does not fly more than 20 hours in the more restrictive category. This would permit logical classification in accordance with the flight time limitations authorized in §§ 41.54, 41.55, and 41.56 for various types of crew combinations.

During this period it is expected that the Civil Aeronautics Administration will closely supervise the operation to be sure that no abuse is developed and to obtain necessary information to assist the Board in determining a satisfactory permanent program for adoption along with the proposed flight time limitations recently submitted for public consideration in proposed revised Part 40.

The proposed Special Civil Air Regulation would, in general, establish the following maximum monthly and quarterly limitations for pilots used in various crew combinations:

1. A pilot assigned to multiple crews may fly in either two-pilot or two-pilot plus additional airman crews and comply with the flight time limitations applicable to multiple crews under the following circumstances:

(a) If his assigned time to two-pilot crews is a continuous period [1] of 20 hours or less;

(b) If his assigned time in two-pilot plus additional airman crews is a continuous period of 20 hours or less;

(c) If his combined time in two-pilot and two-pilot plus additional airman crews is 20 hours or less.

2. Any pilot whose time in two-pilot crews exceeds 20 hours or who has two or more noncontinuous assignments to such crews shall have a monthly maximum of 100 hours.

3. Any pilot whose time in two-pilot plus additional airman crews exceeds 20 hours or who has two or more noncontinuous assignments to such crews shall have a monthly maximum of 120 hours and a quarterly limit of 300 hours.

4. Any pilot whose combined time in a two-pilot crew with and without an additional airman exceeds 20 hours shall have a monthly limit of 120 hours and a quarterly limit of 300 hours.

It is proposed to issue a Special Civil Air Regulation to read as follows:

1. Contrary provisions of § 41.57 of the Civil Air Regulations notwithstanding, the following rules shall apply to the monthly and quarterly flight time limitations of pilots used in combinations of two-pilot crews, two-pilot and additional flight crew member crews, or three-pilot and additional flight crew member crews.

2. A pilot who is assigned to duty aloft for more than 20 hours in two-pilot crews in a given month, or whose assignment in such crew is interrupted more than once in the month by assignment to a crew consisting of two or more pilots and an additional flight crew member, shall be governed by the provisions of § 41.54.

3. Except for a pilot coming within the provisions of paragraph 2, a pilot who is assigned to duty aloft for more than 20 hours in two-pilot plus additional flight crew member crews in a given month, or whose assignment in such crew is interrupted more than once in the month by assignment to a crew consisting of three pilots plus an additional flight crew member, shall be governed by the provisions of § 41.55.

4. A pilot to whom the provisions of paragraphs 2 and 3 are not applicable, assigned to duty aloft for a total of 20 hours or less within a given month in two-pilot crews with or without additional flight crew members, shall be governed by the provisions of § 41.56.

5. A pilot assigned to each of two-pilot, two-pilot plus additional flight crew member, and three-pilot plus additional flight crew member crews in a given month, who is not governed by the provisions of paragraphs 2, 3, or 4, shall be governed by the provisions of § 41.55.

This regulation is proposed under the authority of title VI of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended.

(Sec. 205, 52 Stat. 98[1]; 49 U. S. C. 425 (a). Interpret or apply secs. 601–610, 52 Stat. 1007–1012; 49 U. S. C. 551–560)

Dated: February 20, 1951, at Washington, D. C.

[1] The fact that more than one flight trip is involved does not prevent the period from being regarded as continuous for this purpose.

CALIFORNIA

CLASSIFICATION ORDER

JANUARY 26, 1951.

1. Pursuant to the authority delegated to me by the Director, Bureau of Land Management, by Order No. 427 dated August 16, 1950, I hereby classify under the Small Tract Act of June 1, 1938 (52 Stat. 609), as amended July 14, 1945 (59 Stat. 467, 43 U. S. C. 682a), as hereinafter indicated, the following described land in the Los Angeles, California, land district, embracing approximately 640 acres.

CALIFORNIA SMALL TRACT CLASSIFICATION NO. 255

T. 2 N., R. 6 E., S. B. M., Sec. 8, All.

The lands are located 15 to 25 miles northwest of Twenty-nine Palms, California, in the Mojave Desert, San Bernardine County, California. The elevation ranges from about 2,700 to 3,500 feet. The topography is rolling. The sandy soil supports a desert shrub type of vegetation. Summer temperatures are high and rainfall is slight. Graded and unimproved roads permit access to portions of the area. Subsurface water is generally very deep and many applicants will find it necessary to haul water for domestic use.

2. As to applications regularly filed prior to 3:24 p. m., April 16, 1948, and are for the type of site for which the land is classified, this order shall become effective upon the date it is signed.

3. As to the land not covered by applications referred to in paragraph 2, this order shall not become effective to permit leasing under the Small Tract Act until 10:00 a. m., March 30, 1951. At that time such land shall, subject to valid existing rights, become subject to application as follows:

(a) Ninety-day preference period for qualified veterans of World War II from 10:00 a. m., March 30, 1951, to close of business on June 28, 1951.

(b) Advance period for veterans' simultaneous filings from 3:24 p. m., April 16, 1948, to 10:00 a. m., March 30, 1951.

4. Any of the land remaining unappropriated shall become subject to application under the Small Tract Act by the public generally, commencing at 10:00 a. m., June 29, 1951.

(a) Advance period for simultaneous nonpreference filings from 3:24 p. m., April 16, 1948, to 10:00 a. m., June 29, 1951.

5. Applications filed within the periods mentioned in paragraphs 3 (b) and 4 (a) will be treated as simultaneously filed.

A veteran shall accompany his application with a complete photostatic, or other copy (both sides), of his certificate of honorable discharge, or of an official document of his branch of the service which shows clearly his honorable discharge as defined in § 181.36 of Title 43 of the Code of Federal Regulations, or constitutes evidence of other facts upon which the claim for preference is based and which shows clearly the period of service. Other persons claiming credit for service of veterans must furnish like proof in support of their claims. Persons asserting preference rights, through settlement or otherwise, and those having equitable claims, shall accompany their application by duly corroborated statements in support thereof, setting forth in detail all facts relevant to their claims.

6. All of the land will be leased in tracts of approximately 5 acres, each being approximately 330 by 660 feet, the longer dimension to extend north and south.

7. Preference right leases referred to in paragraph 2 will be issued for the land described in the application irrespective of the direction of the tract, provided the tract conforms to or is made to conform to the area and the dimension specified in paragraph 6.

8. Where only one five-acre tract in a ten-acre subdivision is embraced in a preference right application, an application for the remaining five-acre tract extending in the same direction will be accepted in order to fill out the subdivision notwithstanding the direction specified in paragraph 6.

9. Leases will be for a period of three years at an annual rental of $5.00 payable for the entire lease period in advance of the issuance of the lease. Leases will contain an option to purchase clause at the appraised value of $10.00 per acre, application for which may be filed at or after the expiration of one year from date the lease is issued.

10. Tracts will be subject to rights-of-way not exceeding 33 feet in width along or near the edges thereof for road purposes and public utilities. Such rights-of-way may be utilized by the Federal Government, or the state, county or municipality in which the tract is situated, or by any agency thereof. The rights-of-way may, in the discretion of the authorized officer of the Bureau of Land Management, be definitely located prior to the issuance of the patent. If not so located, they may be subject to location after patent is issued.

11. All inquiries relating to these lands should be addressed to the Manager, Land Office, Los Angeles, California.

NATIONAL ASSN. OF SECURITIES DEALERS, INC., ET AL.

NOTICE OF TIME FOR FILING WRITTEN REQUEST FOR HEARING

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 19th day of February 1951.

In the matter of the application of National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., for approval of the continuance of Oscar F. Kraft & Co. in membership in the association with Carter Harrison Corbrey, as a controlled person.

The National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc. (hereinafter referred to as the Association), has filed with this Commission an application for approval of the continuance of Oscar F. Kraft & Co. in membership in the Association, with Carter Harrison Corbrey as a registered representative thereof, pursuant to the provisions of section 15A (b) (4) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

The application states in substance:

1. That Oscar F. Kraft, doing business as Oscar F. Kraft & Co., a registered broker and dealer and a member of the Association, proposes to employ Carter Harrison Corbrey as a salesman and has applied to the Association for the registration of Corbrey as its registered representative;

2. That the Commission, by order of April 12, 1949, revoked the broker-dealer registration of Carter H. Corbrey & Co. (not Inc.), the name under which Corbrey had been engaged in business, and expelled him from membership in the Association, pursuant to section 15 (b) and section 15A (1), (2), respectively, of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934;

3. That the District Committee for District No. 2 and the Board of Governors of the Association have considered the application made to it by Oscar F. Kraft & Co. for the registration of Corbrey as a registered representative, and upon consideration of all of the facts, including the representations as to the type of activity to be engaged in by Corbrey as an employee of that firm and the extent of the supervision which the firm will exercise over his activities, are of the opinion that the approval by the Commission of the continuance in membership of Oscar F. Kraft & Co. with Corbrey in its employ would be consonant with the stated purposes and policies of section 15A of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

By reason of the Commission's order revoking the registration of Corbrey and expelling him from membership in the National Association of Securities Dealers, Inc., as more particularly set forth in paragraph 2 above, Oscar F. Kraft & Co. may not, pursuant to the provisions of section 15A (b) (4) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, be continued in the membership of the Association with Corbrey in its employ except with the approval or at the direction of the Commission.

Notice is hereby given that any interested person may informally present his views or any information relating to this matter by communicating with the Secretary of the Commission, or with Mr. Thomas B. Hart, Administrator of the Commission's Chicago Regional Office located at Room 630 Bankers Building, 105 West Adams Street, Chicago 3, Illinois, or with Mr. Howard A. Judy, Administrator of the Commission's San Francisco Regional Office located at Room 308 Appraisers Building, 630 Sansome Street, San Francisco 11, California, or with Mr. Charles R. At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 20th day of February A. D. 1951.

The Commission on June 30, 1949, having approved a plan ("Compromise Plan"), pursuant to section 11 (e) of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("the act"), providing for the distribution of escrowed cash and shares of new common stock of Interstate Power Company ("Interstate") among the holders of Interstate's formerly outstanding debentures, public holders of Interstate's formerly outstanding preferred stock, and Ogden Corporation ("Ogden"), Interstate's former parent, which Compromise Plan was thereafter approved by the United States District Court for the District of Delaware; and

A petition ("Adjusted Compromise Plan") having been filed in which all participants joined, proposing adjustments of the allocations contained in the Compromise Plan; and

The Commission having considered the record and having issued its findings and opinion this day finding the Compromise Plan no longer fair and equitable to public preferred stockholders and finding that the Adjusted Compromise Plan is fair and equitable to the persons affected thereby;

It is ordered, Pursuant to section 11 (e) of the act, that the Adjusted Compromise Plan be, and it hereby is, approved, subject to the conditions specified in Rule U-24 and to the following additional terms and conditions:

(1) This order shall not be operative to authorize the consummation of the proposed transactions until the United States District Court for the District of Delaware, upon application thereto, shall have entered an order enforcing the Adjusted Compromise Plan; and

(2) Jurisdiction is generally reserved to the Commission to entertain such further proceedings, to make such supplemental findings and to take such further actions as it may deem appropriate in connection with the Adjusted Compromise Plan, the transactions incident thereto and the consummation thereof, and jurisdiction is specifically reserved to consider and determine the reasonableness and allocation of all fees and expenses incurred and to be incurred in connection with the Adjusted Compromise Plan and the transactions incident thereto.

It is further ordered, That the request to be heard filed by Interstate Power Company on the limited issue presented in its request be, and it hereby is, denied, without prejudice to its right to be heard on such issue in an appropriate subsequent proceeding.

It is further ordered and recited, That the distribution of common stock of Interstate held in escrow by the Chemical Bank & Trust Company and the distribution of cash held in escrow by the Manufacturers Trust Company as provided in the Adjusted Compromise Plan, are necessary and appropriate to effectuate the provisions of section 11 (b) of the act.

AERONAUTICAL SECURITIES, INC., AND BULLOCK FUND LTD.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 20th day of February A. D. 1951.

Notice is hereby given that Aeronautical Securities, Incorporated (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "Aeronautical") and Bullock Fund Ltd. (hereinafter sometimes referred to as "Bullock"), registered investment companies, have filed an application pursuant to section 17 (b) of the Investment Company Act of 1940 for an order of the Commission exempting from the provisions of section 17 (a) of the act the proposed transfer of the assets of Aeronautical to Bullock in exchange for shares of capital stock of Bullock equal to the net value of the assets of Aeronautical, after deducting liabilities assumed by Bullock.

Aeronautical and Bullock are open-end management investment companies with principal offices in the City of New York. Aeronautical is a non-diversified company and Bullock is diversified. Calvin Bullock, a joint stock association, is the investment adviser and principal underwriter for both. The principal officers of Aeronautical are also officers of Bullock and, in addition, each officer of Aeronautical and Bullock is also an officer or employee of Calvin Bullock, the joint stock association.[1] Because of these affiliations the proposed transaction might be deemed to come within the prohibition of section 17 (a) (1) and (2) of the act.[2] Accordingly, Aeronautical and Bullock have filed the instant application for an order of the Commission exempting the proposed transaction from the provisions of section 17 (a).[3]

Aeronautical and Bullock have entered into a contract, dated February 9, 1951, pursuant to which Aeronautical has agreed, subject to the requisite approval of its stockholders, to transfer to Bullock and Bullock has agreed to acquire from Aeronautical all the assets of Aeronautical in exchange for shares of capital stock of Bullock having a net asset value equal to the net value of the assets of Aeronautical, after deducting liabilities of Aeronautical assumed by Bullock. Assets and liabilities in each case will be determined as of the close of business on the day on which stockholders of Aeronautical approve the transaction. The shares of Bullock received by Aeronautical will be distributed pro rata to stockholders of Aeronautical, and Aeronautical will be dissolved.

As of December 31, 1950, Aeronautical had net assets amounting to $1,369,026 which was equivalent to $7.78 per share. The assets consisted of shares of airline companies, aircraft accessory companies and aircraft manufacturers. It has been the policy of Aeronautical to invest its funds ordinarily in securities of companies engaged in air transportation or wholly or partly in the manufacture of aircraft, parts or accessories. As of November 30, 1950, Bullock had net assets of $8,672,659 which was equivalent to $21.05 per share. The assets consisted for the most part of common stocks of different industries. It is the policy of Bullock not to concentrate investments in securities of any particular industry. Bullock has net assets and gross investment income over six times as large as Aeronautical. Its expenses are only three times as large.

The reason for the proposed transfer is that the redemption of Aeronautical shares has far exceeded the sale of new shares. During 1949 the number of shares of Aeronautical outstanding decreased by 17.6 percent and during 1950 by 20.5 percent. During 1950 the ratio of redemptions to sales was 5.22 to 1. The redemptions of Aeronautical shares have in recent months exceeded sales of new shares at a rate which in the opinion of management, if continued, would produce an annual operating expense per share of capital stock outstanding more than is justified for investment company stocks of this type.

All interested persons are referred to said application which is on file in the offices of the Commission for a detailed statement of the proposed transactions and the matters of fact and law asserted.

Notice is further given that an order granting the application in whole or in part and upon such condition as the Commission may deem necessary or appropriate, may be issued by the Commission on or at any time after March 12, 1951, unless prior thereto a hearing upon the application is ordered by this Commission, as provided in Rule N-5 of the rules and regulations promulgated under the act. Any interested person may submit to the Commission in writing, not later than March 9, 1951, at 5:30 p. m., his views or any additional facts bearing upon the application or the desirability of a hearing thereon, or a request to the Commission that a hearing be held thereon. Any such communication or request should state briefly the nature of the interest of the person submitting such information or requesting a hearing, the reasons for such request, and the issues of fact or law raised by the application which he desires to controvert. Any such communication or request should be addressed: Secretary, Securities and Exchange Commission, 425 Second Street NW., Washington, D. C.

By the Commission.

Secretary.

[1] However, no director of either company is also a director of the other.

[2] Section 17 (a) (1) and (2) provide as follows:

It shall be unlawful for any affiliated person or promoter of or principal underwriter for a registered investment company (other than a company of the character described in section 12 (d) (3) (A) and (B), or any affiliated person of such a person, promoter, or principal underwriter, acting as principal—

(1) Knowingly to sell any security or other property to such registered company or to any company controlled by such registered company, unless such sale involves solely (A) securities of which the buyer is the issuer, (B) securities of which the seller is the issuer and which are part of a general offering to the holders of a class of its securities, or (C) securities deposited with the trustee of a unit investment trust or periodic payment plan by the depositor thereof;

(2) Knowingly to purchase from such registered company, or from any company controlled by such registered company, any security or other property (except securities of which the seller is the issuer);

[3] However, Aeronautical and Bullock disclaim the applicability of section 17 (a) of the act to the proposed transaction.

PART 8—PROMOTION, DEMOTION, AND REASSIGNMENT AND MOVEMENT OF EMPLOYEES BETWEEN AGENCIES WITH REEMPLOYMENT RIGHTS

REEMPLOYMENT RIGHTS

Effective March 1, 1951, §§ 8.114 and 8.115 are amended to read as follows:

§ 8.114 Granting of reemployment rights in the interest of the defense program. (a) Any permanent employee of a nondefense agency in the executive branch shall be granted reemployment rights upon indefinite appointment by a defense agency under § 8.115 (a): Provided, That the Commission may refuse to authorize reemployment rights whenever it determines, upon appeal by the nondefense agency, that such employee is engaged in an activity essential to the public welfare and that the loss of his services would jeopardize such activity. Whenever the defense agency in which he is employed determines that the employment in another defense agency of one of its permanent employees will be in the interest of the defense program it shall agree to his indefinite appointment in the other agency with reemployment rights: Provided, That if the agency in which he is employed fails to agree to such indefinite appointment with reemployment rights, the agency desiring his services may appeal to the Commission and final decision as to whether the employee shall be granted reemployment rights shall then be made by the Commission.

(b) A permanent employee who has been granted reemployment rights for indefinite appointment in his present agency shall be eligible for further indefinite appointment with retention of reemployment rights in the original agency. A permanent employee who has received a notice of involuntary separation because of reduction in force or otherwise, or who has already submitted a resignation, shall not be granted reemployment rights upon indefinite appointment by a defense agency. The granting of reemployment rights shall be subject to standards issued by the Commission.

(c) Any employee granted reemployment rights who is subsequently involuntarily separated, without cause such as would reflect on his suitability for reemployment, shall be reemployed, with the status of a permanent employee, within thirty days of his application, by the original agency in which he was granted reemployment rights in the occupational field and at the same grade or level and in the same geographical area as the position which he last held on a permanent basis: Provided, That if his reemployment would cause the separation or demotion of another employee he shall then be considered an employee for the purpose of applying Retention Preference Regulations to determine what if any position he is entitled to: Provided further, That upon reemployment in the Postal Service he shall be given the seniority he would have attained had he remained in the Postal Service. In order to be entitled to reemployment rights the employee must make application for reemployment within 40 days after his separation.

§ 8.115 Appointment of employees with reemployment rights. (a) The Commission hereby delegates authority to agencies to give indefinite appointments to employees with reemployment rights provided the standards of the Commission are met and the promotion restrictions of § 8.109 are observed.

(b) The Commission may disapprove any such indefinite appointment or suspend or withdraw this authority whenever, after post-audit, it finds that the regulations in this section have not been followed.

(c) Persons appointed under this section shall not be required to serve a trial period. However, the appointments of such persons who have not completed the probationary period shall be subject to completion of such period.

(d) Persons serving under such appointments are eligible for within-grade salary steps in the same manner as provided in § 2.115 (c) of this chapter.

(184) The frequency 75 Mc is designated for aeronautical marker beacons. In Region 1, the guardband is ±0.2 Mc; in Regions 2 and 3, ±0.4 Mc.

US4 The use of the frequency 75 Mc by aeronautical marker beacons is temporary and may be authorized until they are moved to a frequency band allocated for the aeronautical radionavigation service, or until they are no longer required. (See notes 216 and US12).

NG1 On the condition that harmful interference will not be caused to services operating in accordance with the table of frequency allocations, the following classes of stations may be authorized to use frequencies in this band: (1) Experimental stations engaged solely in scientific or technical radio experiments not related to an existing or proposed service nor intended to develop a proposed service or specific use of radio; (2) contract developmental stations; and (3) export developmental stations.

NG3 Operational fixed stations may be authorized to use frequencies in this band in accordance with columns 10 and 11 of the table of frequency allocations, on the condition that harmful interference will not be caused to the reception of television stations on channels 4 or 5. In any area in the continental United States, the Aviation service and Marine service may each be authorized to use four of the frequencies in the band 72–76 Mc listed in column 10 for operational fixed stations in these services.

NG5 Fixed stations in the Domestic Fixed Public service may be authorized to use any of the frequencies in the band 72–76 Mc indicated in column 10, on the conditions that (a) harmful interference will not be caused to the reception of television stations on channels 4 or 5, and (b) that harmful interference will not be caused to operational fixed stations.

(198) The frequency 156.80 Mc is designated for world-wide use for safety, calling and intership and harbor control communications in the maritime mobile service (simplex telephony). Any other use of this frequency should be avoided in areas where such other use is liable to cause harmful interference to the maritime mobile service. The interested administrations will ensure, by special arrangements where necessary, that an adequate guard-band is provided. In Region 2, its use for this purpose will be restricted to the frequency modulated type of transmission (F3) and it is strongly recommended that the same type of transmission be adopted for this purpose in Regions 1 and 3.

US20 In order to provide for inter-communication for safety purposes between government and non-government stations in the maritime mobile service, the frequencies 157.2 and 157.3 Mc are allocated exclusively in all areas, to government stations in the fixed and mobile services, and the frequencies 173.225, 173.275, 173.325, 173.375 Mc are allocated exclusively, in all areas, to non-government stations in the fixed and land mobile services.

§ 2.202 Bandwidths — (a) Necessary bandwidths. The necessary bandwidth is the width of the frequency band which is necessary in the over-all system, including both transmitter and receiver, for the proper reproduction at the receiver of the desired information, and does not necessarily indicate the interfering characteristics of an emission. For the determination of this necessary bandwidth, the following table may be considered as a guide. In the formulation of the table, the following working terms have been employed:

B = Telegraph speed in bauds.

$\frac{N}{T}$ = Maximum possible number of black plus white elements to be transmitted per second, in facsimile television.

M = Maximum modulation frequency expressed in cycles per second.

D = Half the difference between the maximum and minimum values of the instantaneous frequencies; D being greater than $2M$, greater than $\frac{N}{T}$ or greater than B, as the case may be. Instantaneous frequency is the rate of change of phase.

t = Pulse length expressed in seconds.

K = An over-all numerical factor which differs according to the emission and depends upon the allowable signal distortion and, in television, the time lost from the inclusion of a synchronizing signal.

(b) Table of necessary bandwidths.

I. AMPLITUDE MODULATION

Description and class of emission	Necessary bandwidth in cycles per second	Examples: Details	Examples: Designation of emission
Continuous wave telegraphy: A1.	BK $K=5$ for fading circuits. $K=3$ for non-fading circuits.	Morse code at 25 words per minute, $B=20$, bandwidth: 100 c/s. Four channel multiplex, 7 unit code, 60 words per minute per channel, $B=170$, $K=5$, bandwith: 850 c/s.	0.1A1 0.85A1
Telegraphy modulated at audio frequency: A2.	$BK+2M$ $K=5$ for fading circuits. $K=3$ for non-fading circuits.	Morse code at 25 words per minute with 1,000-cycle tone, $B=20$, bandwidth: 2,100 c/s.	2.1A2

Diameter of cylinder = 70 mm. Number of lines per mm = 3.77 Speed of rotation 1 turn per second. Frequency of modulation = 1,800 c/s. Bandwidth: 3,600+1,242 = 4,842 c/s.	4.84A4
Television: A5	$\frac{KN}{T}$ $K=1.5$ (this allows for synchronization and filter shaping). NOTE: This band can be appropriately reduced when asymmetrical transmission is employed.	The total number of picture elements (black and white) transmitted per second = the number of lines forming each image × number of elements per line × number of pictures transmitted per second. Number of lines = 500. Number of elements per line = 500. Number of pictures per second = 25. Bandwidth: approximately 9 Mc/s.	9.000A5

II. FREQUENCY MODULATION

Frequency-shift telegraphy: F1.	$BK+2D$ $K=5$ for fading circuits. $K=3$ for non-fading circuits.	Four-channel multiplex with 7-unit code, 60 words per minute per channel: $B=170$. $K=5$. $D=425$. Bandwidth: 1,700 c/s.	1.7F1
Commercial telephony and broadcasting: F3.	$2M+2DK$ For commercial telephony, $K=1$. For high-fidelity transmission higher values of K may be necessary.	For an average case of commercial telephony with: $D=15,000$. $M=3,000$. Bandwidth: 36,000 c/s.	36F3
Facsimile: F4.	$\frac{KN}{T}+2M+2D$ $K=1.5$	(See facsimile, amplitude modulation). Cylinder diameter = 70 mm. Lines per mm = 3.77. Cylinder speed = 1 r. p. s. Modulation tone = 1,800 c/s. $D=10,000$ c/s. Bandwidth: 25,000 c/s (approximately).	25F4

III. PULSED EMISSIONS

Unmodulated pulse: P0	$2\frac{K}{t}$ K varies from 1 to 10 according to the permissible deviation in each particular case from a rectangular pulse shape. In many cases the value of K does not need to exceed 6.	$t=3\times10^{-4}$ $K=6$ Bandwidth: 4×10^{4} c/s.	4.000P0
Modulated pulse: P2 or P3	The bandwidth depends upon the particular types of modulation used, many of these being still in the development stage.

SUBPART E—DISTRESS, DISASTER AND EMERGENCY COMMUNICATIONS

§ 2.401 Distress messages. Each station licensee shall give absolute priority to radiocommunications or signals relating to ships or aircraft in distress; shall cease all sending on frequencies which will interfere with hearing a radiocommunication or signal of distress and except when engaged in answering or aiding the ship or aircraft in distress, shall refrain from sending any radiocommunications or signals until there is assurance that no interference will be caused with the radiocommunications or signals relating thereto; and shall assist the ship or aircraft in distress, so far as possible, by complying with its instructions.

§ 2.402 Control of distress traffic. The control of distress traffic is the responsibility of the mobile station in distress or of the mobile station which, by the application of the provisions of § 2.403, has sent the distress call. These stations may, however, delegate the control of the distress traffic to another station.

§ 2.403 Retransmission of distress message. Any station which becomes aware that a mobile station is in distress may transmit the distress message in the following cases:

(a) When the station in distress is not itself in a position to transmit the message.

(b) In the case of mobile stations, when the master or the person in charge of the ship, aircraft, or other vehicles carrying the station which intervenes believes that further help is necessary.

(c) In the case of other stations, when directed to do so by the station in control of distress traffic or when it has reason to believe that a distress call which it has intercepted has not been received by any station in a position to render aid.

§ 2.404 Resumption of operation after distress. No station having been notified to cease operation shall resume operation on frequency or frequencies which may cause interference until notified by the station issuing the original notice that the station involved will not interfere with distress traffic as it is then being routed or until the receipt of a general notice that the need for handling distress traffic no longer exists.

§ 2.405 Operation during emergency. The licensee of any station, except amateur, may, during a period of emergency in which normal communication facilities are disrupted as a result of hurricane, flood, earthquake, or similar disaster, utilize such station for emergency communication service in communicating in a manner other than that specified in the instrument of authorization; Provided: (a) That as soon as possible after the beginning of such emergency use, notice be sent to the Commission at Washington, D. C., and to the Engineer in Charge of the district in which the station is located, stating the nature of the emergency and the use to which the station is being put, and (b) That the emergency use of the station shall be discontinued as soon as substantially normal communication facilities

Chapter II—Federal Reserve System

[Reg. D]

PART 204—RESERVES OF MEMBER BANKS

CLASSIFICATION OF RESERVE CITIES

1. Effective March 1, 1951, § 204.52 is amended to read as follows:

§ 204.52 Classification of reserve cities. Acting in accordance with § 204.51, and pursuant to authority conferred upon it by section 11 (e) of the Federal Reserve Act and other provisions of that act, the Board of Governors has taken the following actions for the continuance of the classification of certain cities as reserve cities and the termination of the reserve city designations of certain other cities, all such actions to become effective March 1, 1951:

(a) The City of Washington, D. C., and every city except New York and Chicago in which there is situated a Federal Reserve Bank or a branch of a Federal Reserve Bank are hereby continued as reserve cities.

(b) On the basis of official call reports of condition in the two-year period ending on June 30, 1950, the following cities met the standard prescribed in § 204.51 (b) (2), and, therefore, such cities, in addition to the reserve cities classified as such under paragraph (a) of this section, are hereby continued as reserve cities:

Columbus, Ohio; Des Moines, Iowa; Indianapolis, Indiana; Milwaukee, Wisconsin; National City (National Stock Yards), Illinois; St. Paul, Minnesota; Tulsa, Oklahoma; Wichita, Kansas; and Fort Worth, Texas.

(c) On the basis of official call reports of condition in the two-year period ending June 30, 1950, the following cities did not meet the standard prescribed in § 204.51 (b) (2), but a written request for the continuance of each such city as a reserve city was received by the Federal Reserve Bank of the district in which the city is located on or before February 15, 1951, from every member bank having its head office or a branch in such city (exclusive of any member bank in an outlying district in such city permitted by the Board to maintain reduced reserves), together with a certified copy of a resolution of the board of directors of such member bank duly authorizing such request; and, accordingly, in accordance with § 204.51 (b) (3), the following cities, in addition to the reserve cities classified as such under paragraphs (a) and (b) of this section, are hereby continued as reserve cities:

Toledo, Ohio; Cedar Rapids, Iowa; Dubuque, Iowa; Sioux City, Iowa; Kansas City, Kansas; Lincoln, Nebraska; Pueblo, Colorado; St. Joseph, Missouri; and Topeka, Kansas.

(d) On the basis of official call reports of condition in the two-year period ending June 30, 1950, the following cities did not meet the standard prescribed in § 204.51 (b) (2), and, consequently, the designation of such cities as reserve cities is hereby terminated:

Peoria, Illinois; Galveston, Texas; and Waco, Texas.

2. The notice and public procedure described in sections 4 (a) and 4 (b) of the Administrative Procedure Act and the prior publication described in section 4 (c) of such act are impracticable, unnecessary and contrary to the public interest in connection with this action for the reasons and good cause found as stated in § 262.2 (e) of the Board's rules of procedure (Part 262), and especially because such notice, procedure and prior publication would serve no useful purpose.

TITLE 32A—NATIONAL DEFENSE, APPENDIX

[Ceiling Price Regulation 7]

CPR 7—RETAIL CEILING PRICES FOR CERTAIN CONSUMER GOODS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Ceiling Price Regulation 7 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

The General Ceiling Price Regulation was issued on January 26, 1951, essentially as a "stop-gap" measure, in order to bring under immediate control the prices of most goods and services at all levels of production and distribution. At the time of its issuance, it was recognized that its provisions were not well-suited to all classes of trade or business, and that it would have to be replaced by other regulations, tailored to meet the needs of individual commodities or levels of production or distribution. This regulation constitutes the first such replacement, on a major scale, of the General Ceiling Price Regulation. It provides a different type of price control for a large segment of retail trade, covering a substantial share of the sales of department, apparel, furniture, mail order, and general merchandise stores. The commodities included were covered, under World War II price control, by Maximum Price Regulations 208, 330, 339, 580 and a few were governed by the General Maximum Price Regulation.

It hardly needs to be emphasized that adequate price control at the retail level is of the utmost importance. It is here that the ultimate consumer actually feels the effects of inflation or, alternatively, of price stabilization. Not only are the prices charged at retail the prices paid by the ultimate consumer, but the mark-up obtained by the retailer constitutes a very significant part of the price which the consumer pays. Retail mark-ups in the aggregate amount to perhaps 40 billions of dollars per annum.

It is, therefore, of the utmost importance that price regulations covering retail sales be clear, enforceable, and effective. This is important, not only to consumers, but to retailers. It is estimated that as many as 200,000 firms are engaged in the sale at retail of commodities covered by this Regulation. Although many of these are large firms, able to devote specialized personnel to the task of understanding, interpreting, and applying ceiling price regulations, most firms are small, and need a type of price control that is clear, simple, unambiguous, and suited to the maximum possible extent to their particular ways of doing business. Even for the large firm, it is, of course, desirable that the regulations be as understandable and simple as possible. It is more important that retail price control be understandable, unambiguous, and enforceable than that it be, on paper, "tight." A regulation that is, in theory, rigorously effective in preventing price increases, but which cannot be understood, interpreted, and enforced is not good price control, and will, in fact, prove inflationary.

It was the clear experience of the Office of Price Administration during World War II, and it is the unanimous judgment of experts in the field of retailing, that a freeze type of regulation, such as that employed in the General Ceiling Price Regulation, is not well adapted to the conditions prevailing in certain branches of retail trade. Theoretically, such a regulation maintains, not the retailers' markup, but, even in the face of rising costs, the absolute level of retail prices. However, freeze regulations provide effective control only where the goods which the seller handles are standardized, and continue to be the same specific items as those which he handled in the base period of the freeze regulation. Retailers, on the other hand, deal in a vast assortment of constantly changing items. Although some items which were sold in the base period will continue to be sold, numerous new brands, varieties, models, or types of goods, or goods from new sources of supply, continually appear on the retailer's shelves. Under any freeze-type regulation, these new commodities must be priced by what is in essence a markup method. Inasmuch as a large part of retail sales will be of this character, the interests of effective price control will be served, for important classes of goods and segments of the retail industry by removing them from the scope of the general freeze order and placing them, instead under markup regulations carefully tailored to meet the needs of the retail trade.

If a margin type of regulation is to be used in pricing retail sales, the simplest form of such control would be a regulation which specifically named, by categories of goods, the percentage mark-ups which sellers might employ. This method has the advantage of extreme simplicity, clarity, and enforceability. In some fields of retail trade, it can be effectively and equitably employed.

It is abundantly clear, however, that this method would either be inequitable or at least presently impracticable as applied to the commodities covered by this regulation. All data on retail mark-ups for department stores, apparel stores, variety stores, and home furnishing stores testify to the wide diversity of mark-up practices, on the same kinds of goods, among different stores. This diversity of mark-ups reflects differences in services supplied, differences in credit terms, differences in the character of the retail outlet with respect to spaciousness, elegance of display, other amenities, store location, character of the clientele, and so forth. In addition, purely geographic differences in mark-up practices seem to prevail between different parts of the country. It is the Director's conclusion that for the kinds of stores operating under this regulation, it is presently impossible to devise classifications of stores, with different specified margins for each, which would adequately reflect these traditional, and often necessary, differences in mark-up practices. Furthermore, the provision of specified mark-ups would require the assembly of vast quantities of data and would place a heavy burden of proof upon the Director to justify the particular mark-ups so selected.

The mark-up method of pricing used in this regulation is the "pricing chart" method. In essence this regulation is comparable to the Office of Price Administration's Maximum Price Regulation 580. MPR 580 was a regulation which was developed by the Office of Price Administration out of a long experience with various types of retail price control, and after long and frequent consultation with numerous trade groups. Issued in March 1945, it continued in use until the end of World War II price control. Certain deficiencies in the regulation as originally issued, which developed out of experience under its operation, were corrected by subsequent amendments. On the whole, however, it was generally agreed both by price control officials and by those affected by the regulation, that MPR 580 was one of the most successful regulations issued by the World War II price control agency. The reinstatement of this technique of control has been strongly urged upon the Director by numerous trade groups, and by outstanding individual leaders of the retailing industry.

In essence, the pricing chart method allows each retailer to use mark-ups based upon his own previous experience, as reflected by the prices of the goods in his store on one single day in relation to the costs of those goods. Although on any one day, not all of the goods that he customarily handles will be on his shelves, one day's assortment of goods constitutes an excellent sample of his customary business. Since the technique of this Regulation is to employ mark-ups based on the practices of retailers, the day selected ideally, should have been no later than, say, June 24, 1950. However, most retailers will have no records on the basis of which to reconstruct their mark-up experience at any date at all remote from the present. To be sure, retailers on the so-called "retail system" of accounting, and a few who are not, could establish their past mark-up practice from a sample of invoices received during an earlier period. Although such retailers handle the greater part of the total dollar volume of business, they constitute a very small fraction of the total number of firms. For the greatest number of firms, only an inventory of goods now on their shelves can be used. Hence, the base date, called in the regulation "list date," must be a day shortly before its issuance.

Only a brief summary of the provisions of the regulation is required here. The retailer is required to prepare a "Pricing Chart," which shows, for each of a large number of specified categories of goods, each of the different invoice costs to him of goods in that category offered for sale by him on February 24, 1951, the "list date." Opposite each net cost, he enters the price at which goods having that cost were offered for sale. Where goods having the same cost were offered at more than one price, he circles that offering price which yields a percentage mark-up closest to the average percentage mark-up for the entire category of goods, and thereafter uses only the circled price. (This average percentage mark-up is a simple unweighted average computed from the total of all of the cost entries and the total of all of the offering prices shown in his pricing chart.) One copy of this pricing chart is filed with the seller's District OPS office, and another is retained by him to use in establishing ceiling prices for goods sold, after the effective date of this Regulation.

There are four special instructions for the preparation of pricing charts that help make it reflect "normal" mark-ups instead of the ocassionally fortuitous mark-ups reflected by the actual experience of the list date. It is known that some retailers, contrary to the request of Stabilization Officials on December 19, 1950, had priced goods, not on the basis of actual cost, but on the basis of replacement cost. If a seller had raised his price on goods already on the shelf, in anticipation of higher replacement costs, he is required to use his first offering price for such goods rather than his list date price. If he initially marked his goods on the basis of anticipated replacement cost, he is required to list offering prices that reflect his normal mark-up over cost.

These rules operate to reduce an abnormally high mark-up that might have prevailed on the list date. On the other hand, in a few instances, offering prices on the list date would have been reduced below typical mark-ups for special "sales" or for "clearance." Rather than to perpetuate such abnormal mark-ups, the Regulation permits the seller to use his initial offering prices for such goods instead of the offering prices on the list date. A final provision designed to restore a typical mark-up is that which permits a seller who received goods after January 1, 1951, at a higher cost than that of his last invoice previous to this, and who, therefore, was caught in a "squeeze" by the provisions of the General Ceiling Price Regulation, to use his next to last invoice in preparing his pricing chart.

Under the terms of this Regulation, the seller finds ceiling prices for goods in the following manner. When he receives a commodity which has the same net cost as one which appears on his pricing chart for that category of goods, his ceiling price is the offering price shown on his pricing chart opposite that cost. When he receives an item the cost of which does not appear on his pricing chart, but falls between two costs which do appear on his pricing chart, he obtains his ceiling price by using the percentage mark-up on the next-lower cost shown on his pricing chart, or his average percentage mark-up for the category, whichever is lower. If a commodity has a cost higher than any shown on his pricing chart, his ceiling price is obtained by using the average percentage mark-up for the two highest-cost entries on his chart, or the average percentage mark-up for the entire category, whichever is lower. Where the cost is lower than any shown on the pricing chart, he uses the average percentage mark-up for the two lowest-cost entries on his chart for that category. These simple pricing rules will provide, for the average retailer, ceiling prices for the great bulk of all of his sales under this regulation.

The remaining pricing rules can be summarized quickly. If a seller begins to handle new categories of merchandise not covered by his pricing chart, he is provided with methods for securing mark-ups on such new categories in line with his own mark-up experience in related categories. Two methods are employed to achieve this end. For each category a list of comparable categories is provided. These comparable categories are categories which trade data indicate typically carry mark-ups very similar to mark-ups in the new category. If the seller did not handle any of these comparable categories, a table is provided which allows him to find a category mark-up "in line" with the mark-ups he has received in other categories. Supplementary Regulation 2 issued concurrently herewith, includes a special rule for the treatment of freight in certain specified categories of furniture.

Some 167 categories are specified in the Regulation. These categories group together individual items which, in the great majority of stores, are merchandized together and carry similar mark-up patterns.

The special case of a new seller, or of a seller who cannot price under any of the regular pricing rules summarized above, is handled by an appendix table which sets forth for each category a specific percentage mark-up to be used. Although the method of uniform specific percentage mark-ups cannot equitably be applied to stores already in business, which had developed, in a free market, divergent mark-up practices based upon their own particular circumstances, no such limitation exists for new sellers. To be sure, sellers going into business after the effective date of the regulation may plan to engage in essentially different modes of retailing. Obviously, it cannot be left to the individual seller to decide that his business will be of the type that carries the highest mark-ups. Otherwise, there would be a strong incentive for sellers with low mark-ups to go out of business, and reopen, nominally, as luxury establishments with much higher mark-ups. The table which provides the mark-ups for new sellers specifies mark-ups which are at or slightly below the average of mark-ups for stores in general. The mark-ups specified, for the categories which were covered by MPR 580, are, with minor revisions, the mark-ups used in that regulation. These mark-ups were based upon a representative sample of pricing charts filed under MPR 580, and, as indicated, were at or slightly below the average of the sample. Data available to the Director indicate that mark-ups in the period immediately prior to the Korean outbreak were, for the average store, practically unchanged from the mark-ups which prevailed in 1945 and 1946, when MPR 580 was in force. Consequently, the further use of these mark-ups is justified. For categories covered by the present regulation which were not included in MPR 580, the Director has used available trade data to provide mark-ups for these categories which are in line with the mark-ups provided in the MPR 580 table.

Under certain circumstances, however, new sellers, with previous experience at high mark-ups, may apply for permission to use higher mark-ups than those in the table. Such permission is, however, limited in its application.

Special provisions are made to adapt the regulation to the practices of chain stores, mail order establishments and certain other sellers. For the most part these provisions appear in Supplementary Regulation 1, which is issued concurrently herewith. They permit chains that historically priced certain categories centrally and uniformly to continue this practice through the use of a master chart. They also cover the operations of chains that did not price uniformly for all units, but added to invoice cost a handling or loading charge in forwarding statements to their stores. Provision is made for the establishment, on application to the National Office of Price Stabilization, of special pricing rules for chains or mail-order establishments which find the provisions of the regulation inapplicable to their methods of doing business. Supplementary Regulation 2 affords sellers alternative methods of preparing list date pricing charts and pricing in certain cases.

Special provisions are also made which allow the perpetuation of the practice of some manufacturers of specifying uniform resale prices for their branded products. Machinery is provided whereby the Director can review these resale prices for such products to make sure that the margins are in line with ceiling prices established under this regulation. It will be required that such resale prices be pre-ticketed by the manufacturer at the retail ceiling price.

The record-keeping and reporting requirements of this regulation are important to its success. In addition to the preservation of the records on which the pricing chart was based, and records of current operations under the regulation, there are several provisions designed to aid in enforcement, and to provide the Director with data by which the effects of the regulation can be studied. One provision particularly worthy of comment is that which requires sellers to preserve data on initial percentage mark-ups, by departments of their business, for the four quarters immediately prior to the Korean attack, and to keep current quarterly records on the same basis. In any quarter in which a seller's initial mark-up for any department exceeds that for the corresponding quarter of the pre-Korean period, he is required to report this excess. These provisions apply only to sellers who have customarily kept such records who constitute a very small percentage of the stores, but the great bulk of the business). For stores not having such records, gross margin data must be preserved, and increased gross margins reported in the same way as described above.

The purposes of this requirement are twofold. In the first place, such reports will indicate to the Director the extent to which this regulation has failed in its basic objective of establishing typical pre-Korean mark-up practices at retail, and whether revisions of pricing charts, either for individual sellers, or groups of sellers, will be required to fulfill this objective. In the second place, it calls to the attention of each individual seller his own responsibility for price stabilization, which, as a minimum, requires him to refrain from obtaining mark-ups higher on the average than those experienced prior to the present emergency; and it gives him a standard by which he can test the extent to which he has met this responsibility.

If prices charged to retailers should be reduced through the effect of other regulations issued by the Office of Price Stabilization, retail prices will reflect this reduction. If price increases are granted to manufacturers, this regulation would, if no other action were taken, allow these price increases to be passed along to the consumers. However, there exists, with this form of price control, a method whereby retailers may be required to absorb all or any part of an authorized increase in manufacturers' prices. Cost absorption of this character was achieved under OPA's MPR 580.

It should be noted, parenthetically, that any increase in the unit overhead costs of retailers will be absorbed by retail sellers under this regulation. Actually, there is little reason to suppose that in the period immediately ahead, the unit overhead costs of retailers will rise. On the contrary, a continued high level of sales, a market in which mark-downs will be less important, and in which some services may have to be reduced, are more likely to assure a reduction in the ratio of operating expenses to sales.

The level of ceiling margins under this Regulation is, of course, based upon the margins in existence on the list date. The Regulation contains certain provisions for reducing margins inflated by the retailer over his customary margins, and for increasing margins squeezed below the retailer's customary margins. After charts are established under the Regulation, and in the course of actual administration and experience under the Regulation, appropriate adjustments of retailers' margins can be made, both up and down. Reports under the Regulation will enable the Office of Price Stabilization to compare the effect of margins established by the Regulation with margins in the pre-Korea period.

In the preparation of this regulation, frequent and extensive conferences were held with representative groups of retail sellers, including representatives of trade associations. However, due to the shortness of time, and the necessity for prompt action, it was not practicable for the Director to establish and consult with a formal retail advisory committee.

In the judgment of the Director of Price Stabilization, the ceiling prices established by this regulation are generally fair and equitable and are necessary to effectuate the purposes of Title IV of the Defense Production Act of 1950.

INTRODUCTION

This regulation fixes ceiling prices for sales by retailers of a wide range of commodities. The pricing chart method of determining applicable mark-ups or margins is used. Retailers are required to file with the Office of Price Stabilization (hereafter referred to as OPS) a "list date pricing chart" and to fix their ceiling prices by using this chart. (Sample charts are shown in Appendix "A.") The list date under this regulation is February 24, 1951.

Article I tells you the scope of this regulation.

Article II tells you how to prepare your charts.

Article III sets forth the rules for computing ceiling prices by reference to your charts. It also tells you how to fix your ceiling prices if you cannot use the pricing rules.

Article IV prescribes rules for pricing in specia' cases (for example, up-stream and cross stream sales, transfers of business, sales of branded articles, etc.).

Article V contains general provisions such as record-keeping requirements, marking or posting ceiling prices, how to treat taxes, sales slips, prohibitions, etc.

Article I—Scope of Regulation

SECTION 1. What commodities are covered. This regulation applies only to sales at retail of the articles listed in Appendix B. This includes a wide variety of consumer goods. They are grouped into categories and each category is given a category number. For example, men's and boys' underwear and nightwear constitute category 116. From time to time articles not listed may be added by amendments to this regulation.

This regulation supersedes the General Ceiling Price Regulation for all articles listed in Appendix B. It does not apply, however: (1) to such articles listed in Appendix B for which ceiling prices for sales at retail are hereafter established by other regulations; nor (2) to any article for which sales at retail are hereafter exempted or suspended from price control by this or any other regulation; nor (3) to any imported article if it is sold by the one who imports it; nor (4) to antiques (any article made prior to 1850).

SEC. 2. What sales are covered. This regulation applies to sales at retail. It applies to all sales to ultimate consumers of all kinds (including individual, commercial, and industrial users [1]) of articles which are "bought and sold in substantially the same form." (See definition in section 59.) It applies to sales to persons other than ultimate consumers (such as other retailers and wholesalers) if those sales customarily amount to less than 10 per cent of the retailer's total sales of articles covered by this regulation and the retailer's ceiling prices for those sales are fixed by Section 40.

SEC. 3. What sellers are covered. (a) This regulation applies to any seller whose sales of articles covered by this regulation to individual ultimate consumers constitute more than 10 percent of the merchandise covered by this regulation which he buys and sells in substantially the same form. If, however, your annual net dollar volume of total sales in all your departments taken together, to individual ultimate consumers of all the articles covered by this regulation amounts to less than $20,000.00 or if all of your sales to individual ultimate consumers are "accommodation sales" (see definition in section 59) you may elect to continue to fix your ceiling prices under the General Ceiling Price Regulation. You may not subsequently alter your election.

[1] Examples of ultimate consumers who are not individual ultimate consumers are hospitals, schools, and clubs.

(b) When used in this regulation, the word "seller" refers to each single separate seller covered by this regulation. If a seller makes sales at retail through more than one selling unit or department each selling unit or department is considered to be a separate seller, subject to all the provisions of this regulation. A person who sells through salesmen making sales at uniform prices is a single seller. All of the selling outlets of a chain which are included in one group, zone, class, or area which, under the provisions of Supplementary Regulation 1 to this regulation, are permitted to and do determine uniform prices centrally for certain articles, are as to those articles considered a single seller. The outlets of a chain which are included in one group, zone, class, or area to which the chain regularly sent invoices or statements showing the same selling prices for articles (and not showing costs) also constitute a single separate seller for the purpose of this regulation.

(c) Notwithstanding any other provisions of this regulation any seller at retail of an article for which a ceiling price has been established under section 43 (Uniform dollar and cents prices for certain articles) of this regulation or for which a ceiling price is established under a Supplementary Regulation to this regulation shall be permitted to sell the article at the price so established.

SEC. 4. Where this regulation applies. This regulation shall be applicable in the forty-eight states and the District of Columbia.

SEC. 5. When to begin using pricing rules. (a) You may begin to use these applicable pricing rules after you receive the acknowledgment of the filing of your chart but you must begin to use the rules not later than March 29, 1951 (unless you are a mail order establishment subject to paragraph (b) below).

(b) If you operate a mail order establishment as defined in section 59 of this regulation you are not required to observe the pricing rules of this regulation as to any mail order sales of articles covered by any of your catalogs, booklets, circulars, flyers, or other forms of printed lists which were printed before the list date. Your ceiling prices for such sales continue to be established by the General Ceiling Price Regulation for so long as the printed price lists remain in effect or until you establish a price for an article pursuant to the pricing rules of this regulation. However, you are required to observe the other requirements of this regulation and to price new articles, new catalogs, booklets, circulars, flyers or other forms of printed price lists on the basis of the pricing rules in this regulation.

Article II—Pricing Charts

SEC. 11. Filing of charts. If you are a seller subject to this regulation you must prepare two copies of a list date pricing chart. The chart must be dated and must be signed by one of your officers or owners. A chart for an outlet which is itself a separate seller under this regulation or a department in a departmentalized establishment may be signed by the store manager or department head. One copy of the chart must be kept for your use and for inspection by the Office of Price Stabilization and the other must be filed with your OPS office [2] on or before March 29, 1951.

SEC. 12. Failure to file charts. On and after March 29, 1951, you may not offer, sell, or deliver any article covered by this regulation unless you have filed the chart described above. On and after April 28, 1951, you may not offer, sell or deliver any article covered by this regulation until you have received from the OPS an acknowledgment of the filing of your chart.

SEC. 13. Contents of charts; general. Put at the top of your chart the following general information:

(a) Your business name and address;

(b) Your list date. (This is February 24, 1951, unless you were not open for business on that day. In that event your list date is the most recent day in 1951 before that day on which you were open for business and offered for sale any article covered by this regulation.)

(c) Your type of store.[3] First, state whether it is a mail order establishment, a chain outlet, or an independent retail store; and second, state whether it is a men's and boys' clothing and furnishing store, a women's clothing store, an infants' and children's wear shop, a women's specialty shop, a millinery store, a shoe store, a department in a department store, a general merchandise store, a limited price variety store, a dry goods store, a furniture store, a home furnishings store, or other type of store. (A department in a departmentalized establishment must also state its department number or name.)

(d) State which of the following brackets includes the approximate net dollar volume of your total retail sales of all commodities covered by this regulation in the calendar year 1950 or your most recent fiscal year:

Over—	Up to and including—
	$10,000
$10,000	30,000
30,000	50,000
50,000	100,000
100,000	300,000
500,000	1,000,000
1,000,000	2,000,000
2,000,000	5,000,000
5,000,000	10,000,000
10,000,000	20,000,000
20,000,000

(A department in a departmentalized establishment may omit the volume of its retail sales if the establishment files a statement of its approximate total net dollar volume of retail sales of all commodities in all departments, although each department is required to file a separate chart.)

SEC. 14. Contents of charts: related general information. This section tells what the chart must contain about the costs and offering prices of each category which you offered for sale on the list date. List the information in five (5) columns below the general information called for in the preceding section. List an article as "offered for sale on the list date" if it was in your store, unpacked, and available for sale on that date. (If you are a mail order establishment list an article as "offered for sale on the list date" if it was listed in one of your catalogs, booklets, circulars, flyers, or other printed price lists in effect on that date.)

If in the course of your business you regularly buy used or imperfect articles (including such articles when received as trade-ins) for the purpose of repairing and reconditioning them and selling them as reconditioned or repaired, in preparing your chart you shall omit every item which you repaired or reconditioned before sale. Note on the chart each category from which such items have been omitted.

If you offered for sale on the list date any article which you acquired by a transfer from another department or part of the same legal entity you must omit such article in preparing your chart.

When the phrase "you offered" is used in this regulation it means "you offered for sale on the list date." Before you begin to prepare your list date chart study the sample charts in Appendix A for the appropriate form. (The OPS will not supply chart forms.)

SEC. 15. Column 1: List of categories offered for sale. In the first column from the left, list by the number given for that category in Appendix B, each category which you offered. If you are including in a "general" category (as defined in Appendix B) any article not specifically listed for that category in Appendix B, list such article in parenthesis in column 1 immediately below the category number in which you are including it.

SEC. 16. Column 2: List of net costs. In the second column from the left, list opposite each category shown in column 1, the last "net cost" at which you bought each different article, style, model, or lot number in that category which you offered. Follow these directions for listing net costs:

(a) Find your "net cost" by deducting all discounts (including cash discounts) from the invoice cost on the last invoice you received [4] before the list date for a particular article, style, model or lot number which you have listed. In order that markups on your chart may as nearly as possible reflect your normal markups, if your last invoice was received after January 1, 1951 and your selling price on February 24, 1951 was unchanged from your initial offering price based on the next to the last invoice which you had received for that article, you may list the net cost on the next to the last invoice. Deduct discounts you could have taken whether you took them or not. No freight, handling charge, OPS adjustment charge, or other similar charge may be added.[5]

[2] Your OPS office is the district office having jurisdiction over the area in which your store is located. If, however, you are a mail order establishment or a chain governed by section 2 or 3 of Supplementary Regulation 1 your OPS office is the Distribution Price Branch, Office of Price Stabilization, Washington, 25, D. C.

[3] "Store" means a separate seller as defined in section 3(b), or the separate establishment or a department in the establishment at or from which you make sales to ultimate consumers. A mail order establishment is also called a store.

[4] If you are an outlet of a chain not included in a group of outlets for which your central office is permitted to use the same pricing chart in accordance with section 3 (b) of this regulation, you may use the invoice furnished by your central office.

[5] An alternative method for preparing charts for and pricing categories 701 to 752, which permits freight to be reflected is provided in Supplementary Regulation 2 to this regulation.

(b) List your net costs in order from the lowest to the highest.

(c) List each different net cost separately even though you bought other articles, styles, models, or lot numbers in the category for the same gross invoice cost. Thus, if you bought three different articles, styles, models, or lot numbers in a category at $3.50, 8/10 EOM,[6] $3.50, 3/10 EOM, or $3.50 net, list each of these net costs separately as $3.22, $3.40, and $3.50, respectively.

(d) List each different net cost only once in the category even though you offered more than one article, style, model, or lot number of that net cost in that category.

(e) If you offered a particular style, model, or lot number which you bought at more than one net cost, list only the net cost shown on the last invoice you received before the list date for that style, model, or lot number, unless you are permitted by paragraph (a) of this section to use an earlier invoice.

(f) List each net cost per unit. Thus, if you buy at "per dozen" prices divide the net cost per dozen by 12 and list the result as your net cost per unit. Similarly, if you buy at a price per gross or per hundred, divide your net cost per gross by 144, or per hundred by 100 to find your net unit cost.

(g) You may round your cost to the nearest cent. Thus, you may list $1.735 as $1.74 and $1.734 as $1.73.[7]

SEC. 17. Column 3: Offering prices. In the third column from the left, list opposite each net cost shown in column 2, each different price at which you offered to your most numerous class of purchaser[8] an article of that category having that net cost. Follow these directions for listing offering prices:

(a) Do not list offering prices which are higher than your ceiling price for the article on the list date. If your offering price was higher than your ceiling price on the list date you must list your ceiling price.

(b) To avoid the distortion caused by markdowns you may list as your offering price for an article either the price at which you actually offered it on the list date or the price at which you offered the article when you first offered it for sale. If you list your first offering price rather than your list date offering price, place the letter "M" after the price in this column.

(c) To avoid the distortion caused by your having re-marked an article prior to January 26, 1951, to a price greater than that at which you first offered it, you must list in column 3 the price at which you first offered it. If you list such a price you must place a letter "U" after the price in column 3.

(d) To avoid the distortion caused by your having initially marked an article since December 1, 1950, at a price greater than that at which you normally would have marked that article you must list in column 3 the price at which you normally would have marked that article (as, for example, if you had marked the article in anticipation of an increase in replacement cost). You must put the actual price at which you offered the article on the list date in parenthesis beside the net cost in column 2 and place a letter "R" after each such price listed in column 3.

(e) If your offering price includes a tax on a particular sale or delivery (such as a sales tax or a compensating use tax) which the law permits you to state separately from the price, you must deduct the full amount of such tax included in your offering price before you list it. You need not deduct from your offering price any tax which you stated separately from and in addition to your offering price.

(f) You will find that in some cases you have listed more than one offering price opposite a single net cost in a particular category. You must draw a circle around one of these prices; section 19 tells you which offering price to circle. To select your circled price you first have to find your average percentage markup for the category. Section 18 explains how to find a category average percentage markup.

SEC. 18. Category average percentage markup. Compute your average percentage markup for a category as follows:

Step 1. Add together all the net costs listed for that category in column 2. To find the correct average, you must, of course, add together an equal number of costs and offering prices. Therefore, just for purposes of this step (you should use a separate work sheet), you must add in each net cost as many times as you have listed different offering prices opposite it;

Step 2. Add together all the offering prices listed in column 3 for that category;

Step 3. Substract the total of the net costs found in Step 1 from the total of the offering prices found in Step 2;

Step 4. Divide the remainder found in Step 3 by the total of the net costs found in Step 1. The result is your average percentage markup on cost.[9] When you have found your average percentage markup for a category, enter it in column 1 for that category.

Example: The way to compute average percentage markup for men's and boys' shirts, category 117, may be illustrated as follows:

Total the net costs	Total the offering prices
$1.21	$1.98
1.25	1.98
1.38	2.25
(1.38)	2.50
1.82	2.98
1.94	3.50
3.64	5.95
(3.64)	6.95
5.34	7.95
(5.34)	8.95
26.94	44.99

(Note that the costs in parentheses appear only on your work sheet. They do not appear on your chart.)

Subtract the total of the net costs from the total of the offering prices ($44.99—$26.94=$18.05). Divide the remainder, $18.05 by the total of the costs, $26.94 ($18.05÷$26.94=67%). The result, 67 percent, is the average percentage markup on cost for category 117. Enter 67% in column 1.

SEC. 19. Circled price. Where you have listed more than one offering price opposite a single net cost in a particular category, you must draw a circle around the offering price which comes closest to reflecting the average percentage markup for the category. If the price you get is midway between two offering prices, draw a circle around the lower of the two.

Example. You have listed offering prices of $2.88, $3.00 and $3.25 for a net cost of $2.00 in category 202, and your average percentage markup for category 202 is 52%. To apply this rule multiply $2.00 by 52% ($2.00×0.52=$1.04) and add $2.00 to the result ($2.00+$1.04=$3.04) resulting in a price of $3.04. When you look at the three offering prices which you have listed for a $2.00 net cost, you find that the offering price closest to $3.04 is $3.00. Therefore, $3.00 is the "circled" price.

If your average percentage markup had been 47% you would have found a price of $2.94 ($2.00×0.47=$0.94; $2.00+$0.94=$2.94). Since $2.94 is midway between your listed offering prices of $2.88 and $3.00, you would have selected the lower of the two, and $2.88 would have been your circled price.

SEC. 20. Column 4: Percentage markups. In the fourth column from the left, list the percentage markup for each different net cost listed in column 2. If more than one offering price is listed opposite the same net cost in a category, you list the percentage markup for the circled price only. To figure a percentage markup, subtract the net cost listed in column 2 from the offering price listed opposite it in column 3, and divide the difference by the net cost. Round the result to one decimal place. For example, you should list 53.72 percent as 53.7 percent and 53.75 percent as 53.8 percent.

Example. If you have listed a net cost of $3.22 and an offering price of $4.95, you subtract $3.22 from $4.95 ($4.95—$3.22=$1.73) and divide the difference, $1.73, by the net cost, $3.22 ($1.73÷$3.22=0.53773). Your percentage markup over cost for your $3.22 net cost is, therefore, 53.8%. Enter 53.8% in Column 4 opposite the $3.22 net cost.

SEC. 21. Column 5: List of invoices—(a) What invoices must be listed. In the fifth column from the left, list one invoice for every offering price shown in column 3. The invoice you list must cover your purchase at the corresponding net cost listed in column 2 for an article of that category which you offered at that price. If pursuant to section 16 (a) you have listed in column 1 a net cost from an invoice other than the last invoice you got before the list date, you must place a letter "E" beside the invoice listed in column 5.

[6] "8 10 EOM" means 8 percent discount if paid within 10 days after the end of the month.

[7] You may, if you wish, list your gross invoice cost per dozen, per gross, or per hundred, and your purchase discounts, in parenthesis, following the net unit cost. Thus, you might list $1.29 ($16.00, 3/10 EOM per doz.).

[8] This will be the class containing the greatest number of purchasers. If you have more than one class of purchaser, use a footnote to show the class of purchaser used in preparing your chart. Section 30 provides that other classes of purchasers must get their customary differentials.

[9] You may, if you wish, figure your percentage markups as "margins on selling price" instead of on your net cost, but you must use the same method of figuring all percentage margins and average percentage margins. If you have chosen to list margins on selling price, you must state this on your chart, and must use margins on offerings (or selling) price wherever this regulation refers to a markup over net cost.

(b) How to list an invoice. State your supplier's name and the date and number of the invoice. In parenthesis following the listing of the invoice you must identify the article the purchase of which at the cost shown in column 2 is covered by the invoice. (An alternative method of listing invoices is provided in Supplementary Regulation 2 to this regulation.)

(c) Inspection of invoices. On request you must supply for examination to the OPS or its agent any invoice which you have listed in column 5.

SEC. 22. Amendment of charts—(a) Amendment by seller. If you find that you have filed an incorrect chart you must file an amendment to your chart with the OPS office where you filed your original chart and you must attach to the amendment a statement explaining why the changes conform your chart to the requirements of the regulation.

Example. If you wish to amend an inaccurate offering price listed on your original chart, you must also recompute your average percentage markup for that category, and reexamine your circled prices for that category to see if the new category average percentage markup requires a change in any of them. If changes are required, the amendment to your chart must show all the corrections which were necessary.

You may not use the amendment to your chart in fixing ceiling prices until you have received acknowledgment from your OPS office of receipt of the amendment.

(b) Amendment by Office of Price Stabilization. The OPS may at any time issue an order amending your chart to bring your mark-ups into line with mark-ups established by this regulation for sellers of the same class. Also, upon examination of your chart and any amendment thereto if the records necessary to substantiate information appearing on your chart or the amendment are inadequate the OPS may issue an order amending your chart to bring the mark-ups in line with the level of mark-ups established under this regulation.

Article III—Computing Ceiling Prices

SEC. 30. How to compute ceiling prices. To compute your ceiling price for the sale to an ultimate consumer, of an article covered by this regulation, refer to your chart and use the first applicable pricing rule found below in this Article III. (Note that sales covered by this regulation to persons other than ultimate consumers must be priced under section 40, "'Upstream' and 'Cross Stream' Sales and sales of 'Cross Stream' articles to ultimate consumers.")

In applying these rules, you must compute your ceiling price for each article to the class of purchaser you used in preparing your chart and apply your customary differentials to that price to find your ceiling price to all other classes of purchasers. You may not change the terms, allowances, discounts, or differentials which you customarily gave to various classes of purchasers, if the change would result in a higher net price.

Wherever this regulation refers to a list date chart it means only a chart correctly prepared in accordance with sections 13 to 21 of this regulation. If your chart is improper or inaccurate, your ceiling prices shall be prices computed on the basis of a correct chart.

SEC. 31. Net cost: OPS adjustment charge. "Net cost," in this regulation means net unit cost of an article after deducting all discounts you could have taken, or your supplier's ceiling price[10] for the article, whichever is lower. (You may round your cost to the nearest cent.) You may not include in "net cost" any item on an invoice received by you labelled "OPS adjustment charge." Freight, handling charge, or other similar charges may not be added."

SEC. 32. Rule 1: Articles belonging to a category on your chart and with a net cost listed on your chart. If the article you are pricing is in a category listed in Column 1 of your chart, and if it has a net cost listed in column 2, its ceiling price is the offering price you listed in column 3 for that net cost and category. If you have a circled price for that net cost and category, the circled price is the ceiling price for the article.

Example. You wish to price a pair of men's pajamas which cost you $1.29 net. On your chart you have listed offering prices of $2.00 and $2.24 for a $1.29 net cost in category 116. You have circled $2.00. Therefore, your ceiling price for these pajamas is $2.00 per pair.

If you had listed only one price $2.24 for a $1.29 net cost, your ceiling price would be, of course, $2.24.

SEC. 33. Rule 2: Articles belonging to a category listed on your chart but having a net cost lower than the lowest cost listed for that category. If the article you are pricing has a net cost lower than the lowest net cost listed for that category in column 2 of your chart, you compute your ceiling price by multiplying the net cost of the article by the average of the percentage markups in column 4 of the two lowest costs shown on the chart for that category, and adding the result to the net cost.

Example. You wish to price a girl's sweater having a $1.94 net cost. The two lowest net costs on your chart for category 208 are $2.07 and $2.26. The percentage markups listed for the last two are 55.6% and 54% respectively. You average the last two (55.6+54=109.6÷2=54.8) and find that 54.8% is the average. The ceiling price for the sweater is found by multiplying $1.94 by 54.8 (1.94×54.8=1.06) and adding the result, $1.06 to $1.94 (1.94+1.06=3.00). The total, $3.00 is your ceiling price.

SEC. 34. Rule 3. Articles belonging to a category listed on your chart, but having a net cost higher than the highest cost listed for that category. If the article you are pricing has a net cost higher than the highest net cost listed for that category in column 2 of your chart, you compute your ceiling price by multiplying the net cost of the article by the lower of (a) the average of the percentage markups listed in column 4 for the two highest costs shown on the chart for that category, or (b) the average percentage markup for the category, and adding the result to the net cost.

Example. You wish to price a woman's slip having a $7.95 net cost. The two highest net costs on your chart for category 211 are $6.95 and $5.95. The percentage markups listed for the last two are 67.6% and 63.5%, respectively. You average the last two (67.6+63.5=131.1÷2=65.6) and find 65.6%. The category average percentage markup for category 211 is 67%. Since the average of the percentages for the two highest cost lines (65.6%) is lower than the category average (67%), you use 65.6% to find the ceiling price of the slip. The ceiling price for the slip is found by multiplying $7.95 by 65.6 (7.95×65.6=5.22) and add the result $5.22 to the net cost, $7.95 (7.95+5.22=13.17). The total, $13.17 is the ceiling price.

SEC. 35. Rule 4. Articles belonging to a category listed on your chart but having a net cost between two net costs listed for that category. (a) If the article you are pricing has a net cost between two net costs listed for that category (except between the two lowest net costs for the category) in column 2 of your chart, you compute your ceiling price by multiplying the net cost of the article by the lower of (1) the percentage markup listed in column 4 for the net cost next lower than the one you are pricing, or (2) the average percentage markup listed for that category in column 1, and adding the result to the net cost.

Example. You wish to price a man's shirt with a net cost of $1.47. You have not listed any net cost of $1.47 for category 117, but you have listed net costs of $1.50 and $1.46. Your percentage markup for your $1.46 net cost is 54%. Your average category markup for category 117 is 53.1%. Since 53.1% is the lower, your ceiling price is found by multiplying the net cost $1.46 by 53.1 (1.46×53.1=.775) and adding the result $0.78 to $1.46. The total (1.46+.78=2.24) $2.24 is the ceiling price.

(b) If the article you are pricing has a net cost between the two lowest net costs listed for that category in column 2 of your chart, you compute your ceiling price for that article by using Rule 2 (section 33).

SEC. 36. Rule 5: Articles belonging to a category comparable to a category listed on your chart. If the article you are pricing does not belong to a category which is listed in column 1 of your chart, look in Appendix C where you will find for each category a list of other categories which are "comparable" to that category. See whether column 1 of your chart contains the first comparable category listed in Appendix C for the category to which the article you are pricing belongs. If it does not contain the first comparable category, see whether you have listed in column 1 the second, then the third, and so on until you find a comparable category which is listed on your chart. Then compute your ceiling price by applying Rules 1, 2, 3, or 4, as if the article you are pricing belonged in that comparable category.

Example. You have not listed category 701 on your chart, but now purchase a bedroom suite at a net cost of $95.00. You look in Appendix C and find that categories 706, 708, 714, 703, and 710 are listed as comparable to category 701. When you look in column 1 of your chart to see whether you have listed any of these categories. You have not listed category 706 on your chart, but you have listed category 708. Rule 5 [10] If you operate an outlet of a chain not included in a group of outlets for which your central office is permitted to use the same pricing chart in accordance with section 3(b), and if your chart was not prepared on the basis of net cost of articles to your central office, "your supplier's ceiling price" for articles shipped to you by your central office is the amount shown on your central office's invoice to you correctly prepared under Supplementary Regulation 1 to this Regulation.

[11] An alternative method for pricing categories 701–752 which permits freight to be reflected is provided in Supplementary Regulation 2 to this regulation.

requires you to figure your ceiling price for this bedroom suite as if it belonged to category 708. You find that you have listed a net cost of $85.00 in column 2 for category 708, and an offering price of $150.00 in column 3 for that net cost. You therefore apply Rule 1 and your ceiling price for the bedroom suite is $150.00.

SEC. 37. Rule 6. Articles belonging to a category where your chart has at least three categories in the same group of categories. If the article you are pricing is not in a category on your chart and you have no comparable category but you do have on your chart at least three categories in the same group [12] of categories, you compute your ceiling price under this rule. (If you cannot price under this rule you determine your price under section 39 which provides for the use of a markup table or in special instances for application for a pricing method.)

(a) Groups of categories. All categories are divided into the following groups:

Group II—Categories 701–752.
Group III—Categories 801–854.
Group IV—Categories 1001–1030.

(b) Pricing method. (1) List the appropriate categories and category average percentages. If you have at least three categories of the appropriate group [12] on your chart, you list as many of these categories as you have on your chart, setting forth opposite each, your average percentage markup [13] for each category. Note: You may not use this rule for a category in Group II (701–752) if your chart for these categories was prepared pursuant to the alternative method provided in Section 5 of Supplementary Regulation 2 to this regulation.

(2) Compute the "group average" for these categories. You do this by adding together all the average markups for the categories you have listed and dividing this sum by the number of categories which you have listed.

(3) Apply table in Appendix D. Turn to the table in Appendix D. The top row of the table is divided into a series of percentage brackets. In the first column to the left find the category number which includes the article you are pricing. Follow this category number across and find the markup which appears in the column under the percentage bracket which includes the "group average which you computed under subparagraph (2). This is your percentage markup over cost for the new category.

(4) Multiply the net cost of the article you are pricing by this percentage markup. Add the result to the net cost of the article. This final result is your ceiling price for the article you are pricing.

Example. You wish to price a set of boy's ear muffs on which your net cost is 50 cents. Ear muffs belong to category 123 on the CPR 7 chart. You find, on examining your chart, that neither this category, nor any one of the "comparable" categories is listed on your chart.

Since category 123 belongs to the group of categories numbered from 101–607 inclusive, you look on your chart to find whether you have listed at least three categories in this group. If you do not have at least three such categories listed on your chart (excluding categories 105A, 105B, 105C, 105D, 204, 214 and 353), you cannot use this pricing rule and the ear muffs must be priced under section 39.

Let us assume that actually you have listed on your chart articles belonging to eight categories of this group of numbers. These categories have percentage markups over cost as follows:

102	63	215	62
105	63	217	68
116	65	304	60

You must compute your "group average" for all these categories by adding the average markups for these categories and dividing the result by the number of categories which you have listed above (509÷8). Your "group average" is 63.625%.

You next turn to the table in Appendix D. In the first column to the left you will find a series of category numbers. Follow this column downward until you reach category 123.

Follow this row across the table until you come to the percentage bracket appearing in the top row of the table which includes your "group average"—in this case the bracket designated "over 62 including 65." At this point you will find that the allowable percentage markup for category 123 is 65.7%. This is your percentage markup for this category and for the article you are pricing.

You next multiply the net cost of the article you are pricing by this percentage markup ($.50×.657=$.328). Add this figure to your net cost of the article you are pricing ($.50+.33=$.83). The result, $.83, is your ceiling price for the article you are pricing.

(5) Group averages above table in Appendix D. If, in pricing a category included in Group I (101–607), your group average is over 101 percent; in Group II (701–752) over 127 percent; Group III (801–854) over 101 percent; and, Group IV (1001–1030) over 109 percent, you find your percentage markup over cost by multiplying your group average by the multiplier listed for that category in Appendix F.

Example: If you are a house to house seller and have a "group average" of 150% for your categories in the group 101 to 607, inclusive, and you now wish to sell handbags (category 218) which you find you must price under this rule, you determine your markup over net cost as follows: refer to the multiplier opposite category 218 in Appendix F. There you will find the figure 1.045. This means that your markup on cost for handbags is 156.8% (150×1.045=156.75).

(c) Articles which cannot be priced under Rule 6. If the article you are pricing is included in categories 105A, 105B, 105C, 105D, 204, 214, 353 and 803D; or if your chart for categories 701–752 was prepared pursuant to the alternative method provided in section 5 of Supplementary Regulation 2 to this regulation; or if you do not have three categories in the appropriate group on your chart, you price such article under section 39.

SEC. 38. Rule 7: Pricing method for repaired or reconditioned items. If in the course of your business you regularly buy used or imperfect articles (including such articles when received as trade-ins) for the purpose of repairing and reconditioning them and selling them as reconditioned or repaired, and your chart as filed indicates that such articles have been omitted, you may compute a price for such a used or imperfect article which you have repaired or reconditioned in the following manner: (a) add to the net cost of the article the net cost of reconditioning or repairing the article) but not to exceed a cost greater than that required to restore the article to a factory standard article of the same type); (b) multiply the total thus obtained by the category average percentage markup for the category including the article you are pricing, and (c) add the result to the total found in (a). If your chart has no markup for that category you use the markup for the category in Appendix E.

SEC. 39. Ceiling prices for sellers who cannot price under other sections of the regulation. If sections 30 to 38 do not provide a method for establishing your ceiling price for an article, you figure your ceiling under this section.

(a) Use of Appendix E markups—(1) Pricing method. If you have never priced an article under this section you find your ceiling price for all articles which must be priced under this section as follows by using the Table in Appendix E: On the left side is listed a column of category numbers; opposite each category number is a percentage markup. Find the percentage markup for the category to which the article you are pricing belongs. Multiply the net cost of the article you are pricing by this percentage markup. Add the result so obtained to the net cost of the article. The amount so arrived at is your ceiling price for the article you are pricing.

(2) Reports. You may not sell or deliver any article which you are required to price under this section until you have filed whichever of the following reports is applicable:

(i) You must file a statement that you have filed a list date pricing chart (if that is a fact) and a list of the categories you intend to price under subsection (1) of this section; or

(ii) If you have not filed a list date pricing chart you must file a statement containing the following information:

(a) Your name and address or your proposed name and address and the names and addresses of all owners, stockholders, or officers of the business establishment. (Owners holding less than 10 percent of the total number of shares of corporations preparing this statement need not be listed.)

(b) The date or the proposed date of the organization of the business establishment.

(c) A list of the articles which you intend to price under this section.

(d) The type of store you operate or intend to operate (dry goods, furniture, men's furnishings, specialty shop, etc.).

(e) Special services which you offer or intend to offer (installment selling, charge accounts, other credit terms, free delivery terms, etc.)

(f) If you are a leased department, the name and address of the prior lessee.

(b) Applications for markups in excess of those specified in Appendix E. You may not sell at markups in excess of those specified in Appendix E until you have received authorization to do so.

(1) Eligibility. If you are a seller who fixes ceiling prices under paragraph (a) of this section, you may apply to the Office of Price Stabilization office having jurisdiction over the area in which your business is located for authorization to use markups in excess of those set forth in Appendix E, if:

(i) You already own one or more established stores selling merchandise covered by this regulation at markups higher than those set forth in Appendix E; or

(ii) You already own one or more establishments selling articles not covered by this regulation at markups which for such goods represent markups higher than the average markups secured by other sellers of those goods; and

(iii) You (if you are an individually owned establishment) or any of the principal stockholders or managing officers had previous experience in selling merchandise covered by this regulation or related commodities as owner, officer, principal, or employee in an executive or managerial capacity in a business handling merchandise covered by this regulation at markups higher than those listed in Appendix E and have not operated at or below markups set forth in Appendix E since the list date.

(2) Filing and contents of applications. The application filed with the OPS must set forth the markups applied for and information which would permit determination pursuant to the rules of eligibility set forth above.

(3) Authorization. (i) Upon application made pursuant to subparagraph (2) the OPS may, by order, authorize you to use markups higher than those listed in Appendix E. Such markups will be in line with those of sellers most nearly like you in your trading area but not higher than your own past experience and in no case (except in an OPS district or resort center where the average of markups is unusually high) will markups be authorized which exceed the highest markups at or below which those sellers comprising three-fourths of the sellers covered by the regulation operate.

(c) Applications by certain sellers who sell exclusively in sets (groups of articles) to which services have been added—(1) Eligibility. If prior to February 24, 1951, you have been engaged in the business of assembling, packaging, and selling sets (groups of articles) to which you have added services the cost of which is more than 10 percent of the total of the net costs of the constituent articles of the assembled sets, you may apply to your OPS office for a pricing method for the sale of your assembled sets. You must file two (2) copies of an application containing the following information:

(i) Your name and address;

(ii) Date when you entered business;

(iii) Description of manner in which you conduct your business (indicating whether you are a department store, a leased department, a specialty store, or other; cash, installment or other terms; and class of merchandise you handle);

(iv) A list of all sets offered by you for sale on the list date, enumerating for each the articles included in each set, the cost of each set, the cost of each article, the cost of services added by you on each set, and the selling price of each set on the list date; and

(v) Substantiating evidence such as advertisements, catalogs, or prospectuses to show that you sold or offered for sale the sets (listed under (iv)) on the list date.

(2) Authorization. Upon application made pursuant to subparagraph (2), the OPS may, by order, permit you to add to the total of the net costs of the constituent articles the cost of the services you provide (packaging, monogramming, etc.) and a markup in line with the level of prices established by this regulation.

(d) Applications by sellers who repair or recondition. If you do not have a list date pricing chart and you are in or propose to enter the business of regularly buying (or taking in as trade-ins) used or imperfect articles for the purpose of reconditioning them and selling them as reconditioned or repaired, you may apply to your OPS office for a pricing method which will reflect your costs of repairing or reconditioning the articles which you sell. In such a case the OPS may, by order, permit you to add to the ceiling price established under this regulation the actual net cost of reconditioning or repairing the articles which you sell. In no case shall the cost of reconditioning or repairing include a cost greater than that required to restore the article to a factory standard article of the same type.

Article IV—Ceiling Prices in Special Cases

SEC. 40. "Up stream" and "cross stream" sales and sales of "cross stream" articles to ultimate consumers. If your sales to persons other than ultimate consumers constitute less than 10% of your total sales of articles covered by this regulation you are governed by this regulation as to those sales and your ceiling prices for those sales are computed under this section.

(a) Ceiling prices for "up stream" sales. Your ceiling price for a sale of any article covered by this regulation to any person other than an individual ultimate consumer, another retailer, or an industrial, commercial, or institutional user, is the net cost of that article to you.

(b) Ceiling prices for "cross stream" sales. (1) Your ceiling price for a sale to another retailer of any article covered by this regulation shall be the sum of the following items:

(i) the net cost of the article to you (which, as defined in Section 31 excludes any freight, OPS adjustment charge or handling charge);

(ii) the incoming freight allocable to that article which you have paid in addition to the net cost;

(iii) the OPS adjustment charge, if any, shown on the invoice received by you;

(iv) the handling charge, if any, which you customarily made when selling articles covered by this regulation to another retailer immediately prior to January 26, 1951. In no event, however, may your handling charge exceed 10 percent of the net cost of the article to you.

You must give to the buyer an invoice which must state separately each item making up your costs as itemized in this subparagraph (1) and, in addition, must contain the following notice:

NOTICE

You must compute the price for resale of the above articles pursuant to section 40 (c) of Ceiling Price Regulation 7.

(2) If you customarily made sales of commodities covered by this regulation to other retailers immediately prior to January 26, 1951, on which you figured your price by granting a specific discount from your retail price, you may continue to make such sales (excepting sales of articles purchased by you from other retailers). On such sales you must furnish the buyer with an invoice, which, in addition to showing your retail price as established by this regulation and the discount you granted, must contain the following notice:

NOTICE OF CEILING PRICE

Under Section 40 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7 you may not sell the above articles to consumers at prices higher than our retail ceiling shown on this invoice.

(c) Ceiling prices for sales to ultimate consumers of articles purchased from other retailers. (1) If you purchase articles covered by this regulation from another retailer and pay the seller his costs permitted to him under paragraph (b) (1), you must determine your ceiling price for sales of these articles to ultimate consumers in accordance with the pricing rules of this regulation taking your net cost from your supplier's invoice and excluding all freight, OPS adjustment charge and handling charges.

(2) If you purchase articles covered by this regulation and pay the seller his retail price less a specified discount, you must use as your ceiling price for sales of those articles to ultimate consumers the seller's retail price as stated on his invoice to you.

(d) Articles acquired by transfer from another seller in the same selling establishment. If one department or part of the same legal entity acquired an article by a transfer from another part of the same legal entity, the transferee pricing such an article must use as his net cost the net cost determined from the invoice received by the transferor.

The document covering the transfer must show the original invoice cost and must be preserved for inspection by the OPS.

SEC. 41. Pricing methods for certain chain stores and mail order establishments. Special pricing methods for certain chain stores and mail order establishments are provided in Supplementary Regulation 1 to this Ceiling Price Regulation 7.

SEC. 42. Transfers of business—(a) How a transferee fixes his ceiling prices. This section applies to you if:

(1) After the list date, you purchase or otherwise acquire a substantial part of the business, assets, or stock in trade of any business which sells or sold any articles covered by this regulation at retail; and

(2) You carry on the business or continue to sell at retail articles in any category covered by this regulation and

[12] "Group" as defined for this purpose includes any category which appears in the appropriate series of category numbers excluding categories 105A, 105B, 105C, 105D, 204, 214, 353, and 803D.

[13] Computations under this section are based on markups over cost. If you are on the "retail system," that is, if your chart markups are expressed as percentages of selling prices, you must convert your category markups to markups over cost. You do this by subtracting your average percentage margin on selling price for the category from 100%. You divide the result thus obtained into your percentage margin on selling price. After the percentage margin on selling price for all your categories have been converted to markups on cost you proceed as set forth above.

(3) You carry on the business or continue to sell in a store separate from any other store previously owned or operated by you for the sale of such articles at retail. If this section applies to you, your ceiling prices are the same as those which your transferor would have had if the transfer had not taken place (except as provided in paragraph (c) of this section). Your obligation to keep records sufficient to verify such prices shall be the same as if the transfer had not taken place. The transferor must either preserve and make available to you or turn over to you all records of transactions before the transfer which you need to comply with this regulation.

(b) Filing charts. If your transferor has not already filed a chart, you must prepare a chart based on his experience on the list date, using the list date which he would have used if no transfer had occurred. If your transferor has filed a chart, you must file a statement showing your business name and address and the date of the transfer. (You must attach a copy of this statement to the chart in your possession.) If the transferor's records are not available to you, you must fix your ceiling prices under section 39.

(c) Mergers and combinations. If, after the list date, two or more sellers merge, consolidate, or combine and continue operations as one seller, the seller who continues to operate shall fix his ceiling prices under this regulation on the same basis as that which the seller who had the largest dollar volume of sales of articles covered by this regulation during the 12 months immediately preceding the merger or combination would have had to follow.

SEC. 43. Uniform dollar-and-cents prices for certain articles. (a) How prices are established. The OPS may by order, upon application, establish dollar-and-cent retail ceiling prices for branded articles whenever it appears that:

(1) The article (or an article of the same type) was sold at retail at substantially uniform prices for a period immediately prior to January 26, 1951. The OPS may establish uniform retail ceiling prices for any article if the applicant has received or is eligible to receive an order under this section for any of his articles.

If the applicant had a policy of uniform retail prices for his branded merchandise and can show that the article was sold at substantially uniform prices except for a limited area, the OPS may establish uniform retail ceiling prices for the article. Uniform retail ceiling prices may be established for separate zones (not to exceed five zones) where the applicant can show that such differential was maintained as part of his uniform pricing policy immediately prior to January 26, 1951.

(2) The price requested for the article is no higher than the existing level of ceiling prices under this regulation.

Orders issued under this section will remain effective unless revoked or suspended by the Director. Orders may be revoked or suspended only if the Director is satisfied that such revocation or suspension is not inconsistent with the effective control of prices.

(b) What the order may contain. (1) An order may be issued under this section establishing uniform ceiling prices for all retail sales of an article covered by this regulation although such retail sales may not otherwise be subject to this regulation.

(2) An order issued under this section will include a provision requiring the applicant to tag or ticket the article with the retail ceiling price and other specified information.

(3) An order issued under this section will require the applicant to send copies of the order and any subsequent amendments thereto to those purchasers for resale of the articles covered by the order.

(4) An order issued under this section will ordinarily be in the form of applicant's selling price and retail ceiling price relationships. Such an order will ordinarily require the applicant to submit, from time to time as specified in the order, a description of the articles which he is pricing pursuant to the terms of the order, changes in his prices to his customers, and any other information that may be required by the terms of the order.

(c) Who may apply. (1) A manufacturer or a wholesaler of a branded article may apply under this section if he can submit the information required by paragraph (d).

(2) A group of manufacturers selling the same article under the same brand name may apply as a group under this section if they can submit the information required by paragraph (d).

(d) What the application must contain. Two copies of each application must be filed with the Distribution Price Branch, Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C. The application must contain the following:

(1) Business name and address of the applicant.

(2) A complete identification of the article for which the price is sought including:

(i) The brand name identifying the article and its style or lot number.

(ii) Applicant's ceiling price.

(iii) An identification of the regulation and the section in that regulation or the identification of the order issued by the OPS under which his ceiling price was established.

(iv) His invoice price and terms to various classes of retailers.

(v) His suggested retail price, if any, immediately prior to January 26, 1951. (If he had a suggested retail price prior to January 26, 1951 he should submit evidence to show his method of retail price maintenance, such as national advertising, catalogues sent to retailers, advertising mats furnished retailers, etc. If he had no suggested retail price prior to January 26, 1951, or did not attempt to enforce his suggested retail price, but can show that the article was sold at substantially uniform prices, he should submit a list of the names and addresses, giving their retail selling price of the article immediately prior to January 26, 1951 of all of his retail customers in fifteen cities representing a cross section of his customers.)

(3) The uniform retail ceiling prices requested for the article.

(4) In the case of wholesalers applying under this section, the name and address of the manufacturer of the article and the manufacturer's style or lot numbers.

(5) In the case of a group of manufacturers applying for a single order covering the articles manufactured in common by the group, the application must contain, in addition to the requirements of sub-paragraph (2) above, evidence to show that each manufacturer of the group, who sold the article, maintained the same retail prices on the same article with the same brand.

Article V—General Provisions

SEC. 50. How to treat taxes. The ceiling prices determined under the pricing rules in this regulation are your ceiling prices exclusive of tax. If a tax on a particular sale or delivery such as a sales tax or a compensating use tax is imposed and the tax law permits the tax to be separately stated, you may charge or collect the tax on the sale or delivery of the article in addition to the ceiling price fixed under the pricing rules. You must state the tax separately.

SEC. 51. Marking, tagging or posting. On and after July 1, 1951, you may not offer or sell any article covered by this regulation unless it is marked or tagged with the selling price in a manner plainly visible to, and understandable by, the purchasing public.

(a) Marking. You may mark the selling price on the shelf, bin, rack, or other holder or container upon or in which the article is kept provided all the articles kept on, or in the shelf, bin, rack, holder or container have the same selling price.

(b) Tagging. If you do not wish to mark the prices as described in (a) you must mark the selling price on each article itself by writing the price directly on the article or by attaching to the article a tag or ticket stating the selling price.

(c) Posting. On and after July 1, 1951, you may not offer or sell any article covered by this regulation unless you post in a prominent and clearly visible position in your store, a sign stating the following:

NOTICE

The prices of merchandise in this store are no higher than the OPS ceiling prices of the articles.

(d) Rule for mail order establishments. Mail order establishments must mark their ceiling prices for articles listed in printed price lists which have been printed after the list date in either of the following ways:

(1) State the ceiling price for each article covered by this regulation and listed in the price list, at the place in the publication where the article is listed.

(2) Print on the front cover of each printed price list (or on the front page of any list that has no cover) the following statement:

NOTICE

No price for any article listed or described herein exceeds the ceiling price for that article, as determined under the applicable OPS ceiling price regulation.

SEC. 52. Records. The records required by this section must be kept for as long as the Defense Production Act of 1950 remains in effect and for two years thereafter. All such records must be kept at your store, except in the case of certain chain stores for which special record keeping requirements are provided in Supplementary Regulation 1 to this regulation.

(a) List date records. You must preserve for inspection by the OPS:

(1) All records which you were required to prepare and preserve pursuant to section 16 (a) (1) and (4) of the General Ceiling Price Regulation [14] relating to articles covered by this regulation;

(2) All records relating to articles covered by this regulation which you were required to prepare and keep pursuant to section 16 (b) of the General Ceiling Price Regulation [15] from January 26, 1951, to the date you begin pricing under this regulation, not later than March 29, 1951;

(3) The last invoice which you received before the list date for each kind, style, model, or lot number of the articles offered for sale by you on the list date, and all other invoices which you used in preparing your list date chart; and

(4) All other records and data, such as sales slips, inventory records or work sheets, used by you in preparing your chart or showing your costs and offering prices on the list date.

(b) Current records—(1) Obtaining and preserving invoices. On and after February 27, 1951, you must obtain a purchase invoice (or some other record of cost) and preserve the purchase invoices (or other cost record) which you received for all articles covered by this regulation. You must keep these invoices according to some recognized filing system, such as alphabetical, numerical, or chronological order. Upon request of any authorized agent of the OPS, you must let him examine your purchase invoices for any articles covered by this regulation.

(2) "Retailing" invoices. Before selling or offering for sale any article covered by this regulation which is delivered to you on or after February 27, 1951, you must "retail" the invoice, that is, you must mark your first selling price for each article on the invoice covering your purchase of the article, and the number of the section or the pricing rules under this regulation, or the special order or other order under which you figured your ceiling price for the article. The pricing rule and method may be stated merely as "Rule 1" or "Rule 3" or "Rule 6."

If the invoice does not state the quantity of each article, style, model or lot number which it covers, you must also enter the quantity on each invoice.

(3) Preserving sales slips. If you customarily prepared your sales slips in more than one copy, you must preserve for at least six months after delivery a duplicate copy of each sales slip delivered by you pursuant to section 54.

(4) Listing items in General Category not enumerated in category or on chart. If you fix ceiling prices for articles in a "general" category (as described in Appendix B) not specifically listed in that category and not offered for sale by you on the list date, you must prepare and preserve with your chart a list of such articles designating as to each the general category in which you placed the item.

SEC. 53. Records and reports of initial markups or gross margins—(a) Records and reports of initial percentage markups—(1) Records.

(i) Base period records of initial percentage markups. If you use the so-called "retail method" of accounting, or if you have other records from which the following information can be readily computed, you must preserve for inspection the data showing for each of the smallest subdivisions of your business (such as department, subdepartment, or store) for which you have such records:

(a) Your initial percentage markup on total purchases (not including opening inventory) for the calendar quarter beginning July 1, 1949 (or if your fiscal quarters begin on some other date, the fiscal quarter beginning nearest to July 1, 1949); and

(b) The corresponding initial percentage markup for each of the subsequent three calendar or fiscal quarters.

(ii) Current records of initial percentage makup. You must continue to prepare and preserve such records for the same periods and on the same accounting basis as you used in maintaining the records upon which the reports required in paragraph (2) (i) below are based.

(2) Reports.

(i) Base period reports of initial percentage markups. If you have the records required by paragraph (a) (1) (i) above you must prepare two copies of a report labelled "Initial Percentage Markups Report," listing your name and address and the initial percentage markup for each subdivision of your business for which you have such records for the periods described in paragraph (a) (1) (i). You must file one copy of this report with your list date chart and keep the other available for inspection by the OPS,[16]

(ii) Current reports of initial percentage markups. If you have filed a report of your initial percentage markup under paragraph (a) (2) (i) above for any subdivision of your business you must file a similar report for any succeeding period in which your initial percentage markup for that subdivision exceeds your base period markup for the comparable period. The report must also indicate the period which it covers, the current initial percentage markup, and the number of percentage points by which the current initial percentage markup exceeds the base period. All such reports must be filed with the Distribution Price Branch, Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., within 45 days from the close of the period.

(b) Records and reports of gross margin—(1) Records—(i) Base period records of gross margin. If you do not keep the records described in paragraph (a) (1) (i) above and your annual dollar volume of articles covered by this regulation exceeds $50,000.00 for the calendar year 1949 or your fiscal year beginning nearest to June 1, 1949, you must preserve for inspection the data showing for each of the smallest subdivisions of your business (such as department, subdepartment or store) for which you have such records, as follows:

(a) Your quarterly percentage of gross margin for the calendar quarter beginning July 1, 1949 (or if your fiscal quarter begins on some other date, the fiscal quarter beginning nearest to July 1, 1949).

(b) The corresponding percent of gross margin for each of the subsequent three calendar or fiscal quarters.

(c) If you do not have monthly or quarterly records of gross margin your percentage of gross margin for the calendar year 1949 or your fiscal year beginning nearest to June 1, 1949.

"Gross margin" as used in this regulation is found as follows:

Step 1. Add the invoice cost of your beginning inventory for the reporting period and the invoice cost of your total purchases for the reporting period.

Step 2. Subtract the cost of your ending inventory from the total found in Step 1. The result is cost of goods sold.

Step 3. Subtract the cost of goods sold found in Step 2 from your total sales. The result is your dollar gross margin.

Step 4. Divide the dollar gross margin by your total sales. This is your percentage gross margin on sales.

Example: Period—January 1, 1949–December 31, 1949.

Step 1:
Beginning inventory	$100,000
Total purchases	250,000
Total	350,000
Step 2:
Ending inventory	−90,000
Cost of goods sold	260,000
Step 3:
Total sales	395,000
Cost of goods sold	−260,000
Gross dollar margin	135,000
Step 4: 135,000÷395,000=34.2% = Percentage gross margin on sales.

(ii) Current records of gross margin. You must continue to prepare and preserve such records for the same periods, that is quarter-year or annual and on the same accounting basis as you used in maintaining the records upon which the reports required in paragraph (2) (i) below are based.

(2) Reports—(i) Base period reports of gross margin. If you are covered by

"Sec. 16. Records. This section tells you what records you must preserve and what additional records you must prepare.

"(a) Base period records.

"(1) You must preserve and keep available for examination by the Director of Price Stabilization those records in your possession showing the prices charged by you for the commodities or services which you delivered or offered to deliver during the base period, and also sufficient records to establish the latest net cost incurred by you prior to the end of the base period in purchasing the commodities (if you are a wholesaler or retailer). • • •

"(4) You must also prepare and preserve a statement of your customary price differentials for terms and conditions of sale and classes of purchasers, which you had in effect during the base period."

[15] The pertinent section follows: "(b) Current records. If you sell commodities or services covered by this regulation you must prepare and keep available for examination by the Director of Price Stabilization for a period of two years, records of the kind which you customarily keep showing the prices which you charge for the commodities or services. In addition, you must prepare and preserve records indicating clearly the basis upon which you have determined the ceiling price for any commodities or services not delivered by you or offered for delivery during the base period. If you are a retailer you are required to preserve your purchase invoices and to record thereon both your initial selling price and the section of this regulation under which you have determined your ceiling price."

[16] This report may be filed on OPS Public Form No. 3, available at OPS local or regional Offices.

paragraph (a) (1) (i) above you must prepare two copies of a report labelled "Gross Margin Report," listing your name and address and the gross margin percentages for each of the subdivisions of your business for which you have such records for the periods described in that paragraph. You must file one copy of this report with your list date chart and keep the other available for inspection by the OPS."

(ii) Current reports of gross margin. If you have filed a report of your gross margin under (i) above for any subdivision of your business you must file a similar report for any succeeding period in which your gross margin percentage for that subdivision exceeds your base period gross margin percentage. This report must indicate the period which it covers, the current gross margin, and must also state the number of percentage points by which the current report exceeds the base period report. All such reports must be filed with the Distribution Price Branch, Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., within 75 days of the close of the period.

SEC. 54. Sales slips. If you customarily gave your customers a sales slip, receipt, or similar evidence of purchase you must continue to do so. Upon request from a customer, regardless of previous custom, you shall give the purchaser a receipt showing the date, your name and address, a description of each article sold and the price received for it.

SEC. 55. What acts are prohibited by this regulation. On and after February 27, 1951, regardless of any contract or other obligation, the following practices are forbidden:

(a) Charging more than ceiling prices. You are prohibited from selling or delivering any article at a price higher than the ceiling price permitted by this regulation. A lower price may, of course, be charged.

(b) Buying for more than ceiling price. You are prohibited from buying or receiving, in the course of trade or business, any article sold in violation of any of the provisions of this regulation.

(c) Changing customary terms of sale. You are prohibited from changing your customary terms, discounts, allowances, or price differentials on sales of articles, if the change results in a higher net price. This includes differentials allowed to cash purchasers by sellers who customarily extend credit.

(d) Combination sales. You are prohibited from requiring any purchaser to buy or agree to buy any other article, service, package, or wrapper in connection with the sale or delivery of any article covered by this regulation. Every person is likewise prohibited from making a sale of articles which is conditioned directly or indirectly on the purchase of any other commodity or service. (Matched sets, however, if designed by the manufacturer for sale at a unit price, and so purchased by you, may be sold at a unit price; matched groupings of furniture articles (covered by categories 701–752) may also be sold at a unit price as suites or sets, if all the articles in the grouping were produced by the same manufacturer; and sets priced pursuant to Section 39 (c) may be sold at a unit price.)

(e) Indirect price increases. You are prohibited from doing any other act which directly or indirectly increases, above the ceiling price, the consideration paid for any article or delivery of any article, or, for the purposes of evading the price limitations set forth in this regulation, to purchase, deliver, contract, deal or otherwise operate with or through any other person under common control with, controlled by, controlling, or otherwise affiliated with you. You shall not do any other act which directly or indirectly increases the consideration paid for any article. Any practice which is a device to secure the effect of a higher-than-ceiling price is as much a violation as an outright sale above the ceiling price.

(f) Attempts to violate. Every person is prohibited from agreeing, offering, soliciting, or attempting to do any of the acts prohibited by this regulation.

SEC. 56. Enforcement. Any person who violates any provision of this regulation is subject to the criminal penalties, civil enforcement actions and suits for damages, provided by the Defense Production Act of 1950.

SEC. 57. Petitions to amend this regulation. Any person may file a petition for an amendment of general applicability to any provision of this regulation in accordance with the provisions of Price Procedural Regulation No. 1.

SEC. 58. Supplementary regulations modifying this regulation. The provisions of this regulation, as applied to certain commodities or persons subject to this regulation, may be modified by Supplementary Regulations issued under this section.

SEC. 59. Definitions:

"Accommodation sale" means a sale made entirely without profit, solely for the benefit or convenience of the purchaser. For example, a sale by an employer to his employees, or by a school to its students—and not for the purpose of promoting trade is an accommodation sale. It does not include sales by cooperative, nonprofit, or other organizations which make sales initially above cost, but later give refunds, bonuses, dividends, or other allowances to purchasers.

"Buy and sell in substantially the same form." An article is bought and sold in substantially the same form if the article which you sell belongs to the same category as the article you bought and, except as provided in section 38 and section 39 (d) (pricing of repaired or reconditioned articles) if, before offering it for sale you have not added to the article you sell, materials which cost you more than 10 percent of the net cost (as defined in section 31) of the original article.

"Director of Price Stabilization." This term extends to any official (including officials of regional or local offices) to whom the Director of Price Stabilization by order delegates the function, power or authority referred to in this regulation.

"Mail order establishment" means a person who regularly makes deliveries by mail to individual ultimate consumers in response to orders received by mail on the basis of catalogs, booklets, circulars, flyers or other forms of printed price lists.

"Office of Price Stabilization." Wherever the Office of Price Stabilization (OPS) is referred to in connection with some action to be taken it means action by the Director of Price Stabilization.

"Person." A person includes an individual, corporation, partnership, association or other organized groups of persons, legal successor or representative of any of the foregoing and includes the United States, any agent thereof, any other government, or any of its subdivisions, and any agency of the foregoing.

"Purchaser of the same class" refers to the practice adopted by the seller in setting different prices for sales to different purchasers or kinds of purchasers (for example, manufacturer, wholesaler, jobber, retailer, government agency, public institution or individual consumer) or for purchasers located in different areas or for purchasers of different quantities or grades or under different conditions of sale.

"Records" includes books of account, sales lists, sales slips, orders, vouchers, contracts, receipts, invoices, bills of lading, and other papers and documents.

"Sale at retail" or "retailer." "Selling at retail" means a sale or selling to an ultimate consumer (including an industrial or commercial user) of an article which you buy and sell in substantially the same form. A seller who in the regular course of business makes sales at retail is a retailer.

"Sell" includes sell, supply, dispose, barter, exchange, lease, transfer, and contracts and offers to do any of the foregoing. The terms "sale," "selling," "sold," "seller," "buy," "purchase," and "purchaser," shall be construed accordingly. Nothing in this regulation shall be construed to prohibit the making of a contract to sell an article at a price not to exceed the ceiling price at the time of delivery.

NOTE: The record keeping and reporting requirements of this regulation have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

Effective date: This regulation shall become effective on the 27th day of February 1951.

APPENDIX B

What Commodities Are Covered by This Regulation

This appendix describes the articles covered by this regulation. These articles are grouped into "categories," each of which is given a number in this appendix. Paragraph (A) lists some categories of apparel and apparel accessories. Paragraph (B) lists the categories of piece goods and certain household textile commodities covered. Paragraph (C) lists the categories of certain consumer durable goods covered. Paragraph (D) lists women's, misses', teens', girls' and toddlers' apparel.

Each category is intended to be a "general" category unless designated as "specific" category. A "specific" category is one which includes only the articles that are specifically listed for that category. A "general" category is one which includes not only the articles that are specifically listed for that category but also all other related articles that fall within the general category description and are not listed in any other category in this appendix. In making your chart you must include in a "general" category all the articles listed in that category; you must include in addition all other related articles that fall within the general description and are not listed in any other category.

If you buy together at a unit price two or more articles (unless the combination is listed in a particular category) place the combination in the category of the article which bears the greatest percentage of the cost price of the combination.

[2] You establish a price for a straw hat (Category 123A) by pricing it as if it belonged to Category 123. After you have found the price under the appropriate pricing rule as if the straw hat belonged to Category 123, you may add 8% of that selling price to the selling price and the result is your ceiling price for the straw hat.

Example: If you are pricing a straw hat, Category 123A, having a net cost of $3.00, you look at your chart for Category 123. Assume there is a net cost of $3.00 and an offering price of $5.00 on yor chart for Category 123. Your ceiling price for the straw hat will be $5.00 plus 8% of $5.00 (5.00+.40). Thus the ceiling price will be $5.40.

CPR 7—RETAIL CEILING PRICES FOR CERTAIN CONSUMER GOODS

SR 1—SPECIAL PRICING METHODS FOR CERTAIN CHAIN STORES AND MAIL ORDER ESTABLISHMENTS

Pursuant to the Defense Production Act of 1950 (Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong.), Executive Order 10161 (15 F. R. 6105), and Economic Stabilization Agency General Order No. 2 (16 F. R. 738), this Supplementary Regulation 1 to Ceiling Price Regulation 7 is hereby issued.

STATEMENT OF CONSIDERATIONS

The reasons underlying issuance of this Supplementary Regulation 1 to Ceiling Price Regulation 7 are included in the Statement of Considerations to Ceiling Price Regulation 7 issued concurrently herewith.

REGULATORY PROVISIONS

Sec.
1. Coverage.
2. Pricing methods for certain chain stores.
3. Chains which send members only uniform selling prices and not costs.
4. Notice to retail outlets; records and filing.
5. Chains and mail order establishments requiring modification of provisions relating to chart preparation and pricing.
6. Purchase offices of chain stores.

AUTHORITY: Sections 1 to 6 issued under Sec. 704, Public Law 774, 81st Cong. Interpret or apply Title IV, Pub. Law 774, 81st Cong., E. O. 10161, Sept. 9, 1950, 15 F. R. 6105.

SECTION 1. Coverage. This Supplementary Regulation 1 to Ceiling Price Regulation 7 provides modified methods of chart preparation and pricing under Ceiling Price Regulation 7, for certain chain stores and mail order establishments. The modified methods here provided are required as a means of adjusting the Regulation to the peculiar business structure of these sellers.

SEC. 2. Pricing methods for certain chain stores—(a) Who may price under this section. (1) A group of retail sellers under common ownership or control, all of whose members, immediately prior to January 26, 1951, had uniform prices centrally determined for a category of articles presently covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 7, may determine prices centrally for that category as provided in this section. No seller which is a member of the group for which uniform prices are centrally determined under this section may fix prices other than centrally determined uniform prices for articles in a category unless the group discontinues the practice of having prices fixed uniformly and centrally for that category.

(2) A retail seller which, in the case of a given category, did not centrally determine uniform prices with other members of that group on the date Ceiling Price Regulation 7 was issued, may centrally fix its ceiling prices for any such category uniformly with other members of the group through use of the master chart described in paragraph (b) of this section; provided that that retail seller's category average markup for the category is not less than the group average percentage markup therefor.

(b) How to price under this section. A group of sellers which is eligible to price under this section and elects so to do shall centrally determine its uniform ceiling prices in accordance with the pricing rules of Ceiling Price Regulation 7 by the use of a master chart for that purpose. (Members of the group must use their individual pricing charts to determine ceiling prices of all other articles.) The master chart shall be prepared as follows:

(1) General information. In addition to the preliminary information required by Section 13 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7 list the names and addresses of all member stores covered by the chart.

(2) Take all the charts of members of the group constructed in accordance with Ceiling Price Regulation 7 and:

(i) List in Column 1 all categories for which uniform prices are centrally determined;

(ii) List in Column 2 all different costs shown in Column 2 of members' charts; or list in Column 2 all the different costs of articles which the group charged to its members between December 1, 1950, and February 27, 1951;

(iii) List in Column 2 all offering prices shown in Column 3 of the members' charts, including those not circled;

(iv) List in Column 4 the markups opposite each offering price in Column 4 of members' charts, and

(v) Prepare the remainder of the master chart listing category average markups, circled prices, and invoices in accordance with the directions of Ceiling Price Regulation 7 applicable to single separate sellers.

SEC. 3. Chains which send members only uniform selling prices and not costs.—(a) Who may price under this section. A group of retail sellers under common ownership or control which, between December 1, 1950, and February 27, 1951, sent to its members statements showing only the retail selling prices of articles covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 7 (and not their costs) may use the method provided in this section for fixing ceiling prices.

(b) Charts. (1) Under this section the group may prepare list date pricing charts as if its members were offering for sale on the list date all the articles covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 7 which it charged to them between December 1, 1950 and February 27, 1951. In addition, the charts prepared by the group must list the costs and offering prices of all other articles for which the members themselves determined the selling prices and which they offered for sale on the list date. A separate chart must be prepared for each group of retail outlets for all the articles covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 7.

(2) A chart for a group is prepared as follows:

(i) Each chart must show the names and addresses of all retail outlets to which it applies, in addition to preliminary information requested by Section 13 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7.

(ii) Column 1 of the chart lists all the categories which the group charged to its members during the period December 1, 1950, to February 27, 1951.

(iii) Column 2 lists the net costs to the principal office of the chain "net cost" as described in Sectior 31 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7) for each article charged to the retail outlets during that period.

(iv) Column 3 lists the uniform prices at which the group directed its outlets to offer each article the cost of which is listed in Column 2.

(v) The net costs, offering prices and invoice identification of all articles the selling prices of which were determined by the members themselves must be included on the chart.

(vi) To complete the chart, Columns 4 and 5 must be filled in as provided in Sections 20 and 21 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7.

(c) Notification of prices to chain outlets. A chain which operates outlets constituting a single separate seller by reason of the fact that it sends to its retail outlets statements showing only the retail selling prices of articles covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 7 (and not their cost) shall, when determining the price of any article offered for sale in these outlets, send a written notification of that price to each such outlet and shall keep the notification in that outlet available for inspection by the Office of Price Stabilization. In the case of articles which are pre-ticketed by the central or main office of the chain, compliance with this requirement may be made by the central office's transmitting to the outlet a separate notice, memorandum or invoice sufficient to identify the merchandise as pre-ticketed. Unless the notification has been kept by the outlet as herein directed, the chain shall not sell, offer for sale or deliver the article in that outlet; and in no case shall the chain sell, offer for sale or deliver any article at a price higher than the selling price stated on the notification to that outlet unless the ceiling price is also stated on the invoice or notification, in which case, the chain shall not sell, offer for sale or deliver that article in that outlet at a price higher than the stated ceiling price.

SEC. 4. Notice to retail outlets; records and filing.—(a) Notices. On and after February 27, 1951, no member of a group which prices under Section 2 or 3 of this Supplementary Regulation 1 may offer or sell any articles covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 7, unless it has received the following notice, signed by an officer or authorized agent of the group and has filed a copy of that notice with the Distribution Price Branch, Office of Price Stabilization, Economic Stabilization Agency, Washington 25, D. C.

NOTICE

The Ceiling Price Regulation 7 list date pricing chart for our stores has been prepared centrally by our company. One copy thereof will be available for inspection at our main office at _____ (Address of central office)

Signed _____
(Company name)

(b) Records. Each group of retail outlets which determines ceiling prices under Section 2 or 3 of this Supplementary Regulation may comply with the requirements of Sections 52 and 53 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7, by keeping records specified in that section at the central office of the group.

(c) Filing. Each group of retail outlets which determines ceiling prices under Section 2 or 3, in all cases where Ceiling Price Regulation 7 requires the filing of any chart or other document, shall file, as to all articles priced under these sections, with the Distribution Price Branch, Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C.

SEC. 5. Chains and mail order establishments requiring modification of provisions relating to chart preparation and pricing.—(a) Extensions of time. Whenever the Director of Price Stabilization is satisfied that any group of stores under common ownership or control or any mail order establishment (as defined in Section 59 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7) cannot, with diligent effort, conform to any requirement of the Ceiling Price Regulation 7 or any Supplementary Regulation issued pursuant thereto by the time therein specified, he may permit such extensions of time for any such group of stores or mail order establishment as he deems necessary.

(b) Modification of provisions. The Director may, by order, modify any provision contained in Ceiling Price Regulation 7 or in any Supplementary Regulation issued thereunder for any group of retail outlets under common ownership or control or for any mail order establishment which demonstrates conclusively that its methods of operation are not adaptable to the requirements of the Regulation or any Supplementary Regulation which has been issued under the Regulation. Applications under this paragraph must be filed with the Distribution Price Branch, Office of Price Stabilization, Economic Stabilization Agency, Washington 25, D. C., and must specify in full detail a plan of operation under the regulation which will not raise the level of prices, the modification of the provisions of the Regulation or Supplementary Regulation necessary to permit applicant to operate under its plan, and must set forth the reasons for the requested modification.

SEC. 6. Purchase offices of chain stores.—(a) Purpose of this section. Under Ceiling Price Regulation 7 ceiling prices for the articles covered by the regulation must be figured on the basis of "net cost." It is therefore necessary that each seller under Ceiling Price Regulation 7 have a purchase invoice for each article, and that the costs shown on such invoices should not be arbitrarily inflated. To ensure that sellers whose merchandise is purchased for them by their central offices or by buying organizations, will in the future receive invoices which contain service or handling charges no greater than those on which their base date markups were figured, this section requires purchasing offices of chains not pricing under section 2 or 3 of this Supplementary Regulation, to supply invoices reflecting service charges no higher than their customary charges on and before the list date of Ceiling Price Regulation 7.

(b) Who is covered by this section. This section applies to the purchasing offices of chains, except those which notify their retail outlets of the retail prices only and not the costs. In this section sellers subject to Ceiling Price Regulation 7 are referred to merely as "retail outlets" and articles covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 7 are referred to merely as "articles."

For purposes of this section the "purchasing office of a chain" is the office, warehouse or department of a retail chain which purchases merchandise for distribution and furnishes invoices or some other statement of costs to retail outlets which are under common ownership or control with it and are subject to Ceiling Price Regulation 7.

(c) Statement of service charges—(1) Filing of Statements. On or before March 29, 1951, you must file with the Distribution Price Branch, Office of Price Stabilization, Economic Stabilization Agency, Washington 25, D. C., two copies (signed by an officer, owner, or office manager) of a statement (described in (2) below) of your customary service charges. The term "service charge" as used in this Supplementary Regulation means any amount which you add to the "net cost" (calculated from your supplier's invoice for an article according to the instructions in Section 31 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7) in fixing the price of such article to one of your retail outlets, whether or not you actually perform any service in connection with the distribution of the article.

(2) Contents of Statement. Your statement must contain the following information:

(i) Your business name and address.

(ii) The service charges you made to your retail outlets between December 27, 1950 and February 27, 1951, in the following detail:

(a) If you made different charges for different kinds of articles or for different price lines, state the charge for each. State your charge either as a percentage of the invoice cost of the article (indicate whether net or gross cost) or as a dollar-and-cents amount, whichever has been your customary practice. If you customarily make your charge on some other basis, state the charge or the basis. For example, if your practice was to retain discounts and to charge your retail outlets with gross invoice costs, state that fact.

(b) If you made different charges to different classes of retail outlets, state the charge to each class of outlet.

(c) If you made no service charge at all, or no service charge to certain classes of retail outlet, state that fact, and describe such classes of retail outlet.

(d) If you made a service charge but also provided your retail outlets with a statement showing net invoice costs to you from your supplier and if the net costs stated on the charts of your retail outlets are the net costs of your supplier determined from your supplier's invoice, state these facts.

(3) Failure to file a statement. On and after April 28, 1951, you must not state on your invoice to any retail outlet a net price for any article which exceeds your "net cost" (calculated from your supplier's invoice for an article according to the instructions in Section 31 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7), until you have received from the Office of Price Stabilization an acknowledgment of the filing of the statement described above.

(4) Amendment of statements. If you find that you have filed an incorrect statement, you must immediately file a correct statement with the Distribution Price Branch, Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., and you must attach to your corrected statement an explanation of the reasons why the correction is necessary. Until you have received an acknowledgment from the Office of Price Stabilization of the filing of your corrected statement, your statements of cost to retail outlets for articles may not reflect any service charge higher than the appropriate charge shown on your previously filed statement.

The Office of Price Stabilization may, at any time, require you to submit to it your evidence that the information in your corrected statement is accurate.

(5) Changes which may be required by order. If your service charges exceed those which you charged during the two-month period prior to the issuance of Ceiling Price Regulation 7, or if the Office of Price Stabilization at any time cannot readily ascertain that your service charges are the same as those contained on your statement, it may, by order, modify your statement and require that you state costs to your retail outlets in a specified manner.

(d) Service charges. This paragraph describes the amount of service charge which may be included in the price of articles as shown on the statements of cost for such articles which you send to your retail outlets. (These statements of cost are described in paragraph (e) below.) Your net cost for an article purchased by you on behalf of a retail outlet plus the service charge described in this section is the "supplier's ceiling price" for that article referred to in footnote to section 31 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7, and is the greatest amount which the retail outlet may use as its net cost in figuring its ceiling price under Sections 30 to 39 of that regulation.

You may not include in the retail outlet's cost of an article, as shown on the statements of cost you supply, any service charge higher than the appropriate charge correctly computed and shown on the statement of service charges you filed, or were ordered to make under paragraph (c) of this section. If your statement of service charges shows no service charge for the article, or if the net costs stated on your outlet's charts do not include a service charge, or if you were ordered to make no service charge therefor, or unless you have received an acknowledgment before April 28, 1951, from the Office of Price Stabilization of the filing of your statements of service charge you may not include any service charge, and the net price shown on the statements of cost you supply may not be higher than net costs to you.

(e) Furnishing of statements of cost. On and after February 27, 1951, for each shipment to a retail outlet (whether such shipment is made by you or by another person) of articles purchased by you on its behalf, you must furnish it with a statement of cost covering those articles, unless your supplier sends it an invoice covering the articles. You must prepare this statement of cost in duplicate. For the purpose of this section, a statement of cost shall include any document by which goods are transferred and which lists the following:

(1) Your name and address.

(2) The retail outlet's name or designation and its address.

(3) The date.

(4) An identification (by description or by style, model or lot number) of each article.

(5) The quantity of each article covered by the statement.

(6) The cost price of each article. This may not exceed "net cost" (calculated from your supplier's invoice for an article according to the instructions in Section 31 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7) plus the service charge described in paragraph (d) of this section.

(f) Records. You must preserve the records required by this paragraph for so long as the Defense Production Act of 1950 remains in effect and for two years thereafter. All such records must be kept in your main office.

(1) Preserving invoices and statements. You must preserve all invoices which you receive from your suppliers for articles and you must also preserve a duplicate copy of all statements of cost which you furnish to your retail outlets pursuant to paragraph (e). If you have or wish to keep in your central office, warehouse or department, records or documents which will identify your statements of cost and contain the information required on such statements, you may apply to the Distribution Price Branch, Office of Price Stabilization, Washington 25, D. C., for an order authorizing you to preserve these other specified records or documents in lieu of duplicate copies of statements of cost.

(2) Invoice reference record. For each statement of cost you furnish to a retail outlet for articles on or after February 27, 1951, you must keep a record which identifies the invoice you received from your supplier for those articles. This record may be kept in any form you choose, provided that, from such record, any article can be readily traced from your statement of cost to your supplier's invoice and can also be traced from your supplier's invoice to the statement of cost you sent to your retail outlet for the article.

(3) List date record. You must preserve for inspection by the Office of Price Stabilization, all records, invoices, contracts, and other documents which show your customary service charges between December 27, 1950 and February 27, 1951.

NOTE: The record keeping and reporting requirements of this Supplementary Regulation 1 to Ceiling Price Regulation 7 have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

The Supplementary Regulation shall become effective February 27, 1951.

MICHAEL V. DISALLE,
Director of Price Stabilization.

SEC. 2. Listing of invoices. Any seller subject to Ceiling Price Regulation 7 may, if he wishes, list his invoices on his list date pricing chart by either of the methods provided in this section, rather than as provided in Section 21 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7. Under this section an invoice may be listed in either of two ways:

(a) Identifying number for invoice. The seller may enter in Column 5 of the chart his own identifying number for that invoice and, in parenthesis, an identification of the article covered by such invoice. However, any seller who lists his invoices in this manner must assign a different number to each invoice he lists on his chart and must enter that number on the invoice. He must also either keep a record showing his identifying number for each invoice listed on his chart and his supplier's name, invoice number (if any), and date for that invoice, or segregate the invoices listed on the chart, number them with his identifying number, and keep them filed in numerical order.

(b) Identifying number for supplier. The seller may list his invoices as described in Section 21 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7 except that he may substitute for the name of his supplier an identifying number for that supplier. However, any seller who lists his invoices in this manner must assign a different number to each supplier from whom he purchased articles offered for sale on the list date and must keep a record showing the name of each supplier and number assigned to each supplier.

SEC. 3. What is an invoice—(a) Substitute documents. For purposes of preparing the list date pricing chart and for keeping the records required by section 52 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7 any seller who purchases articles covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 7 through a central purchasing office, or who for any other reason has not in the past customarily kept the original invoices from his supplier in the place where his sales are made, may, if he wishes, substitute for such original invoice a document containing the following information:

(1) The supplier's name and address. (If the seller purchases through a central purchasing office, he may use, as his supplier's name the name of the purchasing office.)

(2) The date of receipt of the merchandise.

(3) An identification of each article whose purchase is covered by the document, by description or by style, model or lot number.

(4) The quantity of each article.

(5) The net cost (or gross cost and all discounts, terms and allowances) of each article.

(6) A notation from which the original invoice received from the supplier covering each article described in (3) can be identified.

(b) Original invoices. Of course, any seller who uses as an invoice the substitute document described in (a), must either keep the original supplier's invoices himself, or such original invoices must be kept by his central purchasing office for inspection by the Office of Price Stabilization.

SEC. 4. Articles for which invoices are not obtainable. This section provides the methods to be used in preparing charts by sellers who have no invoices for particular articles they offered for sale on the list date, and who cannot obtain such invoices.

(a) Sellers who have cost records for none of the articles offered for sale on the list date. A seller who has invoices or other cost records for none of the articles covered by Ceiling Price Regulation 7 which he offered for sale on the list date cannot prepare a list date pricing chart and must therefore figure his prices under Section 39 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7 and file the report required by that section.

(b) Sellers who have cost records but no invoices for some articles offered for sale on the list date. A seller who for some of the articles he offered for sale on the list date has no invoices, and who has no invoice for any other article in the same category which had the same net cost and was offered for sale on the list date, but who has some other record showing the cost of such article, must prepare his chart as required by Ceiling Price Regulation 7 except that he lists, in Column 2, the net cost determined from such record rather than the net cost determined from his last invoice, and he states in Column 5 that he has no invoice. He then either enters in Column 5 or states on a separate sheet attached to his chart the reason why he has no invoice and an identification of the cost record from which he established the cost listed in Column 2. He must preserve such cost records for inspection by the Office of Price Stabilization.

(c) Sellers who have invoices or cost records for only part of the articles offered for sale on the list date. A seller who has invoices or other cost records for some of the articles offered for sale on the list date, but who offered some articles for which he has neither invoices nor other cost records, must prepare his chart as described in Sections 13 to 21 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7, but shall not list any cost, offering price or invoices for the articles for which he has no invoices or other cost records.

SEC. 5. Alternative method for preparing charts and pricing in Categories 701 to 752. If you handle categories 701 to 752 you may elect to prepare your pricing chart and to price by the method set forth in this section. The method permits you in determining your ceiling prices to reflect incoming freight. Freight means actual transportation charges for the article you are pricing, exclusive of local haulage charges. If you use this method for any of your categories 701 to 752, you must use it for all.

(a) Preparing charts. (1) List in brackets beside or beneath each net cost in Column 2 on your chart the incoming freight charge.

(2) Before listing offering prices subtract from every offering price the actual amount of freight paid by you. (You may not prepare your charts in this manner unless you have the records specified below and unless you include every freight charge paid by you on the articles listed on the chart.) List in Column 3 of the chart as the offering price, the price less the actual freight charge.

(3) Note beside the category number in Column 1 of your chart the letter "F" for each category as to which you prepare your chart under this section.

(4) Note on your chart the basis which you used for allocating freight as between articles of different kinds and articles of the same kinds on a given invoice. You must use the same method for all articles in a given category.

(5) With the exception of offering prices, you shall otherwise prepare the remainder of your chart in accordance with the requirements of Sections 13 to 21 of Ceiling Price Regulation 7.

(b) Pricing. When pricing pursuant to the pricing rules in Ceiling Price Regulation 7, you may add to the price found by applying the appropriate pricing rule, the actual amount of the freight paid by you on the article being priced.

(c) Freight records. In addition to the base period records required by Ceiling Price Regulation 7, you must preserve all receipts, freight bills, or other documents showing freight or transportation charges which you have allocated and subtracted in accordance with the provisions of this section.

NOTE: The record keeping and reporting requirements of this Supplementary Regulation 2 have been approved by the Bureau of the Budget in accordance with the Federal Reports Act of 1942.

This Supplementary Regulation 2 shall become effective on the 27th day of February 1951.

MICHAEL V. DISALLE,
Director of Price Stabilization.

It is the intent of this order that the usage of automotive tetraethyl lead fluid shall be limited in order that manufacturers and users may accumulate and maintain adequate inventories thereof in the interest of national defense, and that supplies thereof may be made available where needed in the military aviation gasoline program.

TITLE 7—AGRICULTURE

PART 942—MILK IN THE NEW ORLEANS, LOUISIANA, MARKETING AREA

ORDER SUSPENDING CERTAIN PROVISIONS

Pursuant to the applicable provisions of the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended (7 U. S. C. 601 et seq.), hereinafter referred to as the "act," a public meeting was held in New Orleans, Louisiana on February 23, 1951 pursuant to due notice thereof issued on February 20, 1951, to receive oral and written data, views and arguments with respect to a proposed suspension of certain provisions of the order, as amended, regulating the handling of milk in the New Orleans, Louisiana, marketing area. Upon the basis of the record of this meeting and other available information and in accordance with the applicable provisions of the aforementioned act, it is hereby found and determined that:

a. The provisions of § 942.5 (a) (7) of the order, as amended, do not tend to effectuate the declared policy of the act with respect to milk received on and after the first day of March 1951 from producers or cooperative associations of producers.

b. The notice of rule making issued on February 20, 1951, was reasonable notice in that the information indicating the possible necessity of suspending § 942.5 (a) (7) of said order, as amended, was not known to the Department of Agriculture prior to that date and the issuance of a notice at an earlier date was therefore impracticable.

c. Good cause exists for making this order effective March 1, 1951 in that (1) the provisions of § 942.5 (a) (7) of said order, as amended, will not reflect current economic conditions affecting the supply of and demand for milk in the marketing area after that date, and this order is necessary to the orderly marketing of milk produced for said marketing area and to insure an adequate supply thereof; and (2) the changes affected by this suspension order do not require of persons affected any preparation therefor which cannot be completed prior to this effective date.

It is therefore ordered, That all of the provisions of § 942.5 (a) (7) of said order, as amended, be and hereby are suspended with respect to milk received on and after the first day of March 1951 from producers or cooperative associations of producers.

(Sec. 5, 49 Stat. 753, as amended; 7 U. S. C. and Sup., 608c)

Done at Washington, D. C., this 26th day of February 1951 to be effective on and after the 1st day of March 1951.

[SEAL] CHARLES F. BRANNAN,
Secretary of Agriculture.

CANADA

Whereas information has been received from the Canadian Postal Administration as to changes in the restrictions placed by that Postal Administration on the importation of eggs (see 15 F. R. 5934), and it having been found that compliance with the notice, public rule making procedure, and effective date requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. ISRAEL

Whereas this Department has been informed by the Postal Service of the State of Israel that all restrictions have been lifted concerning weight, contents, and number of parcels which may be received by a family or an individual in Israel, and it having been found that compliance with the notice, public rule making procedure and effective date requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. S. C. 1003) is impracticable and contrary to the public interest for the reason that such change becomes effective at once.

Now, therefore, it is ordered, that, effective at once, paragraph (b) (4) of § 127.262 Israel (State of) (15 F. R. 200, 3151, 4221, 7645) be amended to read as follows:

TURKEY

Whereas the Post Office Department has received advice through the Office of International Trade of the Department of Commerce that the present regulations of Turkey require each parcel for Turkey to have enclosed a combined certificate of origin and consular invoice, which must be certified by a Chamber of Commerce or other trade organization or by a Notary Public, and be legalized by a Turkish Consul, and it having been found that compliance with the notice, public rule making procedure, and effective date requirements of the Administrative Procedure Act (5 U. Now, therefore, it is ordered, that, effective at once, Part 127 be amended as follows:

PROPOSED RULE MAKING

DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

Wage and Hour Division

RETAIL OR SERVICE ESTABLISHMENTS

NOTICE OF HEARING RELATING TO APPLICATION OF EXEMPTIONS TO ESTABLISHMENTS SELLING STATIONERY, SCHOOL AND OFFICE SUPPLIES AND EQUIPMENT AND TO COMBINED STATIONERY AND PRINTING ESTABLISHMENTS

The Fair Labor Standards Act; of 1938 (52 Stat. 1060), as amended by the Fair Labor Standards Amendments of 1949 (63 Stat. 910), provides in section 13 (a) (2) that the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the act shall not apply with respect to any employee employed by any retail or service establishment more than 50 per centum of which establishment's annual dollar volume of sales of goods or services is made within the State in which the establishment is located. A "retail or service establishment" shall mean an establishment 75 per centum of whose annual dollar volume of sales of goods or services (or both) is not for resale and is recognized as retail sales or services in the particular industry.

Section 13 (a) (4) of the act, as amended, provides that the minimum wage and overtime provisions of the act shall not apply with respect to any employee employed by an establishment which qualifies as an exempt retail establishment under clause (2) of this subsection and is recognized as a retail establishment in the particular industry notwithstanding that such establishment makes or processes at the retail establishment the goods that it sells: Provided, That more than 85 per centum of such establishment's annual dollar volume of sales of goods so made or processed is made within the State in which the establishment is located.

Interpretative bulletin, Part 779, which sets forth the Administrator's interpretations of the scope and the terms of the exemptions provided by sections 13 (a) (2) and 13 (a) (4) of the act lists the general principles under which a determination can be made as to what sales or services are recognized as retail in a particular industry and what establishments are recognized as retail establishments in a particular industry. The bulletin lists stationery stores as one of the types of establishments whose sales or services may be recognized as retail but does not deal specifically with the character of particular sales of such establishments; the bulletin lists printing establishments as one of the types whose sales or services are not recognized as retail. It does not deal specifically with combined stationery and printing establishments.

The Administrator has been requested by various establishments and by associations of such establishments to state his views as to which sales of goods or services are recognized as retail sales or services in the industry and whether combined stationery and printing establishments are recognized as retail establishments in the industry.

In accordance with such requests, the Administrator undertook a study of the facts relating to establishments of the types above mentioned. Questionnaires were sent to various associations and labor organizations and a survey was made of readily available data. The information thus obtained was, however, deemed insufficient to permit a proper determination as to all the questions involved. Consequently in order to obtain additional information on these questions and in order to provide interested parties an opportunity to present their views notice is hereby given of a public hearing to be held before an authorized representative of the Administrator, beginning on Tuesday, March 27, 1951, at 10:00 a. m. in the Interdepartmental Auditorium, Constitution Avenue between Twelfth and Fourteenth Streets NW., Washington, D. C., at which interested persons may present facts and information bearing on the following questions:

1. What types of sales or services of establishments selling stationery, school and office supplies and equipment, or of combined stationery and printing establishments are recognized as retail sales or services in the particular industry.

2. Which, if any, combined stationery and printing establishments are recognized as retail establishments in the particular industry.

Among the types of information pertaining to these questions which would be particularly desirable are data on the relation of various pricing practices to quantity of sales, and to sales for resale as compared with sales for consumption or use by the purchaser; credit practices, methods of selling, and services rendered; the types of customers to whom goods are sold or for whom services are rendered, and the percentages of the total volume of business of an establishment represented by the various types of sales or services in which it engages; and on the differences among types of printing done by commercial printing shops, by combined stationery and printing establishments which engage in general printing, and by combined stationery and printing establishments which engage only in specialized printing such as the printing of social stationery.

Copies of the Division's report entitled "Data Pertaining to the Application of sections 13 (a) (2) and 13 (a) (4) of the Fair Labor Standards Act to the Stationery, School Supplies and Office Outfitting Trade" may be obtained on request from the Administrator of the Wage and Hour Division, United States Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C., as long as the supply lasts.

All persons desiring to be heard at the aforesaid public hearing should notify the Administrator, Wage and Hour Division, United States Department of Labor, Washington 25, D. C., not later than March 12, 1951, which notification should contain the following information:

1. Name and address of the person who will appear.

2. If such person will appear in a representative capacity, the name and address of the persons or organizations and type of establishment or establishments he will represent.

3. The particular aspect of the subject matter concerning which he intends to make a presentation at the hearing.

4. The approximate length of time requested for his presentation.

Written statements may be filed in lieu of personal appearances at any time before the date of the hearing.

Signed at Washington, D. C., this 23d day of February 1951.

WM. R. MCCOMB,
Administrator,
Wage and Hour Division.

SEC. 2. Limit of acreage which may be purchased. The Lands covered by this announcement have been divided into farm units. Each of the farm units represents the acreage which, in the opinion of the Regional Director, Region 1, Bureau of Reclamation, will support an average-size family at a suitable level of living. The law provides that with certain minor exceptions not more than one farm unit in the entire project may be held by any one owner or family. A family is defined as comprising husband or wife, or both, together with their children under 18 years of age, or all of such children if both parents are dead.

PREFERENCE RIGHT OF VETERANS OF WORLD WAR II

SEC. 3. Nature of preference. A preference right to purchase the farm units described above will be given to veterans of World War II (and in some cases to their husbands or wives or guardians of minor children) who submit applications during a 45-day period beginning at 2:00 p. m. February 27, 1951, and ending at 2:00 p. m., April 13, 1951, and who at the time of making application are in one of the following five classes:

a. Persons, including those under 21 years of age, who have served in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard of the United States for a period of at least ninety (90) days at any time on or after September 16, 1940, and prior to the termination of World War II, and have been honorably discharged.

b. Persons, including those under 21 years of age, who have served in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard during the period prescribed in subsection a. of this section regardless of length of service, and who have been discharged on account of wounds received or disability incurred during such period in the line of duty, or subsequent to a regular discharge, have been furnished hospitalization or awarded compensation by the government on account of such wounds or disability.

c. The spouse of any person in either of the first two classes listed in this section, if the spouse has the consent of such person to exercise his or her preference right. (See subsection 9c. of this announcement regarding the provision that a married woman must be head of a family.)

d. The surviving spouse of any person in either of the first two classes listed in this section, or in the case of the death or marriage of such spouse, the minor child or children of such person by guardian duly appointed and qualified and who furnishes to the examining board acceptable evidence of such appointment and qualification.

e. The surviving spouse of any person whose death has resulted from wounds received or disability incurred in the line of duty while serving in the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Coast Guard during the period described in subsection a. of this section, or in the case of death or marriage of such spouse, the minor child or children of such person by a guardian duly appointed and qualified and who furnishes to the examining board acceptable evidence of such appointment and qualification.

SEC. 4. Definition of honorable discharge. An honorable discharge means:

a. Separation from the service by means of an honorable discharge or by the acceptance of resignation or a discharge under honorable conditions.

b. Release from active duty under honorable conditions to an inactive status, whether or not in a reserve component, or retirement.

Any person who obtains an honorable discharge as herein defined shall be entitled to veterans preference even though such person thereafter resumes active military duty.

SEC. 5. Submission of proof of veterans status. All applicants for farm units who claim veterans preference must attach to their applications a complete photostatic or other copy (both sides) of their certificates of honorable discharge, or of an official document of the respective branch of the service which shows clearly an honorable discharge, as defined in Section 4 of this announcement, or constitutes evidence of other facts on which the claim for preference is based, and which clearly shows the period of service.

If preference is claimed by a surviving spouse or on behalf of the minor child or children of a deceased veteran, proof of the relationship asserted and of the veteran's service and death must be attached to the application. If the preference is claimed by the spouse of a living veteran, proof of such relationship and the veteran's service and written consent to the exercise of the preference right must be attached to the application.

QUALIFICATIONS REQUIRED OF PURCHASERS

SEC. 6. Examining board. An examining board of three members has been appointed by the Regional Director, Region 1, Bureau of Reclamation, to determine the qualifications and fitness of applicants to undertake the purchase, development, and operation of a farm on the Columbia Basin Project. The board will make careful investigations to verify the statements and representations made by applicants. Any false statements may constitute grounds for rejection of an application, and cancellation of the applicant's right to purchase a farm unit.

SEC. 7. Minimum qualifications. Certain minimum qualifications have been established which are considered necessary for the successful development of farm units. Applicants must meet these qualifications in order to be eligible for the purchase of farm units. Failure to meet them in any single respect will be sufficient cause for rejection of an application. No added credit will be given for qualifications in excess of the required minimum. The minimum qualifications are as follows:

a. Character and industry. An applicant must be possessed of honesty, temperate habits, thrift, industry, seriousness of purpose, record of good moral conduct, and a bona fide intent to engage in farming as an occupation.

b. Farm experience. Except as otherwise provided in this subsection, an applicant must have had a minimum of two years (24 months) full-time farm experience, which shall consist of participation in actual farming operations, after attaining the age of 15 years. Time spent in agricultural courses in an accredited agricultural college or time spent in work closely associated with farming, such as teaching vocational agriculture, agricultural extension work, or field work in the production or marketing of farm products, which, in the opinion of the board will be of value to an applicant in operating a farm, may be substituted for full-time farm experience. Such substitution shall be on the basis of one year (academic year of at least nine months) of agricultural college courses or one year (twelve months) of work closely associated with farming for six months of full-time farm experience. Not more than one year of full-time farm experience of this type will be allowed. A farm youth who actually resided and worked on a farm after attaining the age of 15 and while attending school may credit such experience as full-time experience.

Applicants who have acquired their experience on an irrigated farm will not be given preference over those whose experience was acquired on a non-irrigated farm, but all applicants must have had farm experience of such nature as in the judgment of the examining board will qualify the applicant to undertake the development and operation of an irrigated farm by modern methods.

c. Health. An applicant must be in such physical condition as will enable him to engage in normal farm labor.

d. Capital. An applicant must possess assets worth at least $4,000 in excess of liabilities. Assets must consist of cash, property readily convertible into cash or property such as livestock, farm machinery and equipment, which, in the opinion of the board, will be useful in the development and operation of a new, irrigated farm. In considering the practical value of property which will be useful in the development of a farm, the board will not value household goods at more than $500 or a passenger car at more than $500. If the applicant proposes to convert items into cash, total cash value should be shown with a full explanation, in section 11 of the application blank.

An applicant shall furnish in section 9 of the farm application blank a financial statement listing all of his assets and all of his liabilities. Assets not useful in the development of a farm will be considered if the applicant furnishes, at the board's request, evidence of the value of the property and proof of its conversion into useful form before execution of a purchase contract.

SEC. 8. References. An applicant shall list in section 12 of the farm application blank the names, occupations, positions, or titles, and complete, current addresses of five persons who are qualified and willing to give their frank opinions as to the applicant's personal qualifications and farm experience. Persons named as references must be responsible citizens who are permanent residents in their communities.

At least one of these five persons must be an agricultural leader who now holds one or more of the following positions: County Agent; Farmers Home Administration County Supervisor; Production and Marketing Administration County Committeeman; Soil Conservationist; Vocational Agricultural Teacher; Manager or Agricultural Representative of an agricultural marketing or processing association or institution; loan officer or agricultural representative of a credit agency or institution in an agricultural community, or an officer of any recognized farm organization.

The other four persons named as references must be agricultural leaders or successful farmers who own or operate their own farms and are well known in the community where the farm experience was acquired.

Persons in occupations other than those listed in this subsection and relatives of the applicant are not acceptable.

SEC. 9. Principal qualifications required. Each applicant (except guardians) must meet the following requirements:

a. Be a citizen of the United States or have declared an intention to become a citizen of the United States.

b. Not own outright, or control under a contract to purchase, more than ten acres of cropland or a total of 160 acres of land at the time of execution of a purchase contract for a farm unit.

c. If a married woman, or a person under 21 years of age who is not eligible for veterans preference, be the head of a family. The head of a family is ordinarily the husband, but a wife or a minor child who is obliged to assume major responsibility for the support of a family may be the head of a family.

WHERE AND HOW TO APPLY FOR A FARM UNIT

SEC. 10. Application blanks. Any person desiring to purchase a farm unit offered for sale by this announcement must fill out the attached farm application blank. Additional application blanks may be obtained from the offices of the Bureau of Reclamation at Ephrata, Washington; Post Office Box 937, Boise, Idaho, or Washington, D. C. Full and frank answers must be made to each question on the farm application blank.

SEC. 11. The filing of application and proof of veterans status. An application for the purchase of a farm unit offered by this announcement must be filed with the Land Settlement Section, Bureau of Reclamation, Ephrata, Washington, in person or by mail. No advantage will accrue to an applicant who presents an application in person. Every application must be accompanied by proof of veterans status if veterans preference is claimed (See section 5 of this announcement).

SEC. 12. Applications become Bureau records. Each application submitted, including corroborating evidence, will become a part of the permanent records of the Bureau of Reclamation and cannot be returned to the applicant. For this reason, original discharge or citizenship papers should not be submitted.

SEC. 13. Importance of complete applications. It shall be the sole responsibility of an applicant to submit a complete application, including the corroborating evidence required by this announcement. Failure of applicant to provide complete answers to all questions in the farm application blank, or failure to provide all other information required by this announcement, will subject an application to rejection.

SELECTION OF QUALIFIED APPLICANTS

SEC. 14. Priority of applications. All applications will be classified for priority purposes and considered in the following order:

a. First Priority Group. All complete applications filed prior to 2:00 p. m., April 13, 1951, which are accompanied by proof sufficient, in the opinion of the examining board, to establish eligibility for veterans preference. All such applications will be treated as simultaneously filed.

b. Second Priority Group. All complete applications filed prior to 2:00 p. m., April 13, 1951, by applicants who do not claim veterans preference or which are not accompanied by proof sufficient, in the opinion of the examining board, to establish eligibility for veterans preference. All such applications will be treated as simultaneously filed.

c. Third Group. All complete applications filed after 2:00 p. m., April 13, 1951, whether or not accompanied by proof of veterans preference. Such applications will be considered in the order in which they are filed if any farm units are available for sale to applicants within this group.

SEC. 15. Preliminary examination to determine First Priority Group, right of appeal. Each application will be examined for the purpose of ascertaining (a) that the application is complete, and (b) that the applicant's right to veterans preference has been fully established. Any incomplete application will be rejected. Any applicant without veterans preference, or any applicant claiming veterans preference but failing to establish proof of qualification for such preference shall be placed in the Second Priority Group, if the application was filed before 2:00 p. m., April 13, 1951.

In case of rejection or placement in the Second Priority Group, the applicant shall be notified by the board by registered mail, with return receipt requested, of such rejection or placement; the reasons therefor, and of the right to appeal in writing to the Regional Director, Region 1, Bureau of Reclamation. All appeals must be received in the office of the Land Settlement Section, Bureau of Reclamation, Ephrata, Washington, within 15 days of the applicant's receipt of such notice, or in any event, within 30 days from the date when the notice is mailed to the last address furnished by the applicant. The Land Settlement Section will forward the appeal promptly to the Regional Director. If an appeal is decided by the Regional Director in favor of the applicant, the application will be referred to the board for inclusion in the drawing. All decisions on appeals will be based exclusively on information obtained prior to rejection of applications or placement in the Second Priority Group. The Regional Director's decision on all appeals shall be final.

SEC. 16. Public drawing. After the expiration of the appeal periods fixed by the above-mentioned notices and after decision on all appeals the board will conduct a public drawing of the names of the applicants remaining in the First Priority Group as defined in Subsection 14a of this announcement. Applicants need not be present at the drawing to participate therein. The names of a sufficient number of applicants (not less than three times the number of farm units to be offered for sale) shall be drawn and numbered consecutively in the order drawn for the purpose of establishing the order in which the applications drawn will be further examined by the board to determine whether the applicants meet the minimum qualifications prescribed in this announcement, and to establish the priority of qualified applicants for the selection of farm units. After such drawing, the board shall notify each applicant of his respective standing as a result of the drawing.

SEC. 17. Submission of corroborating evidence. After the drawing the board shall examine applications in the order drawn. If the examination of the farm application blank submitted by an applicant indicates that the applicant is not qualified, the application shall be rejected and the applicant shall be notified by the board, by registered mail, of such rejection and the reasons therefor and of the right to appeal to the Regional Director within the time and in the manner prescribed in section 15 of this announcement. If an application indicates that the applicant may qualify, such applicant shall be notified by registered mail, with return receipt requested, to submit the information indicated in items a. through e. below:

a. A statement from an officer of a bank or other responsible and reputable credit agency, or other proof satisfactory to the board corroborating his statement of net worth. (See subsection 7d of this announcement.)

b. References, on forms to be provided, from at least three of the five persons listed in section 12 of the application blank. The applicant shall be responsible for seeing that the reference forms are completed and mailed to the board by the persons completing them. At least one of these statements must be from an agricultural leader as defined in section 8 of this announcement. Each of the others must be from an agricultural leader or a successful farmer.

c. In case the applicant is physically disabled or afflicted with any condition which makes his ability to perform normal farm labor questionable, a detailed statement of an examining physician which defines the limitation upon such ability and its causes.

d. If the applicant is not native-born, evidence of citizenship or of declared intention to become a citizen. (See subsection 9.a. of this announcement.)

e. If the applicant is a married woman or a nonveteran under 21 years of age, evidence of status as head of a family. (See subsection 9.c. of this announcement.)

SEC. 18. Final examination. After the information outlined in Section 17 of this announcement has been received or the time for submitting such statements has expired, the board shall continue to examine in the order drawn a sufficient number of the remaining applications to determine the applicants who will be permitted to purchase farm units. The sufficiency, authenticity, and reliability of the information and evidence submitted by the applicants. If the examination indicates that an applicant is qualified, the applicant shall be required to appear for a personal interview with the board for the purpose of: (a) Affording the board any additional information it may desire relative to his qualifications; (b) affording the applicant any information desired relative to conditions in the area and the problems and obligations relative to development of a farm unit, and (c) affording the applicant an opportunity to examine the farm units.

If an applicant fails to appear before the board for a personal interview on the date requested, he will thereby forfeit his priority position as determined by the drawing.

If the board finds that an applicant's qualifications fulfill the requirements prescribed in this announcement, such applicant shall be notified, in person or by registered mail, that he is a qualified applicant and shall be given an opportunity to select one of the farm units available then for purchase. Such notice will require the applicant to make a field examination of the farm units available to him and in which he is interested, to select a farm unit, and to notify the board of such selection within the time specified in the notice.

If the applicant fails to supply any of the information required or the board finds that the applicant's qualifications do not meet the requirements prescribed in this announcement, the applicant shall be disqualified and shall be notified by the board, by registered mail, of such disqualification and the reasons therefor and of the right to appeal to the Regional Director within the time and in the manner prescribed in section 15 of this announcement.

SELECTION OF FARM UNITS

SEC. 19. Order of selection. The applicants who have been notified of their qualification for the purchase of a farm unit will successively exercise the right to select a farm unit in accordance with the priority established by the drawing. If a farm unit becomes available through failure of a successful applicant to exercise his right of selection or failure to complete his purchase, it will be offered to the next qualified applicant who has not made a selection at the time the unit is again available. An applicant who is considered to be disqualified as a result of the personal interview will be permitted to exercise his right to select, notwithstanding his disqualification, unless he voluntarily surrenders this right in writing. If, on appeal, the action of the board in disqualifying an applicant as a result of the personal interview is reversed by the Regional Director, the applicant's selection shall be effective, but if such action of the board is upheld by the Regional Director, the farm unit selected by this applicant will become available for selection by qualified applicants who have not exercised their right to select.

If any of the farm units listed in this announcement remain unselected after all qualified applicants whose names were selected in the drawing have had an opportunity to select a farm unit, and if additional applicants remain in the First Priority Group, the board will follow the same procedure outline in Section 16 of this announcement in the selection of additional applicants from this group.

If any of the farm units remain unselected after all qualified applicants in the First Priority Group have had an opportunity to select a farm unit, the board will follow the same procedure to select applicants from the Second Priority Group and they will be permitted to exercise their right to select a farm unit in the manner prescribed for the qualified applicants from the First Priority Group.

Any farm units remaining unselected after all qualified applicants in the Second Priority Group have had an opportunity to select a farm unit will be offered to applicants in the Third Group in the order in which their applications were filed, subject to the determination of the board, made in accordance with the procedure prescribed herein, that such applicants meet the minimum qualifications prescribed in this announcement.

If any farm units offered by this announcement remain unsold for a period of two years following the date of this announcement, the District Manager, Columbia River District, Bureau of Reclamation, may sell, lease, or otherwise dispose of such units to qualified applicants without regard to the provisions of section 16 of this announcement.

SEC. 20. Failure to select. If any applicant refuses to select a farm unit or fails to do so within the time specified by the board, such applicant shall forfeit his position in his priority group and his name shall be placed last in that group.

PURCHASE OF SELECTED UNIT

SEC. 21. Execution of purchase contract. When a farm unit is selected by an applicant as provided in section 19 of this announcement the District Manager will promptly give the applicant a written notice confirming the availability to him of the unit selected and will furnish the necessary purchase contract, together with instructions concerning its execution and return. In that notice the District Manager will also inform the applicant of the amount of the irrigation charges assessed by the Quincy-Columbia Basin Irrigation District or, if such charges have not been assessed, of an estimate of the amount of the charges for the first year of the development period, to be deposited with the District Manager.

If the purchase is made subsequent to April 1 of any year following the first year of the development period, a deposit will be required to cover the payment of water charges for the next full irrigation season following the purchase.

SEC. 22. Terms of sale. Contracts for the sale of farm units pursuant to this announcement will contain, among others, the following principal provisions:

a. Down payment. An initial or down payment of not less than 20 percent of the purchase price of the lands being purchased from the United States will be required. Larger proportions, or the entire amount of the price, may be paid initially at the purchaser's option.

b. Schedule for payment of balance; interest rate. If only a portion of the purchase price is paid initially, the remainder will be payable within a period of 20 years following the date of the contract. No payments on the principal, except the down payment will be required during the first three years and the District Manager may postpone such payments for as long as the first five years of the contract. Interest on the unpaid balance at the rate of three percent per annum, however, will be payable annually. When payments on the principal are resumed, they will be payable each year. The schedule of principal payments, which will be established by the District Manager, will provide for relatively small payments during the first years and larger payments during the later years of the contract period. Payment of any or all installments, or any portion thereof, may be made before their due dates at the purchaser's option.

c. Development requirements. In order that the irrigable area of the entire farm unit shall be developed with reasonable dispatch, each purchaser will be required, as a minimum, to clear, level, irrigate, and plant to crops by the end of each of the calendar years indicated below, and to maintain in crops thereafter, the following areas of irrigable land:

Size of farm unit in irrigable acres	Percentage of irrigable land to be developed by end of each year (period will begin with year of purchase if contract is executed and water is available on or before May 1 of that year; otherwise period will begin with the next calendar year)
	2d year	3d year	4th year	5th year
41 to 60	50	75	----	----
61 to 80	50	65	75	----
81 to 100	40	60	65	75

d. Residence requirements. A major objective of the settlement program for the Columbia Basin Project is to assist and encourage the permanent settlement of farm families. In keeping with this objective, each purchaser will be required to do the following with respect to residence: (1) Within one year from the date of his contract, or within one year from the date that water is available to the irrigation block in which the farm unit is located, whichever is later, to initiate residence by actually moving onto the unit, such residence to be maintained by living thereon for not less than 12 months within an 18-month period following the initial date of residence, and (2) before receiving title to the unit under the purchase contract, to establish a permanent and habitable dwelling on the unit. The time for compliance with the initiation of residence may be extended by the District Manager for periods of as long as six months, upon his determination that an extension is necessary to avoid undue hardship to the purchaser and that it will not be detrimental to the orderly development of the irrigation block. The latest permissible date for initiating residence, however, will not be extended for more than one year in addition to the one-year period specified above. In extraordinary situations, the requirements under (1) and (2) above may be waived entirely upon the determination by the Regional Director, after recommendation by the District Manager, that such waiver will be in the interest of orderly development of the block. Any such waiver, however, shall be conditioned on the requirement that the purchaser reside close enough to his unit to permit him to develop it through his own efforts.

e. Speculation and landholding limitations. Purchase contracts and deeds covering farm units offered by this announcement will include provisions governing (1) maximum permissible sizes of holdings of irrigable land; (2) continued conformance of land to the area and boundaries of the farm unit plat for the block; (3) prices at which land can be resold during a period of five years following the date on which water is made available to the irrigation block; (4) disposal of land should it become excess at any time, and (5) limitations as to total area that may be operated on the project whether as lessee or as owner or both.

f. Copies of contract form. The terms listed above, and all other standard contract provisions, are contained in the purchase contract form, copies of which may be obtained by writing to the Bureau of Reclamation, Ephrata, Washington; Coulee Dam, Washington; or Bureau of Reclamation, Post Office Box 937, Boise, Idaho.

IRRIGATION CHARGES

SEC. 23. Water rental charges. During the irrigation season of 1952, while some construction activities will be continuing and the system is being tested, it is expected that water will be furnished on a temporary rental basis to those desiring it. The terms of payment, which will be at a fixed rate per acre-foot of water used, will be announced by the Regional Director before the beginning of the irrigation season.

SEC. 24. Development period charges. Pursuant to the provisions of the repayment contract of October 9, 1945, between the United States and the Quincy-Columbia Basin Irrigation District, the Secretary of the Interior will announce development periods of ten years for Irrigation Blocks 70, 701, and 71, during which time payment of construction charge installments will not be required. These periods probably will commence with the calendar year 1953. During the development period, water rental charges will average an estimated $4.20 per irrigable acre per year. This figure is preliminary and subject to change because all the data needed to fix the charges are not available nor can they be obtained now. In any event, there will be a minimum charge per farm unit each year whether or not water is used. A notice establishing the details of the plan to be followed and announcing charges and governing provisions for the first year of the development period will be issued prior to January 1 of that year, by the Regional Director, who has the responsibility for fixing these charges.

The present plans of the Regional Director are (a) to vary the minimum charge according to the anticipated relative repayment ability of the various land classes; (b) to provide for a small minimum charge for the first year and to increase it each year thereafter so that the charge for the tenth year will be approximately equal to the combined construction and operation and maintenance charge for the following year, and (c) to charge for water in excess of the amount furnished for the minimum charge on an acre-foot basis. The minimum charge will entitle each user to a quantity of water to be specified by the Regional Director, varying with the water requirement classification of the land and the size of the farm unit.

In addition to the water rental charges, the Irrigation District will levy an additional charge to cover administrative costs and probable delinquencies in collections.

SEC. 25. Construction period repayment charges—a. Operation and maintenance charges. After the development period has ended, water users will pay a charge for operation and maintenance of the project irrigation system which will be uniform for the irrigation blocks throughout the project. These charges may or may not be graduated among land classes. Assessment procedure will be left for the Irrigation District Board of Directors to determine, but, in any case, there will be an annual minimum charge per acre. In order to encourage careful use of water, this annual minimum charge will entitle the water-user to one acre-foot of water per acre less than the amount of water normally required. The normal requirements for the various classes of land will be determined and announced as provided in the repayment contract with the Quincy-Columbia Basin Irrigation District. Water in excess of the quantity covered by the minimum charge will be paid for on an acre-foot basis in accordance with an ascending, graduated scale.

b. Construction charges. The contract between the United States and the Quincy-Columbia Basin Irrigation District requires the payment of construction charges for the project irrigation system during the forty years following the development period. The average construction charge per irrigable acre for the entire project will be $2.12 per year. Thus, the total construction charge payment will average $85 per irrigable acre. The contract further provides that construction charges shall be graduated according to the relative repayment ability of the land; consequently, the charge per irrigable acre will be larger for the better lands than for the poorer lands. This allocation of construction charges by classes of land will be made as soon as practicable.

FEBRUARY 1, 1951.

WILLIAM E. WARNE,
Assistant Secretary of the Interior.

FEDERAL CIVIL DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION

ORGANIZATIONAL STATEMENT

SECTION 1. Creation. The Federal Civil Defense Administration, first created within the Office for Emergency Management by Executive Order 10186 dated December 1, 1950 (15 F. R. 8557), was subsequently established in the Executive Branch of the Government under an act of Congress approved January 12, 1951 (Public Law 920, 81st Congress), to provide a plan of civil defense for the protection of life and property in the United States from attack. The act declares the intent and policy of Congress that this responsibility shall be vested primarily in the several States and their political subdivisions, with the Federal Government providing necessary coordination, guidance and assistance as authorized therein.

SEC. 2. General functions. (a) The Administrator, who is appointed from civilian life by the President by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, performs his functions subject to the direction and control of the President. The act creates a Civil Defense Advisory Council to advise and consult with the Administrator on basic policy matters. The Council consists of the Administrator as Chairman and twelve additional members appointed by the President, of whom three are representative of the State governments, three are representative of the political subdivisions of the States, the remaining members being citizens of broad experience in matters affecting the public interest. In addition, the Administrator may appoint such other advisory committees as are deemed necessary.

(b) The Administrator is authorized to prepare, sponsor, and direct plans and programs for the civil defense of the United States; to study and develop civil defense measures, including research on methods for treating the effects of attacks, the development of shelter designs and materials for protective covering or construction and the development and standardization of equipment and facilities; and to provide for necessary civil defense communications and for warning the civilian population of enemy attacks. The Administrator is also authorized to disseminate civil defense information by all appropriate means, and to conduct training programs for the instruction of civil defense officials and workers, including the operation of not more than one civil defense college and three civil defense technical training schools.

(c) The Administrator may stockpile and distribute materails and facilities for civil defense, and may make financial contributions to the States for civil defense programs and projects. The act provides that the Federal contribution to any State for organizational equipment and shelters and other protective facilities shall be equally matched by the State; that no contribution shall be made to any State for personnel and administrative expenses or items of personal equipment or for the procurement of land; and that no contribution may be made towards the cost of any facility intended for any use other than civil defense and which may be capable of self-liquidation, except to the extent of that portion of the cost directly attributable to incorporation of any feature of construction or design necessary for the use of such facilities for civil defense purposes.

(d) In performing his duties, the Administrator is directed to utilize the existing facilities of the various departments and agencies of the Government and may, with the approval of the President, delegate specific civil defense responsibilities to other Federal departments and agencies; he is authorized to review and coordinate the civil defense activities of the Federal Government with those of the States and neighboring countries.

(e) The Administrator has the responsibility of assisting and encouraging the negotiation of interstate civil defense compacts and coordinating activities thereunder.

(f) The Administrator is authorized to sell or dispose of materials and facilities, found by him to be unnecessary or unsuitable for civil defense purposes, in the same manner as provided for excess property in the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (Public Law 152, 81st Congress, as amended by Public Law 754, 81st Congress).

(g) The Administrator may prescribe the official insignia and other distinctive articles for persons engaged in civil defense activities, and may issue rules and regulations covering the manufacture, wearing or possession thereof.

SEC. 3. Emergency powers. (a) Upon the proclamation of a state of civil defense emergency by the President or the Congress, the President may direct the several Federal departments or agencies to make their personnel, facilities and materials available to the Administrator for civil defense purposes, to provide or construct emergency shelter, and to furnish protective and other work essential for the preservation of life and property, including the making of emergency repairs to and temporary replacement of communications, hospitals, utilities, transportation facilities and public facilities.

(b) During the period of emergency the Administrator is authorized to procure by condemnation or otherwise, construct, lease, transport, store, maintain, renovate or distribute real or personal property for civil defense purposes without regard to the limitations of existing law; to direct the relief activities of the other Federal departments and agencies; and employ additional necessary personnel and incur such obligations on behalf of the United States as the circumstances may require. He may reimburse any State for the transportation and other expenses of its employees rendering civil defense outside the State and to pay for the costs of State-owned material utilized and consumed in civil defense outside of the State. Where necessary, the Administrator may provide temporary financial assistance for the relief of civilians injured or in want as the result of any attack.

(c) The emergency provisions of the act terminate on June 30, 1954, or such earlier date as may be prescribed by concurrent resolution of the Congress.

SEC. 4. Central and field organizations. (a) The chief executive officers of the Administration are the Administrator and Deputy Administrator both appointed from civilian life by the President. The principal offices of the Administration are at 1625 Eye Street NW., Washington 25, D. C.

SECURITIES AND EXCHANGE COMMISSION

[File No. 70-2563]

WEST PENN ELECTRIC CO.

ORDER GRANTING APPLICATION AND PERMITTING DECLARATION TO BECOME EFFECTIVE

At a regular session of the Securities and Exchange Commission, held at its office in the city of Washington, D. C., on the 21st day of February A. D. 1951.

The West Penn Electric Company ("West Penn Electric"), a registered holding company having filed with this Commission an application-declaration pursuant to the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935 ("the act") and certain rules and regulations promulgated thereunder regarding the following transactions:

West Penn Electric proposes to issue 320,000 shares of new common stock without par value. The shares of this common stock are to be offered to the holders of the presently outstanding common stock of the Company for subscription in the ratio of 1 share of additional common stock for each 10 shares of common stock now held, this right to subscribe being evidenced by subscription warrants to be issued on the basis of 1 subscription warrant for each share of common stock presently owned. No fractional shares are to be issued in exchange for warrants. The warrants provide that persons subscribing for stock may direct the subscription agent to purchase additional warrants required to complete a full share subscription or to sell warrants in excess of full share subscriptions. In each case, the purchase or sale may not exceed 9 warrants for any single stockholder. West Penn Electric also proposes to offer to the regular full time employees of the Company, and its majority owned subsidiary companies, a non-transferable privilege to subscribe, at the subscription price, for shares of the new common stock not issued upon the exercise of rights to subscribe. This employee right to purchase is to be limited to a maximum of 150 shares for each employee. Any shares remaining after subscriptions by the stockholders and by employees are to be available to stockholders under an over-subscription privilege of the warrants.

This offering of new common stock is to be underwritten and West Penn Electric proposes to select the purchasers of any unsubscribed stock at competitive bidding pursuant to Rule U-50. At least 42 hours prior to the time for the submission and opening of bids, West Penn Electric will advise the prospective bidders of the subscription price per share for the shares of new common stock which will also be the price per share at which unsubscribed shares will be sold. Prospective bidders are to specify an aggregate amount of compensation to be paid by the Company for their commitments.

West Penn Electric proposes, if it is considered necessary or desirable, to stabilize the price of the common stock of the Company for the purpose of facilitating the offering and distribution of the new common stock. In connection therewith, the Company may, prior to the acceptance of a bid, purchase shares of its common stock, but not in excess of 32,000 shares, on the New York Stock Exchange or otherwise. Such purchases are to be made through brokers with the payment of regular stock exchange commissions. The prospective bidders will be asked to bid not only for the purchase of the unsubscribed stock but also for the purchase of any shares, within the above limitation, acquired by the Company through stabilizing transactions.

Notice of the filing of this application-declaration having been duly given in the form and manner prescribed by Rule U-23 promulgated pursuant to the act and the Commission not having received a request for a hearing and not having ordered a hearing thereon; and

The Commission finding with respect to this application-declaration that all of the applicable statutory standards are satisfied and that there is no basis for any adverse findings, and deeming it appropriate in the public interest and in the interest of investors and consumers that said application-declaration be granted and permitted to become effective:

It is hereby ordered, Pursuant to said Rule U-23 and the applicable provisions of the act, that this application-declaration be, and the same is hereby granted and permitted to become effective forthwith, subject to the terms and conditions prescribed in Rule U-24 and to the following terms and conditions:

(1) That the proposed issuance and sale of the 320,000 shares of new common stock by West Penn Electric shall not be consummated until the results of competitive bidding held with respect thereto have been made a matter of record in this proceeding and a further order shall have been entered by this Commission in the light of the record so completed which order shall contain such further terms and conditions, if any, as may then be deemed appropriate;

(2) That jurisdiction be reserved with respect to the payment of any and all fees and expenses incurred, or to be incurred, in connection with the consummation of the proposed transactions.

By the Commission.
